We have added thirty names to the list of subscribers to Better Homes and Gardens magazines. This entitles us to a bonus of $5.00

By request, we will sponsor the landscaping of grounds of the Home Economics building and of vacant space belonging to the town.

One hundred 24-inch pine trees from the State nursery were planted.

There was no meeting of our club in July or August. In September, we had our regular meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Z. Tower on Deep Creek Lake. We had as our guest speaker Mrs. Frank Hoadley, our State directer, who spoke on departmental work of Federated clubs. Her visit was much enjoyed by members and the friends of our club.

We desire to thank all who have in any way aided us in our efforts, and especially do we thank our editors of the local papers, who have been most generous in granting of space and their time.

Table Courtesies

If every member of the family would keep small courtesies, such as the ones listed below, in mind at meal time, all family meals would be times of perfect ease and joy:

1. All be seated at the same time.
2. Sit down and rise from the left side of the chair.
3. Place the napkin half unfolded across the lap.
4. Sit erect at the table.
5. When all are served, start eating.
6. Keep the elbows off the table and rather close at the sides.
7. Ask for what you want, rather than reach across the table or in front of others.
8. Do not talk with food in the mouth, or knife, fork or spoon in the air.
9. When not using the knife or fork, place across the center or towards the back of the plate, side by side.
10. Only forks and spoons are used to carry food to the mouth, never the knife.
11. Place the spoon on the saucer, rather than in the cup, when you are not using it.
12. Tea, coffee and cocoa are drunk from the cup and not the saucer. Do not make a noise when drinking.
13. When through eating, fold the napkin and place at the left of the plate.
14. Always be thoughtful of others. See that the ones near you are served and that food near you is passed.
15. Do not discuss the food at the table.
16. Let the conversation at the table be pleasant. Keep up your share of the conversation, but do not monopolize the talk.

THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1938

SENATOR FRIEND, AS USUAL, WAS ALL WET!

In another column of The Republican today we print in full a letter received in the County Commissioners office this week from Comptroller Gordy concerning funds available for distribution to the counties of the State for General Public Assistance.

The Commissioners received a check for this purpose for $1928.00 last week.

It seems from Mr. Gordy's letter that this is all the county will receive this year for this purpose, and, as explained in the letter, even this sum would not have been avnilable to the county had it not been for a surplus in the other accounts, and the relief law as passed at the special session last May would have yielded nothing for distribution for General Public Assistance had it not been for the surplus in the old age pensions and aid to dependent children accounts.

It will be remembered that several weeks ago Senator Friend made a statement in an article published in The Republican that the county would receive this year $25,000.00 from the State for General Relief.

The Commissioners, answering Senator Friend's article, stated that at the time their levy was laid they hnd no information as to the amount that they would receive from the State for this purpose.

Senator Friend's article intimated that the Commissioners should have taken this sum into account in making their levy.

What a fine predicament our county affnirs would be in if the Commissioners had done what Senator Friend appnrently seems to think they should have done.

Just another case of the Senator being wrong again and we think he should get out another circular letter to the people of the county correcting the wrong impression that he created in his former statement.

ON TAX COLLECTIONS

Treasurer Ashby Explains Mandatory Section Of New Law; Senator Friend To All Appearances Is Wrong Again.

To the Editor of The Republican.

In last week's Republican Senator Friend, in the "smearing campaign," as he called it, stated that all the difference in the old law and the new (tax collection) law was the change in the months.

This is true as far as Section 107 is concerned, with reference to the notice to be given to delinquent taxpayers, but this one section does not constitute the whole law.

The old law was ineffective as to making it mandatory on the Treasurer to collect taxes at any certain date, as there was no penalty attached should he fail to do so, and a law without a penalty is practically the same as no law.

But the new law, under which the Treasurer is now collecting taxes, provides that if he fails to make final settlement within one year from October 1, 1938, "it shall be such willful neglect of duty as to require his removal from office."

The Senator seems to want to make it appear that the Treasurer does not have to enforce collection of the 1938 taxes until October 1, 1939, although the law says the Treasurer must have all taxes collected and accounted for and final settlement made by that time.

After a tax sale notice has been prepared (and it takes some time to prepare it) the law requires it to be published three successive weeks, which makes in all four weeks' notice before sale.

There are approximately 7,000 tnxpayers on the tax hooks, and ns a rule there are approximately 500 delinquents. So in order to comply with this mandatory law and have all taxes accounted for in the specified time, it shall be necessary for the Treasurer to begin almost immediately to enforce the law against some of these delinquents after October 1, 1938.

I do not suppose the Senator is concerned about his property heing sold for taxes, as I do not find where his name nppears on the tax records of this county.

J. J. ASHBY, JR.,
County Treasurer.

What You Could Say, President Roosevelt

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT:

They tell me that on several recent occasions, when some visitor has been nagging you about what you should say to put business back on its feet in this country, you have retorted:

"All right. You go ahead. Write out exactly what you think I could say that would banish fear. I'll dare you."

Mr. President—if you had dared me, this would be my answer:

You said once, with eternal truth, that the only thing to fear is fear itself. Fear is depressing industry. With due respect, you should concede the obvious: This fear is fear of you.

It is fear of shifting policies; of a hostile attitude toward legitimate business; of insistence on discredited tax methods and other laws which prevent the earning and retaining of fair and honest profits.

It is fear that, if you work out a constructive plan, you won't stay put. It is fear that, if a plan of yours is proved bad, you will stick to it stubbornly because you are unwilling to admit that, like all the rest of us, you make mistakes.

Mr. President, you can eliminate this basic cause of the depression very simply. You command an instant audience of the whole Nation. Through a message to Congress or some other vehicle, you should address yourself at once and convincingly to remove the fear that keeps applicants for loans away from banks full of money, and prevents us from turning into profits the greatest store of natural resources and industrial ingenuity in the world.

You should inform the American people that, proud—as you should be proud—of the great moral and social advances which have been made under your leadership, you are willing now to consolidate these and attempt no more until your Cabinet, your congressional leaders and you agree that the Nation can foot the bill.

You should announce that your only effort will be to raise the national income, without devaluation of other artifices, to that 90 or 100 billions annually which you set as the goal. You should explain that, in order to do this, you and your administrative circle will refrain from favoritism toward any economic groups, disturbing speeches, sudden and new proposals to Congress, and attacks on groups and individuals who happen to disagree with or criticize you. You should set a high example by clearing your mind of private hates.

You should make it clear that we shan't fight any more over who is to share the annual income of 90 or 100 billions, and to what degree, until you have given all of us a chance to raise it to that figure. This we can do.

You should let administrative silence "like a poultice come to heal the blows of sound," and permit industry to go to work in an atmosphere of peace and security.

If you will do this, Mr. President, explicitly, generously, candidly; make no effort to keep Congress in session longer than is absolutely necessary, and reduce your blacklist to real, intentional enemies of the common welfare, you will be astounded to witness the curative effect of this single thing.

Other details are important, of course. The details of your new plan to underwrite loans to all kinds of business. The details of your aid to the railroads, the details of the enduring armistice you should sign with the utilities so that they can refinance, and stimulate the heavy industries.

But the chief thing is to eliminate fear and thus restore confidence. You alone can do that. But you must do it thoroughly, forsaking hate and vanity, and resuming that patience with which you so nobly and courageously conquered an illness that would have broken the spirit of most of us.

You have been a great leader and a great man. You can be again.

ELEANOR PATTERSON.

This Correspondent Deplores The Fact That He Sees Civilization Perishing.

To the Editor of The Republican.

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country."

The oldest institution of the civilized world is perishing. The institution which was, and is, the foundation of civilization. If you please, it is the institution by which civilization was made possible. This institution is the institution of private property.

Governments have grown up for the purpose of protecting this institution —the protection of the individual in his private rights of ownership from the ruthlessness of gangdom. This is both the reason and the excuse for the existence of governments.

If you own anything or ever expect to own anything, if your immediate ancestors owned anything, cherished the right and wished to extend their privilege, for their sake and for your own now is the time to take your stand and stop the prostitution of your heritage.

A radical democracy is more vicious than even a dictator or a king, except the late rulers of Russia, have dared to be in the abuse of private property. King Henry VIII may have beheaded his queens, but never was he foolhardy enough to behead a creditor.

Not only is our Government confiscating, but more, it is destroying. The minute it gets a dollar, that dollar is only worth 25 cents. The minute it gets a piece of property the value of that property diminishes 75%. Furthermore, in this recent process of the Government taking over wealth, not only is there evidenced a reduction in the value of one particular dollar or of one particular piece of property, but, through a lesser degree, there is seen a reduction in the value of all other dollars and of all other pieces of property. This destruction of values by our Government is especially felt in England and France. Likewise, the destructive action of those two other strong socialist governments is keenly felt in the United States. The buzzard of socialism are eating up the hearts of these countries.

It is necessary for us of the Grand Old Party to stick firmer together, because our votes have been watered. Millions of people who should not have voted and who would not have voted have been brought to the polls. These people are neither legally or socially responsible.

A destructive force of this nature, it is true, would in time die of its own poison—of the venom which replaces its soul—but this might be too late. So, for the sake of the honest labor of five thousand years, in the name of civilization and in due respect to our forefathers, step forth.

The Christian believer who has been carefully instructed in God's word carries within his heart divine assurance with regard to three matters that cause many worries in these days: That concerning the vexing problems and grievous sorrows common to all men everywhere; that of making a clear and convincing confession of faith in a world of wickedness, and that which must be faced in the work of the Kingdom of God on earth. He sounds the note of victory regardless of the many destructive agencies at work among men and nations; he is steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for he knows that this work is not in vain. He remembers the promise of Christ: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

A Matter Of Choice

Washington, April 16.

What this new Roosevelt program really amounts to is an effort to give the people again the same sickening, syrupy dose ladled out to them before. There is no real difference in the medicine and there will be no real difference in the effect, except that if we take it, our last condition will be worse than our first.

To believe anything else is to ignore experience and close the mind to facts. After a dizzy period of apparent progress, the net result of the first dose has been a dangerous dislocation of the Federal finances; the imposition of unprecedented burdens in the shape of direct and indirect taxes; the handicapping of business, with such partisan restrictive agencies as the National Lahor Relations Board; a condition of vast confusion in the Government and more unemployment than when the big spending began. The one true yardstick by which this Administration should always be measured is the size and cost of the relief load. By that yardstick its failure is tragic.

In the face of all this, the President proposes a renewal of large-scale Federal spending, another pump-priming period, during which Federal funds are to pour forth in various unthought-out ways and all notion of regaining control over Treasury expenditures to be completely abandoned. At the same time, while protesting his desire to help business, he opposes the tax revisions which it is overwhelmingly agreed would help most, and demands "reforms" in the shape of a wage-and-hour bill and other regulatory legislation, showing no change in his personal hostility and rendering meaningless the conciliatory tone of his "fireside chat."

From the "mild inflationists" and from the radicals who have been pushing him in this direction, and from whom the plan came, there is enthusiasm for the new program—but from no other source. On the contrary, Democratic and independent newspapers, commentators and recognized authorities generally are almost unanimous in deploring the shallow and immature economics with which the scheme is buttressed and pointing out the pregnant fact that Mr. Roosevelt has already proved the spending policy does not work; that there isn't a chance of its working now; that while increased relief expenditures are unavoidable, the way to restore private initiative is not to turn on again the Federal spigots but to stop the leaks and move toward solvency.

It is impossible to avoid repeating that no one has more strongly indicated his present policy than Mr. Roosevelt himself. There are a dozen speeches, made when he was seeking the Presidency, in which he denounced exactly what he is now proposing. In the light of these things, his request for cooperation is an insult to the intelligence, and his effort to make it appear that those not boobish enough to swallow his unsound and unwholesome proposal are failing in their duty as citizens is absurd. It is on a par with the unctuous plea against bitterness and hate, coming from a man who has done more to stir up class feeling and promote hate than any other President we have had—and whose name calling of his critics and opponents has been unprecedented.

The fact that this spending program is launched just ahead of a political campaign in which he has a vital stake, and that more money for relief and public works in their districts is an almost irresistible temptation to members of Congress, who, in a few months, must come up for renomination and reelection—these facts, coupled with his own recorded views, lead some to quesion Mr. Roosevelt's sincerity. It is true, there is a strong political flavor about the whole messy idea, but it isn't necessary to quesion his sincerity. However, it does seem to come down to this: If he is sincere, then he certainly isn't wise; if he is wise, he can't be sincere. It's a matter of choice.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for April 24

RECEIVING VISION FOR SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9 2-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—This is my beloved Son: hear him—Mark 9 7.
PRIMARY TOPIC—On a Mountain with Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—With Jesus on a Mountain Top.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Worship Prepares Us for Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place and Purpose of Vision.

"Where there is no vision the people perish" said the wise man of old (Prov. 29:18). For want of a true vision of God, a knowledge of His truth, and the God-given constraint which makes men give themselves in sacrificial service, the people will perish in their sins. But let men come to know the truth as it is in Christ, learn to know Him as the Son of God glorious and powerful, and then let them translate their knowledge of Christian truth and their personal spiritual experiences into the daily ministry to the needs of their fellow-men, and there will be songs of salvation and joy.

The transfiguration of our Lord meant much to Him as it brought new assurance of His divine Sonship, His acceptance with the Father, and His resurrection to follow the death of the cross. We do well to recognize its testimony to Him, but we think today especially of the experience of the disciples and their preparation for service. We, like them, must

I. Know Christian Truth.

Fundamental in both Christian life and service is a clear understanding of the person and work of Christ. One may come to Christ knowing little more than that He is the divine Saviour, and one may enter into Christian living with a meager knowledge of the doctrines of the Bible. But the Christian who fails to grow in knowledge will not grow in grace as he should.

The disciples came to a fuller conviction that He was the Son of God as they saw Him transfigured and heard the Father say, "This is my beloved Son." They learned more plainly the truth of His coming death for the sins of all mankind. They saw in the indescribable beauty of that moment the foregleam of His coming glory. What important truths these are—His deity—His redemption—His coming kingship. Do we have a clear grasp of these truths?

II. Experience Spiritual Power.

Great experiences of spiritual renewing and power are necessary to effective life and testimony. They may not be in outward manifestation, in fact they are more often in the inner recesses of the soul, but they transform men and send them forth to magnificent living for God.

The disciples had an unforgettable mountain-top experience. Even so have many others found the secret of power. It came to D. L. Moody as he walked down a New York street, praying in agony, "Deliver me from myself. Take absolute sway." The story of what happened to him and through him as a surrendered instrument in God's hand is written large on the pages of history. Others had similar experiences. Let us remember that such privileges are not reserved for a few, they are the birthright of every Christian. Power without knowledge is a dangerous and destructive thing, but knowledge without power is a dead thing, resulting in a stale and unfruitful orthodoxy that in turn produces a dreadful and unchristian religious system. It is not enough to know the truth, to be able to discuss it, to divide it, and possibly to fight about it. Let us study God's Word, but let the truth be baptized in the overflowing spiritual power of a personal experience with God.

III. Serve Needy Humanity.

Dr. Moore beautifully suggests that Jesus and the disciples went up to the place of prayer, into the place of glory, and down to the place of service. How fitting is that sequence. Much confusion exists in the church because those who have foolishly abandoned their interest in the truth of God's Word and have substituted the energy of the flesh for spiritual power, have been most diligent in service to humanity, while those who know and accept the truth about Christ, and who profess to believe in the power of the Spirit-filled life have failed to serve their needy neighbors. How delightful and useful is the normal, well-rounded life of the true Christian, one equipped with an understanding of Christian doctrine, endued with Holy Ghost power, and humbly serving others.

Smiles

I am persuaded that every time a man smiles, but much more when he laughs, it adds something to this fragment of life.—Sterns.

Following After God

A heart rejoicing in God delights in all His will, and is surely provided with the most firm joy in all estates.

Patience a Virtue

Forbearing one another in love.—Ephesians 4:2.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

At a banquet in a nearby county the toastmaster who was to introduce the speaker stated: "I now wish to introduce Mr. Mart Hawkins of the soils and fertilizer bureau. He is full of his subject."

Some Smeller!

It happened while out riding Sunday with three children, ages three and four. Georgie had been having croup and he kept telling the others about it. The car passed a field which had been plowed recently and which had a heavy supply of fertilizer scattered over it, and it took only an instant for one's nose to tell you. Said Frannie, "It smells like you have the croup, Georgie."

It's quite amusing—or is it? During the past week many invitations were distributed in Oakland desiring the presence of the people receiving them at a cocktail party, which was held one evening this week.

Garrett county has laws against hard liquor and moonshine. Although I'm not an authority, I've never heard of cocktails made out of beer (which is a legal drink in this county now).

A lot of people are saying the place should have been raided. And then, wouldn't there have been surprises? Of course, after all, they could have meant fruit cocktails on the invitations.

Didn't Happen Here

Nothing like the following happened here, or could happen- but it is said that a minister in another town of an adjoining State, when he looked over his large audience on Easter morning, made the following statement: "I want to take this opportunity to wish you all a Merry Christmas, for I know it will be that long before I see many of you in church again."

Some Difference

The difference between sowing wild oats in the city and in the country is that the neighbors in the country know the size of the crop.

He Lived To Eat

The fattest man in the world died recently in Pocomoke City, this State. He weighed 700 pounds, was 35 years old, was 5 feet 5 inches tall, and lived in a special room.

His oversized bed was reinforced with steel braces. His father and his mother were both normal. His abnormal size was due to irregularities. He died as attendants endeavored to raise him from his bed to eat his dinner. His casket, as big as a car, had to be handled with a derrick. It required ten gallons of embalming fluid for him, while an ordinary being, it is said, requires two gallons.

At his last supper he ate a whole turkey and all the trimmings, three dozen eggs, scrambled; 2 dozen buns, 40 glasses of beer and one-half gallon of coffee.

As most anybody would agree, "that's some eatin'." One turkey leg always does me, without the scrambled eggs and buns.

More Questions—And Answers

Q. How can I prevent having soggy homemade bread?

A. Try buying baker's bread.

Q. How can I sew a button on a garment when it is subjected to excessive strain?

A. The usual procedure is with a needle and thread, unless you are left-handed.

Q. What is the best utensil to use for baking green peppers, apples or tomatoes?

A. A pan that doesn't leak.

Q. How can I prevent the buttonholes of a sweater from stretching?

A. Sewing 'em up has been known to help some.

Q. How can I remove the shell of a hard-boiled egg easily?

A. Depends on whether you mean before or after eating.

Stay Where You Belong

At this season of the year there are many people who become dissatisfied with their possessions, want to sell out and go some place else. When that notion strikes, be very, very sure that the place where you plan to settle is better than where you are at present.

Remember the farmer, disgusted with his place, turned it over to an agent for sale, and began reading advertisements in the paper about other farms on the market? And how he ran across one that according to the description was just the farm he had been looking for all his life? And how he told his agent to go after that farm before someone else grabbed it? And how the agent told him, "Ye durn fool, that's your own farm I'm advertising?"

That farmer had what he was looking for right at home.

That's the way we feel about Oakland and Garrett county. We take so much of our advantages for granted we can't even see them. But when strangers come here it doesn't take them long to realize that "we've got something here."

Spring is in the air. I want to get out on the back roads and in the woods. "All right," says the boss editor. "You can go any time—after 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon."

Spring, Harbinger of Prosperity

Depression, depression, we hear everywhere,
From neighbor, the paper and then on the air;
From morning till night, wherever we go—
To market, to church, or to a show.
Get up in the morning and list to the song
Of the beautiful robin as he hops along;
Get in touch with the beauties as nature doth sing,
Forget the depression, for this is Spring.

The Grantsville fire department responded to the call but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save it from destruction. Firemen, however, turned their attention to saving nearby buildings on the place.

Mr. Witzgall was in Grantsville at the time of the fire.

The local fire department was also called at 11:30 a. m., Saturday to the farm of Lloyd Bowser, near Bittinger. Fire originating in an implement shed, when a brooder stove ignited the building, spread to a nearby chicken house in which 200 fowls were penned. TAX RATE FOR OAKLAND TO REMAIN 60 CENTS PER $100

Taxable Basis of Town Increased $187,000 In Late Reassessment

That the city tax rate for Oakland would remain at 60 cents per $100 of assessable property, was announced Tuesday morning following a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening.

The assessable basis for the town is slightly more than $1,987,000, and this figure was taken from the county's assessment figure for real and personal property under the recent new assessment, which was completed a few months ago. The present figure shows an increase of more than $487,000, which will add approximately $3,000 to the tax receipts during the year, provided all taxes are collected.

"Had it not been for this increase," J. Frank Browning, clerk, stated, "it would have been necessary for the Council to raise the tax rate to 75 cents."

Council also awarded the contract for garbage collection and disposal to Noah Tasker on a monthly basis at $50 per month. Collections will be made for a week or two on the schedule that has prevailed throughout the winter months, on Wednesday and Thursday.

School Bus Transportation Now A Million Dollar Business

School bus transportation in Maryland has grown into a $1,000,000 business, according to the State Department of Education.

Reporting on the 1936-37 school year, Dr. Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, found that 52,250 pupils were transported by the counties at a cost of $1,019,872. Most of the increase has been since 1925 when only 4,341 pupils were transported in busses.

The expense of bus transportation has been counterbalanced by the combination of economy and improved education brought about by the consolidation of schools, Dr. Cook stated. School consolidation which makes bus transportation necessary brings a lowered per pupil instruction cost, a lower overhead for school operation and maintenance, a higher standard of teaching and more hygenic surroundings for pupils, it was stated.

LOCAL COCA-COLA PLANT IS NOW IN FULL OPERATION

Oakland's Newest Manufacturing Concern Began Production Latter Part of Last Week

BEST WISHES EXTENDED

Oakland's newest manufacturing plant is now in opration.

The Oakland Coco-Cola Bottling Works, Inc., with Charles M. Noel, manager, began production the latter part of last week and is continuing daily with hundreds of cases of manufactured soft drinks.

Construction of this plant was begun last July. The building is 60 by 116, constructed of steel, tile and brick with a slag roof.

The plant is located on Third street between Green and Center streets and is an added improvement to that section of Oakland. The ground surrounding the building has already been landscaped and a number of pines and many shrubs planted for beauty.

Inside the building is a spacious office with the remainder of the ground floor given over to the actual plant, with an ice machine, cardonator and a bottling machine capable of producing six hundred cases of Coca-Cola or other soft drinks daily. On the second floor, which is over the front part of the building only, there are storage rooms and a sanitary syrup room which is screened against insects.

Mr. Noel explained the process of the bottling machine, which cleanses the bottles thoroughly before being filled with liquid and capped.

The bottles are first inspected by an employe for anything which may have been stuffed into the neck. They then go thhrough a 4 percent caustic soda solution for five minutes, after which they go through a series of brushes, cleaning both outside and inside of the bottle. Several rinses of hot and cold water insure cleanliness. Before going to the point where the bottles are filled and capped, they are again inspected. Until the bottles are filled and capped they are not touched by human hands.

Twice daily bottles are tested after coming out of the bottling machine to see tha tno caustic soda solution remains inside. This is done to insure that the bottles are absolutely clean before being filled with the liquid.

The Oakland Coca-Cola Bottling Company, in addition to coca-cola, also manufactures nine other kinds of soft drinks. Five men are now employed at the plant.

Mr. Noel has extended an invitation to any persons interested to visit the plant during the next few months to inspect the building and see the machines in operation.

A number of business men of Oakland and elsewhere are extending congratulations and best wishes to the company through the medium of The Republican upon the occasion of the completion of the building and the beginning of their plant operations here. A picture of the new building is printed in The Republican today.

The tree has been donated by Mr. E. R. O'Donnell, from his nursery at Loch Lynn Heights.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

This five billion dollar spending program of the New Dealers is not designed to prime the pump so much as it is to pump the primary.

Sincere congratulations are due Dr. Henry W. McComas. He has completed fifty years' practice of medicine in Oakland and community. During that time he has not only ministered to the many ills of people, but has always been active in the welfare of the entire county and its people.

The British Surplus

The British fiscal year has closed with a surplus in the treasury of $143,930,000, which will be put into the rearmament program. Meanwhile the American deficit mounts. Canada's budget also was balanced recently.

Comment on the situation seems to be superfluous and reflection rather painful.

Ridder's Radio and Electric Company has been the recipient of a few telephone calls as the result of an advertisement appearing in another local paper. People, it seems, are always on the lookout for bargains. The advertisement read, "FOR SALE—Good cow; 1935 model; slightly used. Bargain."

WPA Foreman Goes Native

Workers on a WPA project the other morning thought they saw shades of some South Sea islander when the foreman presented himself for "work" with rouge on his cheeks and polish of a bright hue on his finger nails. I do not know whether the toenails were also gone over.

For the exposed paint job, however, the foreman was given a dressing down by those higher up.

Two people were passing the office door the other day when one of them spoke about the six dwarfs. "What about the seventh dwarf?" asked his companion. "Oh, Dopey is in the White House."

Dr. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, in a story on school bus transportation, states that consolidation has brought more hygienic surroundings for pupils.

When such transportation crowds children into buildings such as has been done in Garrett county schools, I don't believe the hygienic surroundings have been helped one bit. In both Oakland schools there are no more sanitary facilities for taking care of the needs of pupils than there were when there were only half as many attending as at present.

Conditions should be improved.

LOCUST GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bartholomew and Mrs. Margaret Vansickle, of Selbysport, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Burch.

Samual Wakefield entertained a singing class at his home on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Bertha Bishop is visiting relatives and friends in Morgantown, West Va.

A. L. Sines accompanied his brother Elijah Sines to his home here last Friday.

Mrs. C. C. Burch is suffering from an attack of rheumatism.

Emphasis Upon Suckers In New Deal Pump-Priming.

This bit of correspondence appeared in a recent issue of The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, and is passed on to the readers of The Republican:

Why did the President install a foreign-made pump, which has been a constant national liability?

Why doesn't he patronize home industries? Why buy a pump from a stranger when we have pumps made according to the specifications of our good old Constitution—pumps that will work without priming and without using so many suckers?

Why doesn't the President humble himself, acknowledge his mistakes and make an effort to correct them?

"THE PRESIDENTIAL PUMP"

Pump! Pump! Pump! Plunk!
This crazy new thing is making me flunk.
My hands are both blistered, I'm near to despair,
I can't make it work, I am getting nowhere.

I got this New Deal from a stranger one day;
He claimed it would work, he then went his way.
Ah, this will explain it, I see just now,
This new-fangled pump was made in Moscow.

I'd like to discard it, I know it's no good,
And get one that's made in U. S. if I could.
But if I should do this, then I must confess
To the nation who feeds me I've caused great distress.

Pump! Pump! Pump! Plunk!
This New Deal contraption is surely a flunk.
My friends, kindly help me to finish this rhyme,
I need six billion dollars (this cursed pump to prime).

CONGRATULATIONS—

The Republican joins with the many business men of Oakland this week in offering its congratulations to the Oakland Coca-Cola Bottling Works, Inc., upon the completion of its new manufacturing plant here.

We hope that the company will have the greatest of success in its endeavor here, as we hope for all other business enterprises in this community.

It is the hope of The Republican that the Coca-Cola plant's completion is just the beginning of an era of activity for Oakland. Other plants that employ labor, whether large or small, would be given a most hearty welcome.

Oakland can give advantages in pure water, a healthful climate, etc., that few other towns are able to furnish. In addition Oakland's men and women are courteous and show a most friendly spirit to those who come into the town as strangers.

It is to the detriment of those away from here that more people do not take advantage of what Oakland has to offer.

Sunday Services In Community Churches

Evangelistic Meetings Begin At Sand Flat On May 1st

Evangelistic meetings will begin at the Sand Flat Tabernacle, six miles north of Oakland, on Sunday, May 1. Emmit Vestal will be the evangelist. He is said to have been "Texas Slim," a converted gangster, and he tells of his deliverance from the hangman's rope and the electric chair and of his conversion while in prison. He says that crime does not pay. Mr. Vestal will speak twice on Sundays, at 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m., and each night during the week.

Red House Lutheran Parish
Rev. A. K. Jones, Pastor

The women of the Parish may attend the meeting announced for men Friday evening of this week at 8:00, and older folks may come to the young peoples' service Sunday evening. All our families are expected to attend the services Sunday morning at Red House. In these three services the pastor will emphasize some phase of the anniversary of the United Lutheran Church in America. Every effort is being made by the leaders of the Lutheran church to make this year long to be remembered by many Christian believers. Reviving the spiritual life, instructing the members in the art of soul-winning and presenting the vast opportunities God has given to serve the present age, will occupy the attention of all members and friends during the coming months. Dates for the presentation of the anniversary pageant and for the showing of the moving picture in the local church will be announced soon. "The Thunder of the Sea" should be seen by all. Special programs will be presented in St. Mark's church, Oakland, May 10 and 24. Leaders in the church will address these gatherings.

With maple syrup plentiful in Garrett county, we should always have on hand plenty of recipes for variety:

Maple Cake With Maple Cream Sauce

One-half cup butter, ½ cup granulated sugar, ⅞ cup maple syrup, 2¼ cups cake flour, sifted before measuring, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 3 egg whites, beaten stiff; one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream the butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. Blend in the maple syrup. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Add the dry ingredients alternately with the milk, beating well after each addition. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two greased and floured 8-inch square cake pans. Baking time, 30 minutes at 375 degrees F.

Maple Cream Sauce

One cup maple syrup, 1 cup whipping cream.

Cook syrup until it will spin a short thread when dropped from a spoon. Chill. Fold into the cream which has been whipped stiff.

Maple Muffins

Two cups flour, sifted before measuring, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup maple syrup, ¼ cup melted butter.

Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs with milk, maple syrup and butter. Stir in dry ingredients, stirring just enough to remove the lumps. Turn into greased muffin rings. Serve with maple syrup for breakfast. Temperature 450 degrees. Baking time, 20 minutes.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Herbert V. Leighton and John W. Lower vs. Walter W. Dawson, Administrator of the Estate of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and the unknown heirs of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased.
No. 3461 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The purpose of this suit is to obtain a decree for the sale of the real estate of which Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, died seized and possessed, for the payment of claims against her estate.

The bill states:—

That Elizabeth Buckman, in her lifetime, was indebted unto a number of persons on sundry accounts as shown by certified copy of the list of claims proved and passed in the Orphans' Court for Garrett County Maryland, and that being so indebted she departed this life during the month of March, 1936, intestate, leaving no known heirs; that letters of administration on the personal estate of the said Elizabeth Buckman were granted to Walter W. Dawson by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and after disposing of the personal property he applied the proceeds realized therefrom to the payment of funeral expenses and other small preferred claims, but that the personal estate was not sufficient to discharge all the debts against said decedent; that the said Elizabeth Buckman, at the time of her death, was the owner of Lot No. 1011 on the Plat of Mountain Lake Park, which was conveyed to her by a series of conveyances mentioned in the Bill of Complaint, and copies thereof filed with the same; that title to said property was vested in said Elizabeth Buckman as sole owner and out of this the plaintiffs now seek payment of the claims against her estate.

The bill then prays that the real estate as aforesaid of Elizabeth Buckman may be sold for the payment of all unsatisfied claims against said decedent, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against the said Walter W. Dawson and for an order of publication against the unknown heirs of said Elizabeth Buckman.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of April, 1938, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 13th day of May, 1938, give notice to the said defendants, to-wit, the unknown heirs of the said Elizabeth Buckman, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of May, 1938, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

MT. LAKE PARK

We are indebted to Mrs. Rachel Laughlin for an interesting evening of "Recollections." According to Mrs. Laughlin, the Park was purchased in the year 1881. The first camp meeting was held in 1882. Mountain Lake was at that time nearly all wooded. Restrictions were plentiful. Some of them would not do us much harm at the present time. For instance, it was necessary to have a permit to erect even a chicken coop. If a stable was built there were very strict laws governing the stated times or number of times when said stable and premises must be cleaned, and that was several times each week. There were many others, hut none sounded so good as the above mentioned. Wireless telegraphy was demonstrated at the first Chautauque held in the auditorium. Cottages were scattered and tents were plentiful.

Mrs. Laughlin and her husband, the late Dr. J. W. Laughlin, moved here from Deer Park and for some time resided in the Howell property or what is now known as the Enlow property. P. T. Garthright was the owner of Maryland Inn, which was later torn dowu and in its stead the homes of Mrs. D. M. Dixon and Mrs. I. D. Hill were built.

We believe, if all people tell us is true, that these old memories of Mt. Lake are interesting and we regret that for a time they have fallen down. However, there is promise of some very good stories to come later.

Watch fires while burning leaves.

The rumor that we spoke of some weeks ago regarding the Baltimore League has been verified—the League will not be here. Officials of the body have been here the past week and removed all property belonging to it. We repeat this because many people told us we were wrong at the time it was written for this column.

Don't forget the Boys' Band.

MOON ECLIPSE WILL BE TOTAL IN OAKLAND MAY 14

Darkest Period To Fall Between 3:18 And 4:09 In Morning

A total eclipse of the moon will be visible May 14 over North and South America, Australia and the Pacific Ocean.

The eclipse, first since July, 1935, will continue for 50 minutes beginning at 3:18 a. m. EST, according to calculation at Perkins Observatory, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, O.

Astronomers explained that the phenomenon, which has little scientific value, occurs when the sun and moon move directly opposite each other with the earth between.

As the eclipse becomes visible, the moon moves through the shadow cast by the earth opposite the sun. The so-called eclipse happens because the moon's visibility to the earth's inhabitants depends on the reflection of the sun's rays.

Chart Made For Eclipse

Log of the May 14 eclipse, based on Eastern Standard time, will be as follows:

12:44 a. m.—Light outer shadow of the earth begins to encroach upon the moon's disc.

1:57—Dark "umbra", or the main shadow of the earth rolls over the moon.

3:18—Total eclipse begins.

3:44—Midway point in eclipse.

4:09—End of total eclipse.

5:31—"Umbra" shadow leaves moon.

6:43—Light shadow, or "penumbra" leaves moon.

During the eclipse, the moon will be 247,000 miles from the earth, while the earth's shadow will extend 867,000 miles.

Moon To Grow Colder

Temperatures on the surface of the moon, normally about the boiling point of water, 212 degrees Fahrenheit, will drop by 300 degrees during the 50-minute shadowing.

As the total eclipse starts, the moon will be outlined faintly in dull, copper red like a huge penny in the sky. The red hue will become steadily duller until the middle of the shadow goes past. The reddish tinge, even during the supposedly total eclipse, is caused by the bending of sun rays around the surface of the earth by the refrection of the atmosphere, scientists said.

Because the moon in total eclipse will not pass directly through the center of the earth's shadow, the glow will be distributed unevenly with the greatest intensity on the southern edge.

Robert Emmons, student astronomer, predicted an eclipse of even longer duration will be visible November 7 from the American continents.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear father, Philip Thomas Bowman, who passed away one year ago on April 29, 1937:

One year it's been since you left us,
Tho it seems like many more;
It does not seem like going home
When you are there no more.

We long to hear your voice—
The voice we loved so well.
There is a vacant place at the table
That never shall be filled.

God only knows how we miss you
And your loving care;
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where you are laid.

God called you, dear father,
To His beautiful home on high;
May we be prepared to meet you,
For our time is drawing nigh.

Sadly missed by his children.
Mr. and Mrs. Harry McRobie and family.

Improvements Give Oakland An Attractive Movie House

With the completion of remodeling and enlargment of the Maryland Theatre, Oakland is now able to boast of a modern moving picture house, as comfortable and attractive as any in this section. This opinion has been expressed time and again within the past few days, and a close inspection of the theatre this morning by a representative of The Republican seemed to bear out these truths.

The remodeling began several weeks ago. B. I. Gonder, manager, had the stage moved back, giving room for five additional rows of seats across the front. A steel I-beam was placed across the center of the building to make it completely safe. The walls and ceiling were covered with celotex and paneled in an attractive manner.

New and upholstered seats were put in place, with more space between rows for the comfort of partons, and the additional space in front increased the capacity of the theatre to 500, including the balcony. "Everything possible was done to make people comfortable so they could really enjoy themselves while in the theatre," said Mr. Gonder. Even color was not neglected. New wall lights were installed that can reflect twelve different shades. On hot days one gets a blue or green combination to give an atmosphere of coolness, while in winter there will be a red or other warm color combination. These colors are changed about from week to week.

A new exit was made available to those in the front rows, new rugs were added in the aisles and out in the lobby. Final touches are yet to be added to the waiting room, but Mr. Gonder plans to fix up a comfortable room similar to those in larger theatres.

B. & O. Officials To Confer Here Monday Concerning Excursion

Mr. W. W. Grove, Cumberland, and Mr. Baugh, Baltimore, of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, will be in Oakland on Monday, May 9, to confer with Mayor L. M. Fraley about the excursion which the company will operate from Baltimore and Washington to Oakland on Sunday, June 5.

Plans are to be formulated for an automobile trip and also arrangements are to be made for those who desire to hike and for those who desire to ride bicycles.

A reception, similar to the one accorded those coming to Oakland on the camera fans' excursion last fall, is being planned by the Mayor and city council. Mayor Fraley stated he was trying to arrange for the excursionists to be here an hour longer than they were last fall, so that they would have more time to see the scenery.

CHANCES FOR COMMUNITY BUILDING AGAIN BOB UP

Possibility Discussed At Meeting Of The Mayor and Town Council; Mower Is Bought

OTHER MATTERS TAKEN UP

Discussion of a number of needs for the municipal golf course and the chances for a community building in Oakland, were two important items on the list of business for the regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening.

Interest in the proposed community building has grown in recent weeks and the possibility that one could be constructed of stone by WPA, with the balance of the funds needed being borrowed from the Federal Government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, without interest, has caused the Mayor and Counil to study the project more fully.

Although no definite action was taken, preliminary steps, such as drawing plans, etc., to submit a project to the WPA, were ordered made. As yet there is no property belonging to the town where such a building might be erected, but a suggestion was made several weeks ago by The Republican in an editorial, that the donation of such a plot of ground by some citizen would be an everlasting memorial to his generosity.

Needs of the municipal golf course were also discussed, these centering mostly around converting the barn on the property into a club house for the convenience of those who expect to frequent the course. Most of the work would be done by WPA labor. Council purchased three 30-inch mowers, to be used on the golf course, at a total cost of $385.00.

The tax rate was definitely set at 60 cents per $100 of assessable property.

The same city policemen as last year were appointed, W. D. Casteel being the day officer and B. B. Nethkin, night officer.

A permit was granted to C. E. Sharps to erect a new garage on his property facing on Third street.

It was reported the bridge on 4th street was almost completed.

An arrangement was made between Council and Prof. F. D. Bittle, principal of Oakland high school, to restrict traffic along Green street at the school building, during the time when school busses were either loading or unloading passengers. Mr. Bittle asked for the restriction to prevent possible accidents.

Council accepted the bid of Oakland Hardware and Furniture Company for shingles to rpeair the City Hall roof.

Monthly bills amounting to more than $1,200 were ordered paid, and Council then recessed until this evening when further discussion on city matters will take place.

For his third place score among seventy-eight boys in this contest Harley Wildesen won a bronze medal.

Mrs. Frances Matthews To Remain Oakland Postmaster

Mrs. Frances H. Matthews will remain Oakland's postmaster for another four-year term.

The President sent to the Senate on Monday for confirmation several postmaster nominations in Maryland, and among them was Mrs. Matthews.

It has been understood that several Democrats had been striving for the appointment for several months, not thinking that Mrs. Matthews might be williag to accept the appointment for aaother term. When this became known, however, the struggle among Democrats must have dropped to the minimum. Mrs. Matthews was the only applicant, according to the chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. Her present term expires May 31.

Body of Missing Store Manager At Davis Recovered from River

A trout angler on Tuesday hooked the body of Clarence J. Greaser, native of Kingwood, W. Va., missing since February 21, in the gorge below the Blackwater Falls, near Davis.

The fisherman's line became snagged while casting and in attempting to free the hook, brought the body to the surface. Officers at an inquest at Thomas, W. Va., said his death was "suicide."

Greaser, a grocery manager at Davis for about a year, was the object of widespread search after his car was found abandoned near the falls.

BOY AND GIRL SCOUTS PLANT COMMUNITY TREE

Ten-Foot Spruce Accepted For Citizens By Mayor Fraley

Boy and Girl Scouts of all Oakland troops, their leaders and a number of townspeople gathered on the Presbyterian church lawn last Saturday afternoon to witness the planting of Oakland's Community Tree.

The tree is a ten-foot spruce, donated by the O'Donnell nursery. Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley accepted the tree on behalf of the citizens of Oakland and congratulated the scouts on their fine civic spirit and their community service.

"I sincerely hope this tree will grow and when you boys and girls have grown to be men and women, you can look back and say to yourselves, 'I was one who had a part in creating this community center of Oakland', which I trust will never be disturbed," Mayor Fraley said.

A brief program, which had been arranged by the Scout leaders, was presented. The program included a prayer and songs.

The tree will be utilized as a community Christmas tree.

MRS. BUSH AND DAUGHTER INJURED IN ODD MISHAP

Former Falls From Car; Daughter Struck By Motor While Rendering Assistance

Mrs. Lewis Bush and her daughter, Miss Ora Bush, were seriously injured in an unusual accident while they were returning to Washington from a motor tour of Virginia last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Bush accidently opened the car door while the machine was in motion and fell out on the pavement. Her daughter rushed back to where her mother was lying and was struck by an automobile. Both are in a hospital in Warrenton, Va., with broken limbs and numerous cuts and bruises.

An account of the accident was brought to Oakland by Rev. C. A. Shilke who visited the injured in Warrenton on Tuesday.

Mrs. Bush and daughter, accompanied by her brothers, Harry, and Bert Shaffer, and her sister, Mrs. J. O. Lantz, and a Mrs. Cummings, were touring about Richmond, Va., over the week-end. Upon their return last Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock, near Warrenton, Mrs. Bush, riding in the front seat, started to close the window but accidently pushed the door lever. The door opened and she fell upon the paved road.

Upon bringing the car to a halt her daughter, Ora, rushed back to her assistance and while there was run down by a car, throwing her to the road also.

Both were rushed to the Warrenton hospital where it was found Mrs. Bush had a deep scalp wound, a fractured right arm above the elbow, and a broken bone above the left wrist. Miss Ora sustained a broken bone in her right leg, an injury to the knee, chest injuries and other bruises about the body.

Hospital authorities said that both were doing nicely and expressed hope for recovery of both, with Mrs. Bush making the more rapid gains. Mrs. Bush is past 80 years of age. She left Oakland last week with her daughter and sister to visit her brothers in Washington.

Camps Near Hutton Escape Forest Fire Monday

A serious forest fire, crossing the state line from West Virginia, burned over quite a lot of territory on Monday and narrowly missed consuming the buildings of Camps Minnetoska and Whitethorn, west of the Herrington Manor state forest.

The Oakland Fire Department was called and assisted fire fighters and members of the Swallow Falls CCC in getting the blaze under control and saving the camp.

Threatens To Jump In Lake

J. R. Runyan, of Mt. Lake Park, is being detained by authorities, pending an examination, followed alleged remarks which led people of the Park to believe he planned to jump in the lake there.

He was also said to have been in that vicinity for that purpose when persuaded to change his mind by Rev. H. O. Teagarden, who lives nearby. He was brought to local authorities on Tuesday where he is under observation.

DECREASE IN RELIEF IS SHOWN IN APRIL REPORT

Curtailment of General Public Assistance Funds Causes Commissioners to Cut Down

EXPENSES ARE REPORTED

Expenditures by the County Commissioners for general puhlic assistance during April showed a decrease of almost $300 over the previous month and indicated that with the falling off of relief funds, a determined effort was being made to bring relief expenses to a minimum.

A report from Mrs. E. Z. Tower, who is in charge of distribution of funds for general public assistance by the County Commissioners, showed that during April a total of $1,580.48 had been spent among 152 families. Pensioners received $488.60. Under direct relief were the following items: food, $1,009.30; clothing, $32.58; glasses, $7.00; medical, $8.00; clerical, $55.00. During March there was $1,862.33 expended.

A report was also made by Mrs. Tower showing expenditures from April 1, 1937, to April 1, 1938. The total for the entire year was $10,677.62. Almost half of this amount, $4,527.55, went to regular pensioners. Direct relief was distributed as follows: food, $4,577.40; clothing, $1,101.25; dental, $34.00; glasses, $144.75; medical, $119.31; transportation, $14.33; clerical, $129.03.

The Commissioners levied only $5,000 for general public assistance during the year, expecting sufficient funds from the state to make up the balance, but the taxes levied by the legislature did not raise the sum expected and a check for $1,800 was received from the State with the explanation that this sum was all that could be expected for the next eleven months.

The Commissioners stated this week at their regular meeting, that they were cutting down on relief wherever possible.

This county is the only county in the state where general public assistance funds are handled by the County Commissioners. In other counties these funds are handled by the county welfare boards.

The Garrett County Welfare Board handles funds for old-age pensions, aid to dependent children, and aid to the needy blind, but has nothing to do with general public assistance.

RELIGIOUS PICTURE WILL BE SHOWN HERE MAY 19

Sound Film, "Thunder of the Sea" To Be Given in Lutharan Church

It has been acclaimed by critics as being a most dramatic and most unusual production.

The service has been arranged by Julius Renninger, Jr., chairman of special services, as a part of the participation of St. Mark's congregation in the Lutheran Anniversary appeal. The film will be shown in the church.

Lesson for May 8

CO-OPERATING IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:30-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—For he that is not against us is on our part.—Mark 9:40.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When We Want to Be First.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Not in Our Class.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working with Others for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Co-operating in Service.

That there is strength in united and co-operative effort is a truth so obvious that in the affairs of the home and of the office we would not attempt to make progress with "a house divided against itself." But with strange and destructive inconsistency some who are engaged in the propagation of the Christian faith, and often the very folk who speak much of love and fellowship and sacrificial service, fight one another with cunning and often bitterness of spirit, and all in the name of Christ whom they profess to serve.

No one who is awake to the real issue involved would ask any true believer to co-operate in Christian work with those who, while holding the name and outward symbols of the followers of Christ, deny His deity and His Word. But surely there is need for loving co-operation between all those who truly love the Lord, who believe in Him and in His Word.

I. A Dispute by the Way (vv. 30-34).

Jesus had taken His disciples from the Mount of Transfiguration by secluded roads through Galilee so that He might instruct them in the all-important truths regarding His death and resurrection. One could hardly conceive of a more propitious arrangement for their growth both in knowledge and grace. Did they profit by it? No; they not only did not understand what He told them but they used their time to dispute "among themselves who should be the greatest" (v. 34).

Possibly James, Peter, and John were a bit puffed up by their experience on the Mount, or perhaps the others were jealous because Jesus had taken them with Him. Or perchance it was just another unprovoked expression of the sinful pride that is so close to the surface of the human heart and mind.

II. An Example of Humility (vv. 35-37).

"True greatness . . . consists not in attaining the first place in the notice and praise of the world, not in being served by many, but in being willing to stoop down to a humble place, not for the sake of self-effacement, not in timid diffidence, but in order to serve others for the sake of Christ" (Erdman).

Note carefully that it is the receiving of a little one in the name of Christ that brings to us the glory of His presence with us. Every deed of kindness and love is commendable and has its own reward, but there is a vast difference between it and humble service in the name and for the glory of Christ.

III. A Lesson in Co-operation (vv. 38-41).

John, quick to apprehend spiritual truth, sees in the teaching of Christ concerning the little child the condemnation of something he had done. "'If indeed it be true that to receive a child, an ordinary everyday child, is to receive Christ, and to receive God,' said John within himself, 'what did I do when I forbade that man who in the Name was casting out a demon?' Verily, the light had broken in upon him."

The man who casts out demons, or who gives the disciple of Jesus a cup of water, in His name—that is with true faith in Christ, and in His power, and for His glory—must be a believer. He may not belong to our group or circle, he may not speak our language, he may not use our methods, but if he is serving Christ we should not forbid him or speak evil of him. God has at times called a man to witness for Him, who has done so in a manner distasteful to others, and these in turn have aligned themselves against him and hindered his full usefulness in the gospel. One of the great evangelists of the last generation used methods which shocked many church folk. They stood against him, and yet that man was used to win hosts of business and professional men that the church had scarcely touched, into earnest Christian testimony and service which continues to this day. You and I may not like one another's appearance, or voice, or methods, but let us love and co-operate with one another for Christ's sake!

Baking Soda For Cleaning

Other than the many uses already given to baking soda it has been recommended for cleaning the following:

Bread Boxes—Bread boxes may be kept sweet and clean by frequently washing with soap and water, then rinsing with baking soda solution, 3 tablespoons of baking soda to a quart of water. Rinse in clean water and dry thoroughly.

Ash Trays—To remove the disagreeable odor of stale tobacco, clean ash trays with a baking soda solution, three tablespoons to a quart of warm water, or with a damp cloth sprinkled with baking soda. Rinse and dry.

Coffee Pots—Good coffee can only be made in a clean pot. To remove the brown stain, wipe out frequently with a dampened cloth sprinkled with baking soda, rinse well, then dry. If badly stained, fill coffee pot with a baking soda solution, three tablespoons to a quar tof water, boil 5 to 10 minutes until the stain is removed. Rinse, then dry. Use only a cool baking soda paste on aluminum ware.

Enamel Surfaces—Enameled table tops, stoves, washing machines, refrigerators, etc., may be cleaned either by sprinkling baking soda on the dampened surface and rubbing, or by washing with a baking soda solution, a handful to a basin of water. This removes the oil or surface film which holds the dirt and leaves the surface clean and odorless.

Silver Cleaning—An easy and thorough method of cleaning silver is to boil it in an aluminum pan with baking soda, salt and sugar, or in an enamel pan with baking soda, salt, sugar and a small piece of aluminum, such as a measuring spoon or pot cover. Use a handful of each, baking soda, salt and sugar to a good sized pan of very hot water. Select a large container for convenience. Place the silver in such a way that it is completely immersed and that each piece comes in contact with the aluminum or a piece of silver touching the aluminum. Keep immersed until the tarnish disappears and the silver becomes bright and shiny. This will not take more than a few minutes. Repeat if necessary. Rinse in hot water and dry immediately.

Refrigerators—Baking soda will keep your refrigerator clean and sweet at all times, whether it is an electric, oil, gas or ice refrigerator. Clean it inside and outside with a damp cloth sprinkled with baking soda, or wash it with a baking soda solution, a handful to a basin of water. Each week wash the ice trap with a similar baking soda solution. This prevents the development of stale and musty odors in the ice cubes. Clean the drains and pipes of ice refrigerators with baking soda solution to prevent clogging, the development of odors and the growth of bacteria.

Odors—Strong odors, such as onion and fish odors may be quickly and thoroughly removed from hands or dishes by rubbing with a paste made of baking soda and water or sprinkling with baking soda and rubbing well. Wash in the usual manner.

SOME OF THE EARLY LAND SPECULATORS IN GARRETT

GOVERNOR THOMAS JOHNSON

Thomas Johnson is of interest to us, not only because of his extensive land holdings in Garrett county, but also because of his long and valuable services to the State during and after the Revolutionary War.

Thomas Johnson occupied the position as the first Governor of Maryland his election coming following the Revolution when the Maryland Colonists became free of the British yoke.

The Johnson ancestry traces to James Johnson, one of the two bailiffs of Yarmouth, England, in the year 1590. His son, Thomas Johnson I, in 1625, was a member of the famous "Short Parliament" of England.

Thomas Johnson II was a captain in the Parliamentary Army during the rebellion against King Charles I, but after the execution of the King, Captain Johnson went over to the Royalists.

Thomas Johnson III married Mary Baker, then a ward in chancery, without the consent of the Lord High Chancellor.

"Inasmuch as abduction and marrying of maids in Chancery constituted a high misprison, punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment as a contempt of Court, Johnson decided to flee with his bride from England."

So they came to Maryland in 1690 and settled in Calvert county. In Maryland, Johnson soon became involved in Colonial politics, espousing the cause of King James against William of Orange. He was arrested, brought before the Colonial Council and required to give bail. He appears to have broken bail and to have fled to the Indians, with whom he lived and traded for some years. Finally Johnson sailed for England with a cargo of furs, but the vessel was captured by Spaniards and those on board were robbed and imprisoned.

Thomas Johnson finally escaped and landed in Canada in a destitute condition. He walked all the way to Maryland, only to find his cabin burned by Indians, his wife dead from anxiety and grief. Wrecked by exposure and exhaustion, he, too, soon died.

Thomas Johnson IV, only son of the immigrant, was born in 1702, and was left an orphan at the age of twelve. He was cared for by friends and was well educated. At the age of twenty-three he married Dorothy Sedgwick, and soon after was sent to the Colonial Assembly as a Delegate from Cecil county. He was re-elected from year to year until about the time of the birth of his distinguished son and namesake—

Thomas Johnson V. He was born in Calvert county, November 4, 1732, the year his friend, George Washington, was born in nearby Virginia.

Thomas was the fifth of twelve children. At an early age he was sent to Annapolis and was given employment in Lord Baltimore's Land office, where he doubtless developed his first interest in the lands of Western Maryland. Soon he began the study of law and was in due time admitted to the bar.

At the age of twenty-nine Thomas Johnson V took his seat as a Delegate from Anne Arundel county in the Provincial Assembly, thus beginning a career in public life which covered a period of thirty-nine years—a career which, for length, versatility and importance of services—is unparalleled in the annals of the State.

Space does not permit us to list all his public services. Suffice it to note that he was a leading revolutionist, and, as a member of Congress, nominated Colonel Washington for Commander of the Revolutionary Army. In 1777, Colonel Johnson commanded the famous Maryland "Flying Camp," and in the same year he was chosen first Governor of his State, serving three years.

After the Revolutionary War, Governor Johnson made his home in Frederick county, where he continued active in public and private life. He was interested in the development of the navigation of the Potomac and in 1789 succeeded Washington as president of the Potomac Company.

Thomas Johnson married Ann Jennings, of Annapolis. They were the parents of seven children, two of whom—Thomas J. and Joshua—settled in what is still known as the Johnson District of Garrett county.

"The aged patriot," writes a historian, "finally slept way at Rose Hill Mansion in the 87th year of his age, on Tuesday morning, October 26, 1819."

His remains now rest in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Frederick.

The Johnson Lands

When Lord Baltimore opened his lands "Westward of Fort Cumberland" in 1771, Thomas Johnson, Jr., (later Governor), became one of the early speculators in these lands.

He surveyed and patented "Thomas and Ann," 2000 acres, so named for himself and wife, Ann Jennings. He also patented "The Promised Land," 1200 acres. These tracts are located northwest of Oakland on or near the old McCullough Pack Horse Path.

When General Washington passed this way in 1784, he wrote in his Journal:

"Part of these glades is the property of Govr. Johnson of Maryland, who has settled two or three families of Palatines (Germans) upon them."

Johnson also surveyed and patented "Peace and Plenty," 1500 acres, near Deer Park.

A younger brother, Baker Johnson, at the same time (1774) surveyed "Covent Garden," 2240 acres, and Mt. Pleasant," 1000 acres, in the southern end of the county, and "Kindness," 2072 acres, at Hutton. None of these lands were patented until after the War, in 1786.

Governor Johnson continued to acquire land in what is now Garrett county. In th eroll of 1798 he was assessed with over 25,000 acres, and Baker Johnson was assessed with over 6000 acres.

One of the big land deals in the early history of our county was the transfer in 1814, for $10,000, from a group of Philadelphia merchants to Thomas Johnson, of 14,800 acres, including "Spruce Spring," and 296 Military Lots—land in the northeast section of the county, the Johnson District. This large tract had been deeded by Thomas Johns to the Philadelphia people in 1795. Robert Morris, who helped to finance the Revolution, was interested in this land deal.

The Johnsons In Garrett County

Joshua Johnson, son of the Governor, inherited from his father extensive tracts of land, and in 1796 he moved from Frederick county to what is known as the Johnson Farm on the National Road, in Johnson District. He borrowed $2,000 from his brother, Thomas J. Johnson, to build a house and begin farming; but Joshua Johnson was "land poor" and failed to pay the debt, so about 1840 Thomas J. Johnson gave up his iron furnace in Frederick county and moved on the Johnson farm.

Thomas J. Johnson, Sr., owned a large hotel on the Johnson farm, located on the site of the present frame dwelling. The History of Allegany county says:

"Thomas Beall kept a tavern at the foot of Little Savage Mountain in 1830. He was succeeded by Thomas J. Johnson, who entertained his guests by playing a fiddle, and he had a Negro man who danced to the music for their further delectation."

The Johnson property here was well timbered with white pine, hemlock and other trees, and in 1853, when Joshua died, there were two saw mills on the estate which then contained 14,175 acres.

Joshua Johnson was a bachelor until late in life, and had no children. His property was inherited by his brother, Thomas J., who died at the farm in 1875.

Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., who was born in 1847, resided on the Johnson Farm until 1936, when it was sold out of the family. Mr. Johnson, now in his 91st year, resides at Grantsville, the only surviving grandchild of Maryland's famous first Governor.

Mr. Johnson has always been identified with the Democratic organization in Garrett county and as a member of that party he was honored in 1889 by being elected a member of the Board of County Commissioners. In 1916 he became a member of the Garrett County Board of Education and since his term in that office expired he has been a member almost continuously of the Board of Registration in his home district. Mr. Johnson also served during the World War as a member of the draft board.

MOTHER

Reprinted from The Republican of May 8, 1930.

"Backward, turn backward,
Oh time, in your flight,
Make me a child again,
Just for tonight."

Many times we have wished we could shut out the cares of the world and like tired children when the day is done lay our tired head in Mother's loving arms and pour forth as in babyhood our perplexities of the day, then kneel by her side, feel her hand on our head as we pray: "Now I lay me down to sleep."

"Mother," that dearest of all names to our lips—a name all have the right to utter, as we have all had mothers, and we love her best of all. Why not? Her love was ours before we were born. She planned, sacrificed, and suffered as we who have become mothers only can realize.

We love our babies. We never grow weary of caring for them and as we work we dream of their future and plan and save, giving up our social pleasures—sacrificing everything so that our children will be well cared for and happy.

We watch and fear as the little toddling feet go so uncertainly about and then stumble and fall. Then as they come to young manhood and young womanhood we fear the more for their safety, for there are so many snares for the youth of today.

They don't realize that mother knows best. So we pray and plead and do all the more to protect and shield them from harm.

Pity, oh, pity that mother who fails and broken-hearted goes to her grave, but blessing and comfort to the mother who wins and who in her declining years can look with pride and joy on her children who have proven true and loyal to "Mother."

A MOTHER.

NOW IS THE TIME—

Interest is again running high on the possibility of a community building. It has been pointed out that such a building could be constructed without any appreciable expense to the town through WPA labor and a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, without interest. Two per cent of the loan would be paid back annually, which would amount to three hundred or four hundred dollars each year.

Even these payments might be taken care of by the Oakland Fire Department, which organization is anxious to have more desirable quarters, and which receives $2,300 annually from the town and county.

The proposed building would have on the street floor space for the fire department, city offices, organizations, and possibly the library, with the second floor with an ample auditorium for gatherings of all kinds, basketball and other activities.

Before any definite project can be worked out, there must be a place upon which this community building can be erected. The town has no suitable site and no money with which to purchase one.

Several weeks ago The Republican suggested that ground be donated by some public spirited citizen, as a memorial, perhaps naming the community building after the donor.

If there ever was a time for action, now is the time.

Is there such a citizen in this town?

POTATO GROWERS, VOTE—

Reports from the Agricultural Department at Washington are that potato growers in Maryland will vote some time this month on whether they want the Federal Government to regulate marketing of this year's crop.

The referendum is to be conducted in the principal potato producing counties in thirteen states of the United States including Maryland.

When the notice of such a meeting comes to the potato producers they should make it a point to take enough time off to attend and vote. According to John H. Carter, county agent, if two-thirds of those voting favor Government regulation (not two-thirds of the farmers eligible to vote), then there will be Government regulation.

The producers can stop this Government regulation of their products if they will get out and vote. But if they stay at home and leave it up to their neighbor to vote the proposition down, the chances are that their neighbors will have no responsibility either, and the majority of those voting will favor such regimentation.

If farmers want to stop the Government from interfering too much in their private affairs, it will be to their interest to get out and vote—and vote against Government regulation. If farmers want the Government to tell them just what they can raise, how they can raise it, what they must sell their products for, and place a penalty upon those who might happen to raise a bushel or a peck more than their quota, then they had better vote for it.

But if our picture of the farmer of Garrett county is near correct, it is a foregone conclusion as to what they will do. They will get out and vote against such regulations and preserve their freedom.

How Much More?

To the Editor of The Republican.

There seems to be no sufficient program in action to stop the New Deal. Therefore, it should be worth while for those who believe the principles of our present government are unsound and unAmerican to inquire into the extent of their operation. When can we expect these so-called emergency measures to stop of their own accord?

The extra activity of our government is like that of England, Mexico and France that this weed of misbehavior does seem to be rather far-flung.

We often hear of the revolutionary measures of these other governments as being socialistic or even communistic. If this is true we probably have a good measure of the same thing.

The term state socialism began to gain considerable space in the newspapers concerning foreign affairs back in the Hoover administration. Socialism probably got its wheels about the time of the beginning of the dole in England and the respective raise in income taxes and inheritance taxes in that country. Soon the French government was digging capital and industry. After this it became quite contagious.

A certain element of people had seen a situation of discontent and with the words of the pacts of communism on their lips they went out to harvest the fruit. This movement was held out of the United States until Mr. Hoover was railroaded out of his public support. Then it came like thunder and lightning.

In a socialistic state the government would own or control all industry. Although our present government is not actually a complete socialist government, it is a socialist government at heart, and considering the age, the growth and extent of this movement it is a thing to be feared.

The taking over of the ownership and control of industry by governments of other countries where it has begun is not slacking. Neither is it slacking in the United States. One step toward socialism has never been sufficient in itself. It merely leads to another step.

The business heads of this country do not believe the New Deal is about to stop. This was shown when the Reorganization Bill was defeated. The stock market merely went up a couple of points and in two or three days it was back down. Business men know there have been too many people bullyragged into accepting some small crumbs from the government table.

Until business men see a norganized majority on the side of constitutional business in the remaining democratic countries business in these countries will not move forward.

If in a reasonable length of time the business systsm has not again been made secure in the democratic countries we can expect capital to move into the fascist countries where business obligations are upheld and where police protection is sufficient.

A fascist nation is basically a military nation. If these nations get sufficient capital they will override the democratic nations. We must not allow New Dealism to find its own destiny.

LEWIS M. WILDMAN.
Mt. Lake Park, April 30.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

War was declared to exist between the United States and Spain. Commodore Dewey had just destroyed the Spanish fleet at Manilla Bay.

At Mt. Lake Park only twenty houses were not rented. They were planning for 22 days of Chautauqua there in August.

Methodism in Garrett county was important. Minutes of the M. E. Conference showed that the Deer Park circuit had 351 members in two churches. The Friendsville circuit of six churches had 342 members; the Grantsville circuit had 222 members in four churches, with the Oakland and Mt. Lake Park charge having 358 members. The pastor got $1,050.

The capital stock of the Enterprise Tanning company, at Hutton, was increased from $30,000 to $50,000.

There were 104 enrolled in the Oakland Normal school.

At the City Council meeting plan presented for grading the streets and laying the water mains.

The paper mill at Luke had closed, being unable to obtain a sufficient supply of sulphur which was necessary in the manufacture of paper. A barge of five hundred tons was enroute from Sicily, but it was feared the Spanish would seize it as contraband of war.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Up to May 2 Garrett county had furnished in enlisted and selected men a total of 297 for service in the World War.

The Garrett County Creamery was sold to the Imperial Ice Cream Company. A condenser, a pasteurizer, and other machinery was to be added.

The third Liberty Loan campaign in the county raised $313,200, nearly double the quota.

A great many anglers were out, but few fish were caught.

Officers of the Garrett County Fair Association were Henry M. Speicher, president; Wade H. Hinebaugh, Oakland, vice-president; T. A. Gonder, secretary; Henry Lauer, treasurer.

Prizes amounting to $25,000 were to be distributed in Maryland in an effort to stimulate production of foodstuffs during the coming season.

Test holes were being drilled opposite Bayard, W. Va., in District No. 8, to ascertain the location of coal deposits. The town was booming. Where there were 600 residents just a short time before, there were at this time 1200.

Just prior to the adjournment of the General Assembly, Senator Harvey J. Speicher, minority floor leader, was presented with a silver pitcher by his colleagues in the Upper House.

APRIL MARRIAGE TOTAL GOES TO NEW HIGH RECORD

216 Are Granted During Month. And Is Highest For Period

For marriage license records to be broken is becoming the usual rather than the unusual thing in Oakland, and it happened again during April when 216 permits were issued in the month. The biggest month previous to that had been August, 1937, when 205 were granted.

Thus far during the year 600 licenses have been issued, the number being 162 greater than for the same period last year.

Included in the April total were 111 couples from West Virginia, 57 from Pennsylvania, 21 from Maryland, and one member of the eighteen additional couples came from one of the three states mentioned.

During the past week ending Monday afternoon 44 licenses were issued. Seventeen of these were granted on Saturday; seven were marked not to be published, while three applicants were refused.

THE THREE CASKETS

Ilene Martin

Fair Portia's father, in his will, did provision make
That not one man in the world could his daughter take Until he chose one of three caskets—
silver, lead or gold,
Which did the beautiful likeness of fair Portia hold.

The suitor must promise that if he failed never would he wed
Nor tell which casket 'twas he chose—silver, gold or lead.
From far and near many suitors came beautiful Portia to woo,
But when they learned the casket case, away again they flew.

"Who chooseth me shall gain what men desire," was written on the gold;
"Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserves," was what the silver told;
"Who chooseth me must give and hazard all he hath," was the warning of the lead.
Now in which casket was the picture and who would Portia wed?

The first to choose from the caskets was the Prince of Morocco,
But he proved unsuccessful, and away
he chad to go,
For he chose not the silver nor did he choose the lead—
He hoped that by the gold his fortune would be bred.

The Prince of Aragon was the next to risk his fate,
But he, too, must hasten away from the chanceful gate,
For he thought he certainly deserved
a lady wise and fair,
But when he opened the silver casket
his fortune lay not there.

Then from Venice came Bassanio, whom Portia had known;
They had become acquainted and fond of each other grown.
Carefully he studied each casket and finally he chose the lead—
Bassanio did chose correctly and did fair Portia wed.

RELIEF SITUATION THRU MARYLAND IS DISCUSSED

Garrett County Chairman Attends Meeting In Baltimore On Monday

Delbert Davis, chairman of the Garrett County Welfare Board, was the only representative from here attending a conference of County Commissioners and welfare authorities in Baltimore on Monday, called by J. Milton Patterson, executive secretary of the Board of State Aid and Charities.

The discussion, according to Mr. Davis, centered around a summary report gathered by the state charities board, showing that failure of the State's special relief tax program to produce needed revenues had resulted in grave shortage of direct relief funds in Baltimore City and many counties.

None of the regular welfare categories, old age pensions, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind, was involved in the funds crisis. The principal problem was how to care for unemployables who do not fall into any of the existing classifications and must be cared for through direct assistance.

It was also urged that funds in the future be distributed on the basis of need, and not on a population basis, as has been done up to the present time.

A general discussion of the problem produced an apparent agreement that the welfare board officials would in a majority of cases be forced to request their county commissioners to levy for direct relief.

Garrett county commissioners administer general relief and are the only ones in the state doing so. They were not present at the Baltimore meeting on Monday and a question about conditions up here brought a reply from the county chairman here that "relief was a Chinese puzzle."

There will be a child guidance clinic, also available to adults, on Monday, May 16, with a specialist from the Springfield State hospital in charge.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Mr. Lewis's Gamble

Washington, April 23.

Stripped of its extraordinary local issues, which seem to get steadily uglier and meaner all the time, the Democratic primary fight in Pennsylvania has very great national interest. Nothing quite like it has taken place in the country before. It isn't really a struggle between factions of the Democratic party—it's a struggle between factions of organized labor with the so-called Democratic bosses playing secondary roles and their once overwhelming machine split asunder.

The basic facts are somewhat obscured by the mud with which the more conspicuous figures on both sides are being smeared. As a pleased Republican remarked: "The Democrats are beginning to tell the truth about each other." Certainly some surprising things are coming out—among them that Governar Earle, than whom no one has echod more loudly the Rooseveltian denunciations of business men, borrowed a good many thousands of dollars from Mr. McClosky, the contractor, who later received a good many million dollars' worth of contracts from Governor Earle's State Authority. From the national angle, however, the important thing is that Mr. John L. Lewis has abandoned his pose as the power behind Senator Guffey and has made it plain that Senator Guffey is his political vassal rather than ally. He stands out in the open today as Mr. Guffey's boss. By forcing upon that gentleman a complete C. I. O. ticket and swinging him away from his friend, Mr. Earle, he has made it clear that Mr. Guffey's part is to follow, not lead. Mr. Guffey being more closely identified politically with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley than any politician in the country, to a certain extent this puts the Administration in the position of following, too.

No labor leader has ever been able to do this sort of thing publicly to a United States Senator; nor to a national Administration. The fury of the battle is such that it is difficult for the voters to see clearly, but it ought to be plain that Mr. Lewis is making a great political gamble for a very high stake. If he loses, his stature and influence will be greatly diminished; if he wins, he is immediately in a position of extraordinary power, which can be extended in various directions. This is true if his ticket is successful only in the primaries. He would then own the dominant party machine in the State and be in position to name the seventy-two delegates to the next Democratic National Convention. But, if he wins in the primaries and then elects his candidates, he will own not only the machine but the State. He will have as his creatures both United States Senators, the Governor and the Legislature. In that event he could—and would—his labor intimates say, launch a movement for a real National Labor party along British labor lines.

He is, they say, not in the least interested in either the Democratic or the Republican party, or in the New Deal or Mr. Roosevelt. A complete victory in Pennsylvania will give him the prestige and power necessary to change labor's role in politics from that of a pressure group to a genuine national party, whose appeal, as in England, would not be confined exclusively to the labor voters but be rather general. The American Labor party in New York, now little more than a pressure group, could be promptly expanded and Mr. Lewis thus start off with his new party well intrenched in the two largest States.

A good deal of this seems fanciful and none of it may develop. Nevertheless, it happens to be a fact that it is the political dream cherished at the moment by Mr. Lewis's particular labor advirers and friends, and it undauhtedly will take on some substance should a complete victory come to him in Pennsylvania. Evidence that the potentialities of a Lewis triumph in the State are understood is given in the determined opposition of the A. F. of L. faction, which will strain every effort to defeat the Lewis ticket in the primary, or, failing that, in the general election. It simply cannot afford to let him get away with it.

We desire in this manner to express our thanks and appreciation to those who were so kind and helpful during the illness and following the death and burial of our dear daughter and wife. We wish also to thank those who sent flowers and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral ervice.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Herbert V. Leighton and John Lower vs. Walter W. Dawson, Administrator of the Estate of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and the unknown heirs of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased.

No. 3161 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The purpose of this suit is to obtain a decree for the sale of the real estate of which Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, died seized and possessed, for the payment of claims against her estate.

The bill states:—

That Elizabeth Buckman, in her lifetime, was indebted unto a number of persons on sundry accounts as shown by certified copy of the list of claims proved and passed in the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and that being so indebted she departed this life during the month of March, 1936, intestate, leaving no known heirs; that letters of administration on the personal estate of the said Elizabeth Buckman were granted to Walter W. Dawson by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and after disposing of the personal property he applied the proceeds realized therefrom to the payment of funeral expenses and other small preferred claims, but that the personal estate was not sufficient to discharge all the debts against said decedent; that the said Elizabeth Buckman, at the time of her death was the owner of Lot No. 1011 on the Plat of Mountain Lake Park, which was conveyed to her by a series of conveyances mentioned in the Bill of Complaint, and copies thereof filed with the same; that title to said property was vested in said Elizabeth Buckman as sole owner and out of this the plaintiffs now seek payment of the claims against her estate.

The bill then prays that the real estate as aforesaid of Elizabeth Buckman may be sold for the payment of all unsatisfied claims against said decedent, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against the said Walter W. Dawson and for an order of publication against the unknown heirs of said Elizabeth Buckman.

IT IS THEREUPON This 11th day of April, 1938, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 13th day of May, 1938, give notice to the said defendant, the unknown heirs of the said Elizabeth Buckman, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23th day of May, 1938, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

POINT SYSTEM IS TO BE INAUGURATED NEXT YEAR

Will Determine a Student's Eligibility for a School Letter

A point system has been adopted by the Student Council of Oakland High School as a means of determining a student's eligibility for a school letter. It will not, however, be adopted until next year as the seniors would not have a fair chance. This system is in a great part copied from the method used at Beall High school in Frostburg.

Contrary to a previous method, the selection is not based on athletic accomplishments alone, but also on Acorn and library work, grades, club membership, Student Council membership, taking part in programs, and various other activities.

The greatest number of points goes to the president of the Student Council, next, the editor of The Acorn, and next in order of importance the school treasurer, secretary of the Student Council, assistant editors of The Acorn, business manager of The Acorn and librarian in charge, and so on down to the home room and class officers who are lowest. Awards for the orchestra and Glee Club are based on the number of special performances given, and for the honor roll and all A's on report card, or the number of terms these marks have been maintained.

MARYLAND'S HIGHWAYS

By HARRY W. NICE,
Governor of Maryland.

Continuing its three years of unfair criticism, based entirely upon partisanship, the bitter partisan press of Maryland now states that I am using, as an alibi for what I do, the fact that it had been done by the preceding administration, and suggests that Governor Ritchie has provided we with a keynote for all that I do. It attempts to create the impression that, in connection with roads and other matters, such as diversion of gasoline tax, I am repeating, as an alibi, the refrain that what I do is right because Governor Ritchie did it.

Its criticism of what I have done and am doing, is unjust and unfair, misleading, as well as illogical, in the light of the fact that, when Governor Ritchie so acted, this section of the press was nauseating in the lavishness of its praise of the very same acts when performed by him. It speaks flippantly of two dollar tags, and unjustifiably and hypocritically excuses the more than three million dollar deficit as found by me when I came into office. It does, after all, make a difference as to whose ox is gored. I shall in a later paper deal with the two dollar tag question.

Knowing the people of this State to be fair minded and just, I am convinced that they are getting well fed up with this sort of partisan vituperation. In dealing with the State Roads situation, no one, not even a partisan press, can accuse me of following the former administration into sixteen years of waste, extravagance and inexcusable neglect of the roads system of Maryland, to say nothing of the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars of the people's money, as brought out through the larceny trials of a few years ago and known as the Roads Scandal.

No fair-minded man or woman can or does expect me, in the short period of three years, completely to undo the evil and correct the deplorable condition of the roads system due to inefficiecy, neglect and extravagant wastefulness of the previous sixteen years. First, let me discuss the condition of the roads as we found them; second, what we have done; and third, that which we are endeavoring to do.

I found the roads of Maryland, when we took charge, to have fallen from first place to almost that of last place among th eroads system of the Nation. I found the county roads to be in such an intolerable condition that in some instances it was necessary to bring the dead out on the backs of mules, and that most of the county roads were utterly impassable during the winter months. I found the main highway system to be narrow, winding and unscientifically built. I found that the preceding Commission had loaned to the United Railroads almost a half million dollars while the company was insolvent. I found that the preceding Commission had left on my doorstep bills payable to the extent of almost another half million dollars.

I received, in March, 1935, a report from Mr. Abel Wolman, of the State Planning Commission, to the effect that our roads system was then inadequate; that there was need for a long term plan of orderly construction of highways to provide an adequate, safe and efficient system of arterial roads; that there was abundant evidence of wastefulness in former construction and building, with no sane system of planning; that there was an earnest and paramount need for the reconstruction and modernization of at least nine hundred miles of the State system. That report gave me an eloquent picture of how little the people of Maryland had received for their two hundred and fifty millions of dollars already spent for construction and maintenance of a road system before I came into office, and how completely and totally inadequate this costly system was in connection with traffic demands and safety.

I think that fair-minded people will admit that much improvement has occurred during the past three years. No one believes, nor do I state, that anything like adequate correction has been fully made. It could not have been done during this short period, but we have done the best we could in the face of obstacles never heretofore faced by a Governor of Maryland.

It is true we have had Federal aid, and, therefore, have received more money than we otherwise would have had, but in the case of Federal aid, we must spend the money only on projects approved by the Federal Bureau of Roads, and therefore, have not been permitted to proceed in accordance with the particular needs of our own people.

The maintenance of our roads system has been handicapped and limited through a "freezing", by a Legislature Democratic five to one, of maintenance allocations. We have been further hampered in the progress of road building through the archaic condemnation laws of the State. Other States can proceed to select their routes, post bond and construct their highways without waiting for negotiations with property owners. We, in Maryland, however, cannot enter upon any man's land without his consent until condemnation proceedings have been decided and the money paid into Court. Thus, one property owner can unreasonably delay the building of any road in this State, which has been our experience.

Face to face with these facts and handicaps, and in order effectively to plan for the future, we proceeded to organize a Highway Planning Survey, and with the United States Bureau of Public Roads, planned along three general lines: first, financial; second, inventory; and third, traffic. We have found that the existing laws dealing with revenue are in need of revision, as in the financial structure in each county. We are making a complete check on the physical condition of every road in the State, which will furnish a guide for future activities. We realize that no intelligent plan for rehabilitation can be made unless we have reliable information concerning volume, weight and intensity of traffic, and that such information will be a further guide to us in our long-term building plan for Maryland. I state, without fear of contradiction, that this work now being done by this Highway Planning Survey, will be the most challenging, fact-finding movement in the history of highways.

As funds have become available to this administration, we have gone ahead with improvements on routes most vitally in need of reconstruction or complete rebuilding, and the motorists of Maryland know of the improvement accomplished, and cannot be misled by partisan criticism uttered for political advantage. Let me recite a few:

Baltimore to Havre de Grace: a modern dual highway;

Baltimore to Pine Orchard: graded for dual highway;

Frederick to Hagerstown: graded for dual highway;

Huyetts to Conococheague: complete new construction;

Martin Mountain to Naves Cross Roads: complete new construction;

Baltimore to Annapolis: dual highway, with one lane to be open for traffic this summer;

Waldorf to Bryantown: complete new construction;

Trappe to Cambridge: complete new construction;

Baltimore to Carney: complete new construction.

This administration has completed and paved 193 miles of the State's main system, including ten miles of asphalt streets built in the City of Baltimore. We have graded and drained, ready for surfacing, 34 miles more of State roads. We have re-surfaced existing State roads to the extent of 70 miles. We have stabilized, through the placing of shoulders on existing State roads, 225 miles.

We have widened, graded and drained about 57 miles of county roads. We have widened, graded and stabilized 121 miles of county roads. We have widened, graded, drained and paved 151 miles of county roads.

We have eliminated, or are in process of eliminating railroad grade crossings at Kensington, Rockville, Beltsville, Dorsey, Edgewood, Harmans, Odenton, Winans, Sabillasville, Thurmont, Woodmont, Glen Morris and Winchester.

As to maintenance, the cost under this administration has been $492.59 per mile, as compared with $687.16 per mile under the former administration, a reduction and saving to the people of Maryland of $193.57 per mile. From maintenance funds many miles of the State system have been widened to 60 feet or more, and many miles of earth shoulders have been built, creating a stabilization through durable road material.

It must not be forgotten that while the public thinks that the county roads are under the jurisdiction of the State, this is not quite the situation. The real facts are that the County Commissioners have the power and authority to determine wha tnew roads shall be constructed, what amount shall be paid for debt service on county obligations, leaving the remainder for maintenance. In effect, the law designates the State Roads Commission to act only as the agent for the County Commissioners.

We have installed modern bookkeeping machines in the accounting department, which permit us a current determintion of bedgetry control. cost of maintaining the roads system, cost of project construction (including the maintenance of the county system of roads), cost of equipment operation, and cost of repairs and maintaining each of the roads sections and bridges on the State system of roads. This will give us at a moment's notice our financial postion at any given time, a thing unheard of in the former administration.

We are perfecting a long-term highway building plan which will give every consideration to the securing eventually to the traveling public and to pedestrians, the fullest measure of safety and protection. We are planning to build accident-proof highways, especially where traffic is heaviest and accident hazards greatest. Thru the press we have already given publicity to many projects now planned for completion.

Road building in Maryland has fallen year by year behind the needs for over fifteen years, and these deficiencies cannot be overcome entirely and the Maryland system of roads brought up-to-date in so short a time as had been at our disposal; but the completion of the major undertakings of this adminstration and the comprehensive forthcoming report of the Highway Planning Survey will be a contribution to Maryland's roads that will mark a turning point in her highway development.

Against the handicaps encountered at the beginning of, and during our administration, we have made a marked advance toward again placing Maryland in her rightful place of leadership in road building.

The subject of roads is so great and so important tha tit may become necessary for me, in another article, further enlarge upon the roads system in Maryland.

MT. LAKE PARK

Dr. George H. Gordon said: "The mothers from their places of rest rule the world."

We think of the mothers of Carlyle, Edwards, Bucknell, Lincoln. What teachers were their mothers.

Carlyle said of his mother: "O pious mother; kind, good, brave and truthful. More than I have found elsewhere in this world. Your poor Tom, long out of his school days, has fallen very lonely, very lame and broken in this pilgrimage of his. From your grave in Ecclefechen Kirkyard yonder you bid him trust in God and that also he must try if he can to understand and do it."

Reverend W. H. Gilmore, of the Methodist Episcopal church, gave us the above. He is planning special services for Mother's Day. We give you the program: At ten o'clock there will be the usual Sunday school service, A. T. White, superintendent. Miss Nell Lee and Miss Virginia Turney will be in charge of the music. At 11 o'clock worship service and sermon by the Rev. Felix Robinson. At the evening service, Rev. Gilmore will have as his sermon text, "Jesus and Women who stood nearest to Him." Rev. Gilmore wants to extend a special welcome to all mothers and fathers on this day.

Last Sunday was an ideal day for tourists and the Park was well patronized. Cars from many states drove over the Mountain Lake Park roads and streets. A number of the parties remained for the night. We heard many complimentary remarks about Garrett county. All of this is good advertising.

The tennis courts are to be put in first class condition and the work will start very soon.

Electric lights are being placed on many corners and the Park is taking on the airs of a real summer resort, and it's only May.

So far the weather prophets have failed on that last snow we were to have, and we hope they continue to fail.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

BY Scoop Himself

Along about 1904 or 1905 among automobiles that were built were some tricky one-seaters, with a two-cylinder engine, dashboard and steel-rimmed wheels, an automobile agency of today tells us.

An instrument book that went with the car asserts that "there is absolutely nothing of a complicated nature in connection with its operation, and with a little perseverance anyone of ordinary intelligence can easily become an expert."

The book warns against fractured arms in cranking, about difficulty in climbing hills, and states that "pride means getting chesty, and because you can drive up a lane without tearing down fences don't start hunting for hard stunts." It also suggests applying tallow to the drive chain to reduce wear and insure silent operation.

More Paint

Dear Scoop:

We have often wondered in what land and when, the fashion of painting cheeks, lips and finger nails, as women of today are doing, first originated.

Recently, in reading "Magellan," by Hildebrand, our query was solved. On page 213 of this book we read, "In the afternoon the Queen came to the platform. She was young and beautiful, her mouth and nails stained red."

Is it not strange that women of a Christian land should go back to 1520 and follow the fashion of a heathen island discovered by Magellan?

Please give your idea on this in your column.

Yours respectfully,
Etaoin Shrdlu.

For my own personal ideas, you know what happens to a bull when he sees red. The degree of madness depends upon the degree of red. The milder the better, if anybody cares to ask me. But who will?

Fire Burns Large Tract

A fire that started on the Power House Tract of the Youghiogheny Hydro Electric Corporation Tuesday afternoon, spread so rapidly that it burned about 2½ miles before the CCC boys from the Swallow Falls camp were able to get it under control. The loss has not been estimated yet, but it will be several thousand dollars.

This is only one of several mysterious forest fires in this vicinity in the past two weeks, according to C. E. MacMurray, and the Youghiogheny Hydro Electric Corporation offers a reward of $25.00 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties responsible for this fire. The company is co-operating with Cecil Ramsey, of the State Forestry Department, in trying to stop these fires.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MAY 12, 1938. NUMBER 11.

125 ATTEND 4-H MAY DAY AT OAKLAND ON SATURDAY

Miss Mary Mitchell, Oakland, Is Chosen Council President And Also Named 4-H Queen

STYLE REVUE IS HELD

With approximately 125 4-H club girls, their parents and friends attending, the Garrett County 4-H Club May Day observance was held Saturday in the auditorium of the Oakland high school.

At the business meeting, Miss Mary Mitchell, Oakland, was chosen president of the county 4-H council for the ensuing year; Dorothy Kesner, Mountain Lake Park, vice-president; Frances Hogue, Mountain Lake Park, secretary; Arlene Jones, Kitzmiller, treasurer. Mae DiGuistino, Kitzmiller, former president, presided at the business meeting.

Those selected at the style revue to represent Garrett county in the State style revue to be held at College Park in August were Mae DiGuistino, wool suit: Esther Price, cotton sports dress; Mary Jane Gnegy, cotton school dress (under 15 years of age); Dorothy Smith, informal party dress; Arlene Jones, wool dress.

Previous to the selecting of Miss Mary Mitchell, of Oakland, as Garrett County 4-H queen, Miss Dorothy Emerson, State Girls' club agent, spoke on the characteristics of a 4-H club princess, stressing three points: that a princess should each day learn something beautiful, do something lovely and read her Bible.

The program was concluded with a pageant. "The March of the 4-H Princesses." Miss Mitchell was chosen queen from among eleven princesses representing eleven 4-H clubs in the county. The queen-elect, the princesses and Miss Emerson marched to the platform and after Miss Emerson had crowned the queen there were dances, songs, etc., given by members of the clubs of the county.

The following represented the various clubs in the pageant: Virginia Stark, Avilton; Grace Brenneman, Bittinger; Bertie June Meyers, Busy Bees; Marjorie Weaver, Friendsville; Betty Carder, Grantsville; Bonnie Lewis, Kempton; Erlene Shank, Kitzmiller, Jr.; Arlene Jones, Kitzmiller, Sr.; Harriet Glotfelty, Little Homemakers; Dorothy Kesner, Loch Lynn Heights; Mary Mitchell, Oakland.

The entire affair was under the direction of Miss Mildred Barton, home demonstration agent.

CCC Enrollee Is Issued Canteen Used by Uncle During Last World Conflict

Enrollee Yowler, of the Swallow Falls CCC camp, may not be a believer of miracles or fate, but he was brought up against a strange happening one day last week.

Coming from Fayette county, Pennsylvania, Yowler was assigned to the Swallow Falls camp. He arrived in camp one day last week and was issued necessary equipment, among it being a canteen and cup. During the day he happened to glance on the inside of the cup and there were the initials and name of his uncle, the same name as his, scratched in the bottom of the cup. His uncle had been a member of the Blue Ridge division during the World War, had been gassed in the service of his country which later caused his death after his return to the States.

This strange coincidence was reported to army authorities of the camp. The cup is now placed in the archives of the camp, and the boys' parents have been there to visit him and to see the cup which had been worn during the war hy his father's brother.

Planting Special Plots

R. A. Jehle, potato specialist, University of Maryland Extension Service, is spending several days in the county supervising the planting of all potatoes in connection with the special plots for improvement purposes. A field of three acres is being planted on the Weber farm, adjoining Oakland, where the Extension Service is breeding various varieties for resistance to wilt. Three acres on the DeBerry farm are being planted for the improvement of seed sources and a variety of tests.

On the DeBerry farm the Extension Service, through C. E. Temple, is also breeding for new and improved varieties of peas.

The pageant, "Lighted to Lighten," written for the Anniversary Committee of the United Lutheran church, and sponsored by the Luther League, was presented last Sunday evening in the church at a special vesper service.

BLOOMINGTON WILL GET PURER WATER SUPPLY

Will Come From Pipes Of Westernport Trunk Line

An agreement for the supplying of water to Bloomington residents from the Westernport trunk water line leading from the dam on Savage River to Westernport was reached Monday night when representatives of the Bloomington Water Company met with the Mayor and Commissioners of Westernport.

Bloomington has been receiving water from the Piedmont supply line for many years. Since the construction of a filtration plant at Piedmont all Piedmont water is treated and filtered at that point, hence the water now supplied to Bloomington is untreated and is often found to contain dangerous bacteria. Maryland health officers have been trying to remedy this situation for several years and it has been generally recognized that the solution to the problem was to disconnect the Bloomington line from the Piedmont supply line and hook it up with the Westernport supply line. Westernport water is chlorinated at the dam on Savage River. Shortage of water and other difficulties have prevented a satisfactory agreement until now.

Under the agreement reached Monday, the Bloomington company is to charge the same rates to consumers as those now in effect in Westernport. Sixty per cent of the revenue is to be turned over to Westernport and forty per cent is to be retained by the company at Bloomington.

To Discuss Restoration of Yough River For Anglers at Conference

A conference to discuss the restoration of the Youghiogheny River to anglers by sealing abandoned mines along its course, will be held some time this month in Oakland, with Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia cooperating. It is believed that a large network of streams would again be made available for anglers should this be done.

A program of sealing abandoned mines has been carried on in this county for two years or more by the WPA, and men have been at work for some time along the Youghiogheny River, near Crellin. This county program also includes the Casselman, and Potomac Rivers, and much work has already been done along the Potomac River.

The conference is being arranged by the Maryland Conservation Commission, of which Dr. Henry W. McComas is a member.

B. & O. Representatives Here on Monday Conferring With Fraley

All arrangements for the Baltimore and Ohio excursion train from Baltimore and Washington, to bring people here to see the mountain scenery, have been completed, Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley announced.

M. W. Grove, traveling passenger agent, and Fred G. Baugh, tour and excursion agent, were in Oakland on Monday and accompanied Mr. Fraley, R. C. McComas and Emroy Bolden to Swallow Falls and a section of Deep Creek Lake.

It is expected that the excursion train will carry sightseers, camera fans, hikers and bicycle riders.

The train will arrive at 1 o'clock p. m., on Sunday, June 5. Mayor Fraley agreed to furnish automobile transportation such as was done last fall for the camera fans excursion, and there will also be a band at the station. Two hours will be spent at Swallow Falls, 1 hour at McComas Beach, on Deep Creek Lake, where Hill Billy bands will be provided for square dancing and entertainment. All excursionists will return to Oakland by 6 o'clock giving them an hour here before the train leaves at 7 p. m. The round trip fare from Baltimore and Washington will be $4.00. Mayor Fraley said that guides from the Boy and Girl Scout troops would be provided for hikers.

All car owners who were willing to donate the use of their car on that day were asked by Mr. Fraley to leave word at the City Hall. Last fall over ninety people volunteered and they were praised very highly by the camera fans for their generosity.

It is expected that mountain flowers will be in bloom and nature at her fullest by June 5.

Mercury Drops To 27 Degrees This Morning

The warm weather of last week which had speeded Garrett county's growing season about ten days, was given a decided setback this week, and this morning's reading of the mercury of 27 degrees at Weber's Government station puts an end to any hopes for home-grown fruit this year.

Although cold throughout the week the rain and cloudy skies kept frost away. However, last night was clear and the temperature dropped rapidly. The freeze was more harmful than usual on account of the dampness, according to Ralph Weber. The mercury at the State garage registered 22 degrees at some hour between one and six o'clock this morning.

There is a possibility that the growing wheat, which indicated a good yield, has been damaged as a result of the cold and freeze.

Tableland Council Re-Elects Mr. Priddey As Chairman

The Allegheny Tableland Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce reelected Edward J. Priddey, of the Gimbels Store, as chairman at its annual meeting. This council was formed several years ago at the request of residents of the Tableland area in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.

George L. Sincell, of Rosenbaum's Department store, Pittsburgh, was elected first vice-chairman. Mr. Sincell is a brother of H. C. and B. H. Sincell, of Oakland, and visits here occasionally.

OAKLAND HIGH SENIORS TAKE HOLIDAY, BUT HAVE REAL TOUGH TIME GETTING RE-ADMITTED TO SCHOOL

Sixty-Two Seniors Inaugurate "Skip-Day"—Are Refused Admittance To School Upon Their Return Tuesday

A student "skip-day" at Oakland High school almost turned into a "big hop" for a number of seniors but they are back in school now after signing an agreement regretting their action and promising to do all their skipping after school hours.

Sixty-two of Oakland High's 90 seniors inaugurated and participated in a "skip-day" on Monday. They chartered a bus and went for a ride, danced in a road house and roamed around, apparently feeling free—but the day turned out cold and disagreeable and by noon some of them returned to school, only to be told by F. D. Bittle, principal, that they could be re-admitted to classes only hy bringing their parents to school for a conference.

Tuesday morning the students tried again but the rule remained in force. Five or six got their parents. Other parents refused to come. Many of the students who traveled on busses found it almost impossible to bring theirs.

Somewhat awed by this time at the consequences of their "skip-day," and uncertain as to what to do, most of the sixty-two congregated in the Court House before the office of F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, to admit they were worried and tired of their extended "skip-day". They maintained it had been done in a class spirit and not a mob spirit.

Mr. Rathbun and Mr. Bittle finally conferred. Then they called in a few for discussion. The group indicated they were anxious to return to school. Sympathetic, Principal Bittle promised they could return if they would sign an agreement regretting their action.

Whitehurst Special Stops At Oakland On Monday

The Whitehurst special train on the Baltimore and Ohio stopped in Oakland Monday evening to receive a delegate to the national convention of Federated Women's Clubs, which is meeting in Kansas City, Mo., this week. The delegate was Mrs. E. L. Winchell, of Mountaine Lake Park, member of and representing the Oakland club.

The Loch Lynn Heights band and a crowd of ladies assembled at the Oakland station. Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, Baltimore, a candidate for national vice-president of the organization, was presented with a bouquet of roses by the Oakland Civic club during the train's stop. Mrs. Winchell was also presented with a corsage by members of the club.

OAKLAND HIGH STUDENT IS STATE ESSAY WINNER

Miss Helen Shreve Gets Airplane Trip to Washington

Miss Helen Shreve, of Gorman, this county, a student in Oakland High school, was declared winner of the State essay contest, held in connection with National Air Mail Week. The announcement was made Monday by Ernest Green, Baltimore postmaster.

Miss Shreve is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shreve, residents of the Potomac Valley near Gormania, West Va. She is a junior student in the high school and her winning essay was in the form of poetry.

Local judges declared James Glass, Swanton, county winner last week, for which he was awarded a cup, but all essays submitted in the county contest were sent to Baltimore to be judged in the State contest.

Miss Shreve will go to Elkins from her home on Saturday afternoon and leave there by airplane for Washington, D. C., where she will be one of the guests of honor at a dinner. Her expenses up to $15 will be paid, besides the airplane trip to Washington and return. Her winning essay will be placed in competition for national honors.

To Present Religious Picture

On Thursday evening, May 19, at 7:30 o'clock, St. Mark's Lutheran church is presenting the picture, "The Thunder of the Sea." No admission is charged, but an offering will be taken.

"Time" says of this picture, "Commercial studios asked $10,000 to make the film, but with unpaid actors the Lutherans did it themselves for $5,000. A workmanlike job running 41 minutes."

"The 'Thunder of the Sea' was directed and photographed by John W. Gable and Edward Anhalt, who have done work for the Religious Motion Picture Foundation. It shows scenes of big city confusion, some shots of Martin Luther, the famed Now-is-the-time-to-fight sermon of John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg and the founding and building of a small contemporary Lutheran church."

You are invited to see this picture presented at St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Garrett County Man Held On U. S. Charge

Arrested in this county by agents of the Federal Alcoholic Tax Unit, a man who gave his name as Harry B. DeCost was committed Saturday to the Allegany county jail, pending a hearing before U. C. Commissioners William A. Vandergrift on a charge of posessing an unregistered still.

DeCost is the first person held in Cumberland in recent months on "moonshine making" charges.

The officers making the arrest said he had a 75-gallon still in the woods. The agents were from the Hagerstown office of the Federal unit.

F. E. RATHBUN RE-NAMED COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT

Will Serve Until July 31, 1942—Board Reorganizes With W. W. Dawson Again President

MAY CLOSE 3 SCHOOLS

Franklin E. Rathbun, who on August 1 will have served as County Superintendent of Schools for Garrett county for 26 years, was unanimously reappointed to that position and as secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education at a meeting of the board on Tuesday, May 10. His new term will expire on July 31, 1942, which will complete thirty years of service for him in that position in this county.

The Board also reorganized at its meeting by re-electing Walter W. Dawson, president; Walter W. Savage, vice-president, and Mrs. Frances F. O'Donnell, associate member.

A letter to Mr. Dawson this morning from Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, conveys his approval of the appointment of Mr. Rathbun by unanimous vote of the Board.

May Close Three Schools

Possibility of closing three schools, Mellenry, Mar's Hill and Mason, and transporting the pupils of these schools to other centers next school term, was discussed, but no definite action was taken.

Average daily attendance at the Mellenry school, according to Mr. Rathbun, has been under 12 throughout the school year, with two pupils completing their work this year. If transported these pupils will go to Accident. Six students at Mar's Hill will complete their work in June. Transported pupils would go to the Grantsville school. Mason school had an attendance of less than ten during the year. Transported pupils would go to Swan Meadow and Red House.

The board requested additional information as to the number of new entrants before making final decision. Reports filed in the office of the Board set out that each of the three schools would cost about $1,300 to operate.

Plans For New Buildings

Information was submitted from architects setting out that school building plans for Garrett county were being submitted to the Maryland Planning Commision for construction in this county under provisions of a bill now being considered by Congress and encouraging through Federal grants, such as WPA, the building of needed structures. Buildings for Oakland Elementary school, Kitzmiller, Accident and Bloomington were listed in the information submitted.

The County Superintendent is requesting information from trustees of schools or interested parties relative to the placing of teachers in various schools for the coming school year. Information is to be submitted before May 28. It was stated that arrangements were about complete for Mrs. Rose Rise Gisriel to return to Oakland high in September as teacher of Latin and English.

Assignments were made for visitations by board members to high school graduating exercises as follows: June 8, Friendsville, Messrs. Dawson, Savage and Mrs. O'Donnell; Oakland, on June 9, Mr. Dawson; Accident, June 9, Mr. Savage; Kitzmiller, June 9, Mrs. O'Donnell; Grantsville, June 10, Mrs. O'Donnell, Messrs. Dawson and Savage.

Principals and trustees were given authority to purchase coal for their various schools without formal contracts from the board.

Miss Helen Zibley Jeffries, of near Frostburg, was awarded a scholarship to the Maryland Institute of Art and Design, subject to the approval of the State senator.

The Board instructed the County Superintendent to write to bus contractors who transport pupils, whose contracts expire this summer, asking them to set out in writing improvements in their bus routes or equipment which would provide improved facilities for the pupils transported with decreased costs.

The Board approved the use of halls, auditoriums and class rooms for entertainments and other types of activities without the usual fee to be paid when such activities are conducted hy teachers and pupils, hut stipulated a fee in all other instances. The Board also expressed the opinion that school buildings should not be used during schools hours for basketball, orchestra or other similar type of extra curricular activities. It was also

WORKING WITH NATURE

Nature must love trees—she made so many of them, and she cooperates in such a friendly way with man when he takes up the job. Tree enthusiasts in New York State feel so about it, anyway.

That state reports that it is well along with its spring planting of 13,000,000 trees, which will finish about three-fourths of a 380,000-acre job. The trees spread over many of New York's counties, all thickly forested once, and now beginning to regain their original beauty. The state is not being given back to the Indians, says the New York Times, but given back to Nature and the wild creatures with which the Indians at one time lived. Nature is regarded no longer as an enemy or a slave, but a co-worker.

"Some of our land is good for corn," says the Times, "some for wheat, some for potatoes, some for fruit, some for grasses and cover crops, some for commercial timber, some to be kept quiet forever as a place of recuperation in tranquillity for all the people. This is true conservation—the conservation of abundance, in things of the body and things of the spirit."

Speaking for the nation, the Cumberland Evening Times recently said: "We have been bright enough to create a complicated economic system that we're too dumb to understand."

Learning Too Young

The other day George, 4, had some coughdrops. Johnny, 3, didn't have a cough but wanted some too.

Stepping up to George he asked, "If I have a cough, will you give me some coughdrops?" No answer. The same question again, this time Johnny got up a little closer. Still no answer. He tried once more without answer and the fourth time almost yelled in his ear. To which George finally replied, "I don't hear you."

Selfishness isn't on our list of things to teach children. But where do they pick it up?

A lot of people say that walking is a lost art. There never will be any need to worry about that. How do they think most of get from where we park our cars to where we're going?

This happened over the want-ad counter of a mid-west newspaper recently. A man handed in an advertisement offering $100 reward for the return of his wife's cat.

"Isn't that a high reward?" asked the clerk. "Not in this case," said the man. "I drowned the cat."

Some little girl in front of the theatre this week on her way to see Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, said she was going to see "Snow White and the Seven Drawers." One for each day in the week I suppose.

It was time for bed but the "little fellers" were stalling as usual. They needed a bath but they just stood around and asked questions. Finally patience departed and Mrs. Scoop remarked, "John, get your shoes off and get in the tub." To which John inquired, "With my clothes on?"

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

Hints For The Homemaker

1. To drive a nail into plaster without cracking the plaster, heat the nail.

2. Keep your old felt hats. You can cut pads from them for the bottom of book ends, etc.

3. Old tooth brushes, which have been sterilized, of course, make fine implements for cleaning empossed silver.

4. When rolling dough on waxed paper, moisten the top of the table first, then put the paper down. This prevents the paper from slipping.

5. To clean the brass plate of an electric light switch, take a piece of cardboard and cut a hole the shape and size of the plate. Slip this over it and rub with a good brass polish. Prevents smudge on the wallpaper.

6. If garments are cut out with pinking shears it saves the trouble of pinking the seams after the garment is finished and also prevents ravelling during the construction process.

"Wasn't Dad swell to give us this electric refrigerator?"

It's a grand gift for any young couple, or for a middle aged or old couple, for that matter. Because it's a watchdog of the budget. It doesn't let anyone waste things. It's a help in other ways, too. Entertaining, for example, is so much easier, so much more fun, can be so much swankier, when there's an electric refrigerator to make all kinds of delicious cold foods, and to provide plenty of clear, pure ice cubes. And there's the money saving in shopping less often, buying in larger quantities and taking advantage of bargain prices. But don't wait for someone to give you an electric refrigerator. Buy one yourself, out of income, the way Dad's buying the one he gave.

MONONGAHELA SYSTEM

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

"Living On Relief"

Washington, May 7.

It is clear that there will be slight resistance to giving the President the additional billion and a half he asks for WPA. Though some strings will be attached, no real effort is going to be made to change the system, though there is overwhelming testimony that more relief for far less money can be given through local administrations, and that the present method is the most costly and wasteful ever devised.

It is also plain that little consideration will be given the really sound Bacon bill, which, while not reducing the amount, certainly would take relief out of Presidential politics. Apparently no step in these directions is going to be possible until something happens to genuinely arouse public sentiment or there is a new occupant of the White House. Nevertheless, it does seem that there should be sufficient strength in Congress to insist before making this appropriation, even if the system is to remain unchanged, that, at least, relief money must be spent for relief and not, as in the past—and present—diverted to purposes not even remotely concerned with "human suffering."

Attention to this indefensible diversion of relief funds to governmental agencies far removed from the relief field has been called by the recent request that $1,000,000 of the new relief funds be earmarked for the so-called National Emergency Council. This extraordinary agency, while it has hardly been heard of at all for more than two years and in that time has not had a directing head, is still functioning at considerable expense, employs several hundred persons, has paid agents in every State and is still spending approximately a million dollars a year. Originally created by the President in 1933, it consisted of the members of the Cabinet and all the various departmental heads. The avowed purpose of the council was coordination of the various governmental activities, but that has been a joke. Neither its first $10,000-a-year head—Mr. Frank C. Walker, nor its second, Mr. Donald Richberg, got anywhere at all in the matter of coordination. It was simply an impossible job. Under Presidential pressure, Mr. Walker actually tried it twice, but gave up in despair two years ago. Now, the official White House coordinator is Mr. James Roosevelt, the thrifty young insurance millionaire, though what he coordinates has never been very clear.

Those who have reviewed the record of the NEC say that it really is a combination propaganda and information bureau; that there is no real excuse for its existence, and that for five years it has largely "lived on relief," but in this it is not alone. Various other governmental gadgets set up by the Brain Trusters and the first New Deal similarly "live on relief." One of these is the National Resources Board, for which $1,000,000 is now asked; another is the Prison Industries Board, which wants $800,000; another is the Puerto Rico Recovery Administration, which needs $11,000,000. And there are others.

--*

The diversion of relief funds to support these governmental boards, commissions and councils created by Executive order, has been going on since 1933. It is a natural result of appropriating huge lump sums to the President without limiting his discretion. The practice of using relief money for other purposes has been denounced in Congress and out, and, of course, there will be an effort this time to write into the bill an amendment putting an end to the practice. That it will be successful is much to be doubted. The pressure from the White House and from the agencies that "live on relief" is very strong. In the closing days of a session, with Congressmen facing election and anxious to go home with assurances of their shares of the public funds, it isn't easy to thwart an Administration in matters of this sort.

There is no time to arouse public opinion and it isn't certain it could be aroused if there were. The fact remains that this diversion of relief funds cannot be defended. These vast sums of money are sought to prevent people from starving. On that theory they have been voted by Congress and on that theory the country has been willing to bear the increased burdens of taxation and submit to great borrowings that clearly threaten the national solvency. But, they have a right to expect that every dollar be spent for the purpose named, and they have a right to be indignant at any diversion, however small. Actually a good many millions have been diverted.

Let It Rain Now!

MT. LAKE PARK

Last Saturday and Sunday saw a great number of the summer contingent for the two days opening their cottages preparatory to their annual summer here. Each and every one asked the same question—"What will there be at the Park this summer?" To this we had very little answer. But it did set us thinking. After all there is no reason in the world why Mt. Lake cannot be made a real summer resort. Some folk have the idea that because it is an incorporated town and because a few of us are fortunate to live here that it is becoming less of a summer place and more of a village. But do not most resorts of this type have their year-round residents? Nearly all New England resorts and hundreds of others have their "natives". (We are indebted to a stranger for that word.) Somehow we rather like it. Anyhow I cannot see just what the summer colony would do without the winter colony—and that goes both ways. In other words, let us keep our village on town but let us also do those things and have those things that will continue to draw the fine summer people we have had and the few we now have. And they are getting few, we must admit. This whole county has advantages over so many other communities that it seems as though we are flying in the face of opportunity--also providence. Nature has done her share in a goodly measure. Now it's up to man. In other words, give the public something to attract them. For this summer we have the usual religious program, which is splendid; and the Music Festival, and so far as we know that is all. Almost forgot the "hat spot" of the season, the tennis tournament. Just how the women of the Civic club have managed to keep this "child" healthy and strong so long we do not know. But it has been a hard fight. Anyhow it's good for this year.

One disadvantage quoted to us was that there were so few desirable cottages to be had. This is true, and the fact that the really good ones are usually rented first should prove that it might be worth while to do a little repairing and painting. The boarding houses are satisfactory and have their regular people each year. Our Mt. Lake Hotel is always in good condition and always being improved. Which means a great deal to the Park as well as to those stopping there. Boost Mt. Lake, it's a good place either for summer or for winter.

A few "memories" came in to us—Remember when—

Matthew Hughes, brother of Bishop Edwin Hughes, brought a crowd of cadets here from the university at Morgantown and put up tents. They were here some time. (Mrs.) C. W., Oakland.

We had hoped to get a great deal more on this group and will later. There were many interesting facts connected with their visit here.

When Larney P. Carr drove a strawberry roan attached to a surrey. Dan Sweitzer was the hostler.

When the church bell would ring if man, woman or child were lost. One night late it rang long and loud. A crowd gathered and searching parties organized to hunt for a well known man. Before they could start however the lost one appeared and wanted to know what was wrong.

When Arthur Rudisill, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Rudisill, edited a small paper called "The Mountain Breeze." It was a very excellent paper. Arthur was sixteen at the time. He died two years later.

When the Spring at the B. & O. station was a popular place to loaf while waiting for the afternoon train. The water was clear and cold, and the surroundings were clean and attractive.

The cannery is undergoing repairs and machinery being placed in first class shape for the coming season of work. That part of Loch Lynn is a busy place just now. The mill is also showing much activity and a number of workers are employed around the property.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Herbert V. Leighton and John W. Lower vs. Walter W. Dawson, Administrator of the Estate of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and the unknown heirs of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased.

No. 5461 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The purpose of this suit is to obtain a decree for the sale of the real estate of which Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, died seized and possessed, for the payment of claims against her estate.

The bill states:—

That Elizabeth Buckman, in her lifetime, was indebted unto a number of persons on sundry accounts as shown by certified copy of the list of claims proved and passed in the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and that being so indebted she departed this life during the month of March, 1936, intestate, leaving no known heirs; that letters of administration on the personal estate of the said Elizabeth Buckman were granted to Walter W. Dawson by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and after disposing of the personal property he applied the proceeds realized therefrom to the payment of funeral expenses and other small preferred claims, but that the personal estate was not sufficient to discharge all the debts against said decedent; that the said Elizabeth Buckman, at the time of her death, was the owner of Lot No. 1011 on the Plat of Mountain Lake Park, which was conveyed to her by a series of conveyances mentioned in the Bill of Complaint, and copies thereof filed with the same; that title to said property was vested in said Elizabeth Buckman as sole owner and out of this the plaintiffs now seek payment of the claims against her estate.

The bill then prays that the real estate as aforesaid of Elizabeth Buckman may be sold for the payment of all unsatisfied claims against said decedent, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against the said Walter W. Dawson and for an order of publication against the unknown heirs of said Elizabeth Buckman.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of April, 1938, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 13th day of May, 1938, give notice to the said defendants, to-wit, the unknown heirs of the said Elizabeth Buckman, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 28th day of May, 1938, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

GRANTSVILLE

Farmers, Attention!

The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department has requested all farmers to build reservoirs or to make some provision for a water supply in case of fire. Many fires in the past have been at farms where water was not available and consequently much damage was done. Only about 160 gallons of water can be carried in the booster tank, according to officials, but if farmers would construct a pond of water, the loss of property would be lessened.

TWO CONTESTS ADDED TO LIST OF FESTIVAL EVENTS

Besides Regular Adult Choir Contest There Will Be Contests For Quartets and Juniors

TO BE HELD JULY 15-17

The Mountain Choir Festival, in its fifth annual program for rallying Christendom to unite in worship of Jesus Christ through the singing of hymns of praise, has had two new features added to its list of events this year.

The festival will again be held in the huge amphitheatre at Mountain Lake Park, Md., July 15 to 17, under the direction of its founder, Rev. Felix G. Robinson, and in addition to the adult choir contest, which was a feature of the first four seasons, this year a hymn contest for male and mixed quartets and a contest for junior choirs will be included. Both contests will be on Saturday, May 16.

The hymn contest, from three to four o'clock p. m., on that day, is open only to male and mixed quartets. Two selections must be sung of each quartet's own choice within a period of six minutes, and selections must be committed to memory. Accompaniment is optional. An award of $25 will go to the winner.

The junior choir contest will be from two to three o'clock p. m. Choirs must have a minimum of 15 voices, ages 6 to 15, and be vested. Two numbers will be sung, one of which is selected by the audition committee of the festival, "O Saviour Hear Me," by C. W. vonGluck. Awards in this contest are $50, $25 and $10.

The regular feature of the festival, the adult choir contest, open to either community or parish choirs, will be held on Sunday afternoon, July 17. Awards will be $100, $50 and $25.

One of the two anthems which adult choirs must sing is the contest anthem for 1938, "Christ of the Fields and Flowers," by Dr. Harvey Gaul, of Pittsburgh. Choirs in this contest must be vested and have a minimum of 20 voices.

During the first four seasons, 47 different choral organizations have participated, and winning choirs have been from Frostburg, Md.; Johnstown, Pa.; Pittsburgh, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md., last year's winner being conducted by Raymond Hollinger, who accepted the position of assistant director of the festival for this year. His choir will not compete.

Applications of entry for the new hymn and junior choir contests and also for the adult choir contest must be sent to Raymond K. Hollinger, 1105 Potomac Avenue, Hagerstown, Md., assistant director of the festival.

The adjudicator for this season is Dr. Becket Gibbs, of the Juilliard School, New York City, an authority on ecclesiastical music. Dr. Gibbs is a Fellow of Trinity College, London, and on the board of examiners of that institution.

On Friday, July 15, representative artists of Maryland will give a program under the auspices of the Maryland Federation of Music clubs. On Saturday evening, July 16, the festival choir will sing "Elijah," with Reinald Werrenrath and M. P. Moller, Jr., as soloists.

On Sunday evening there will be the outdoor processional and the choral eucharist with the festival choir being led by Dr. John Finley Williamson, of the Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J.

Farm Home Burns Near Swanton Last Thursday Evening

The home of Mr. nnd Mrs. Carl Beckman, about one mile from Swanton toward Green Glade, was destroyed by fire about 7 o'clock last Thursday evening, May 12.

The blaze originated from the flue, it was supposed, and the upstairs part of the house was in flames before it was discovered.

The family succeeded in saving some of the furniture and household belongings from the first floor, and Mr. Beckman's mother, Mrs. Ada Beckman, was burned slightly about the face and arms as she helped to save some of the furniture.

The house was owned by R. Shank. It was not learned whether the loss was covered by insurance.

LEGION AND K. OF P.'S PLAN MEMORIAL SERVICE

Will Be Parade On That Day With Services in Local Cemetery

A Memorial Day service is being planned for Monday, May 30. A committee representing the American Legion and the Knights of Pythias lodge met Monday evening and made tentative arrangements.

The present plan is to invite the schools, the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations and all other patriotic organizations to participate in the parade and memorial services. The Oakland Boys' band and Mickey's band have agreed to participate.

The Knights of Pythias will dedicate a memorial shaft which has been erected and the Legion will hold its usual memorial service at the tomb of the unknown soldier. The parade is at 10 a. m., with services following the parade.

More details will be known by next week.

CCC Enrollee Gets Canteen Used By Uncle During World War

More than four million American soldiers drew canteens during the World War, and recently Verlin Yowler, a CCC enrollee at Swallow Falls camp, near Oakland, had one distributed to him which apparently hnd been owned by a doughboy uncle.

The youth from Uniontown, Pa., found his uncle's name, Clyde B. Yowler, scratched on the canteen and cup with which he was equipped.

More complete information concerning this rather extraordinary happening, in addition to the story published in The Republican last Thursday, was received a day or two ago.

The youth's uncle was gassed in France and died several years ago in Uniontown from his war injuries. The enrollee further identified the name as belonging to the dead uncle because it bore the inscription "Co. K, 320th Inf.," of the Blue Ridge Division—the Eightieth. Yowler said his uncle was in that outfit during the war and had served alongside the enrollee's father, who was in Company E of the 319th, in the same division.

The canvas cover of the canteen had the three mountain rnnges insignia of the division painted in blue.

The equipment had apparently been taken from the injured soldier and stored in Third Corps Area bins in the years after the war. Since the Swallow Falls camp is located within the Third Corps Area the wartime canteens and other equipment were reissued to CCC enrollees. Yowler came to the Swallow Falls camp about two weeks ago.

MAPLE SYRUP AND SUGAR YIELD IS BELOW NORMAL

County Produces 22,000 Gallons Of Syrup; 10,000 Pounds Sugar

Maryland maple syrup production this season was about 28 per cent smaller than that of last year, but 18 per cent above the ten-year average, and the sugar crop was 17 per cent shorter than that of 1937 and less than half of the ten-year average production, it was indicated by reports made by producers to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

The quality of the product was good but not equal to that of last year, according to the report. Syrup production this year was estimated at 26,000 gallons, compared with the 1937 crop of 36,000 gallons and the ten-year average of 22,000 gallons.

This year's sugar crop of 10,000 pounds compares with 12,000 pounds a year ago and the ten-year average of 24,000 pounds. The same number of trees were tapped as a year ago. The yield per tree was much less than last year, but slightly above the average.

Runs of the sap were very irregular. The average date of the first run of sap this year was February 9, the last run March 29. The season opened about two weeks later and closed two weeks earlier than last year. The earliest run reported this season was February 1, the latest April 16.

During the last two years most of the production has been made into syrup. Producers estimate an increase in the proportion of retail sales this year. The average price received for syrup, including both wholesale and retail sales was estimated at $1.35 per gallon. The average price in 1937 was $1.15. The average price received for sugar was 22 cents per pound as compared with 20 cents last season.

Garrett county produces practically all of the maple syrup and maple sugar that is mad ein Maryland. Other maple producing areas are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Free Use of Cars Volunteered

A number of the citizens of Oakland have already volunteered the free use of their cars on the afternoon of Sunday, June 5, when five hundred or six hundred persons are expected here on a Baltimore and Ohio excursion train to view the mountain scenery, according to Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley.

Last fall more than ninety cars were brought into service to accommodate the crowd that came here on the camera fans' excursion, and more people are expected to take advantage of this proposed trip.

The Wanderlust Club of Baltimore has written Mr. Fraley asking for information. A number of the members of this club are planning to be on the excursion.

Those who are willing to donate the use of their cars upon this occasion are asked to notify officials at the City Hall.

Farmers Asked To Plant Bird Feed Patches On Their Farms

The game division of the State Conservation Department, through E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, is again appealing to agriculturalists of Maryland to plant n bird feed patch which, if left standing, will produce cover for wildlife as well as food.

For permanent plantings wax myrtle, bayberry, sumac, dogwood, greenbrier, partridge berry, teaberry, dewberry, holly, black gum, sweet gum, wild plum, wild cherry, wild rose, honeysuckle, persimmon and wild grapes were recommended.

The feed patch is best planted along wooded areas or fence rows.

Farmers are also being asked when mowing grasses or grain, to use the flushing bar, which is a long pole extending beyond the end of the cutting blade with chains or ropes on it, to flush birds from their nests. It is said that thousands of ground nesting birds and their eggs can be saved in this manner if the driver will stop his machine when a bird flushes, and raise the mower and leave just a small patch of grass or grain where the nest is located.

Belt Stolen From Stonecrusher

No arrests hnve been made thus far.

HITCHHIKER CHANGES INJURED BACK STORY

County Man Made Way To Baltimore Hospital for Treatment

Johns Hopkins Hospital physicians at Baltimore made ready again to examine a man who made his way to the city painfully from Western Maryland last week to receive treatment for a weak back, only to disappear at the hospital door.

Giving his name as John Paugh, 30, of Wellsburg, West Va., the man stumbled into a Baltimore City police station one evening the latter part of last week saying he had injured his back in a West Virginia mine accident and had walked and hitchhiked there for treatment.

Police took him to the hospital door but he disappeared from that point.

Monday night the same man walked into the Northeastern police station in Baltimore. Lieutenant Leo J. Kelly said he told him his name was not Paugh but Alvin Friend, 30, of Friendsville, and that his back was not injured but had been weak since his birth.

Kelly said Friend told him he gave a fictitious name to mislead his relatives. Police took him to the hospital again on Tuesday night and physicians, after a preliminary examination, told him to return Wednesday.

Socialist Years Ago; Now Democratic Candidate For Congress In Ohio

A telegram from Frostburg under May 15 date line states that Ira Culp, remembered by older residents of that community as a school teacher at Vale Summit, is n candidate for the United States Congress from the Twentieth Congressional District of Ohio, subject to the Democratic primary to be held August 9.

The 20th district is in the heart of the city of Cleveland. The article stated also that while a resident of Allegany county he was interested in the Socialist party and was a frequent contributor to the Frostburg Mining Journal and on occasions made speeches at various points on Main street. After leaving Vale Summit he taught school in Garrett county, the article stated.

If this be the same Ira Culp who was a former resident of Garrett county, he is of unique distinction. He was up before the Circuit Court on a number of occasions and upon at least two of them he attempted to plead his own case, refusing the services of a lawyer. Upon one of these times, December, 1923, on a charge of assault with a rifle, against Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., sheriff, and J. Frank Browning, constable, he was found guilty and sentenced to six months, which he had to serve after a sentence of nine months in the county jail imposed by the U. S. district court. His son, Payne Culp, was also before the court on the same charge at the time.

In June, 1931, he was before the court again on an appeal from Justice E. I. West, Oakland, for refusing to get a license for his dog. As he made ready again to plead his own case with a harangue, which might have lasted for days, the case was nolle prossed by the State's Attorney at that time, in other words, thrown out. Witnesses at this event state that Ira was "hopping mad" at not being allowed to go ahead with his case, even with the possibility of guilt as the result.

The court records also show that an Ira Culp was found not guilty before the court in 1901 on a charge of assault and battery.

We have no absolute proof that both Ira Culps are one and the same. The one similarity that could be taken as positive, however, is that years ago he was a Socialist. Now he is running on the Democratic ticket. What he couldn't do years ago he is doing now. His radical tendencies put him right in line with the New Deal Democrats of today.

School Commissioner Savage To Attend At Kempton

County Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathbun writes:

"In the article published in this paper (The Republican) last week relative to the assignment of members of the Board of Education of this county for attendance to high school graduating exercises, it should have been stated that Walter W. Savage, a member of the Board who lives in Friendsville, will be in attendance to the high school commencement at Kempton rather than in Friendsville as stated last week."

Mr. Hammond was present to receive his award, but Mr. Mealy, who is ill at his home in Baltimore, was unable to attend. Mr. Mealy and Mr. Hammond were among a group of eighty Masons dispersed throughout the State who have been members of the Fraternity for fifty years.

Four CCC Camps In State To Close; County Camps Not Affected By Order

Four Maryland Civilian Conservation Corps camps will be discontinued on July 1, but Garrett county camps will remain intact.

The camps to be closed are those engaged in conservation work on military and naval reservations.

The discontinuance will reduce the number of CCC camps in Maryland to 19. Tha tnumber will operate at least until September 30, it was stated by Robert Fechner, CCC director.

Of the 19 camps which will operate this summer, two, one in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal National Park and one in Rock Creek Park extension in Montgomery county, will be new camps. A state forest camp will be re-established in Charles county.

Camps whose operation Fechner has approved include S-51, S-59, S-68, all in Garrett county.

213 PERSONS EXAMINED AT ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC

Is Largest Number Ever To Attend; Doctors George E. Bennett and G. O. Eaton In Charge

MANY NEW CASES APPEAR

The semi-annual orthopedic clinic conducted here last Wednesday and Thursday went "over the top" insofar as number of cases is concerned, 213 persons having been examined during that time by Dr. George E. Bennett and Dr. George O. Eaton, Baltimore bone specialists.

Cases ranging from infants in arms and children of various ages to adults, all suffering from some form of physical handicap, many cases being due to infantile paralysis, some from injuries at birth and some from accidents.

Assisting Dr. Bennett and Dr. Eaton were members of the health office staff in the county, and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Kendall, directors of physiotherapy service at Children's Hospital School and Kernan's Hospital School, Baltimore.

The treatment for anterior poliomylitis (infantile paralysis) is just being recognized, according to Mr. Kendall, who has been carrying on the service for nineteen years and during the last four years has been assisted by Mrs. Kendall. The disease attacks the nerve cells of the anterior bone region of the spinal chord, where large motor cells are located. The work of physiotherapy treatment, according to Mr. Kendall, is directed toward building up the muscles so as to make the patient self-supporting. Massage is only one form of the treatment, which includes the examination of the muscles to determine the amount of paralysis. Massaging and exercising in this county is under the direction of Miss Grace Jones.

New Cases Brought to Light

A number of new cases were received, many of which had been discovered from time to time by the health nurses as they travel through the county. Other cases were due to accidents, congenital deformities and other causes. Those who need special attention will be sent to Baltimore for treatment.

Dr. H. R. DuPuy, recently appointed health officer here, expressed his surprise at the small number of braces seen on the patients. It was explained that Dr. Bennett, in his program, was getting away from braces as much as possible, laying stress on each individual's power to develop the injured or diseased part of the body by exercise to the point where braces were unnecessary.

Dr. DuPuy stated that Garrett was a pioneer county in orthopedic work and that wonderful results had been and is being accomplished here to correct bodies of their ailments.

The Oakland Civic Club which assists materially in the orthopedic work in the county, gave a luncheon last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Harry White for visiting physicians and others in charge. Seventeen persons attended the luncheon.

Lesson for May 22

SERVING THROUGH CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17, 28-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Mark 12:31.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Sermon on a Penny.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Sermon on a Penny.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to God and Country.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obligations of Christian Citizenship.

"For God and Country" is a rallying cry that well summarizes the spirit and duty of the Christian citizen. So clear and inspiring are the teachings of God's Word regarding the relationship of the Christian to his country that one marvels that national leaders who are seeking to stimulate civic loyalty do not promote a revival of the study of the Bible. Dr. Moore is right when he says, "No bad citizen is a good Christian and no good Christian is a bad citizen." The solution of our nation's problems would be a great evangelistic campaign from coast to coast. A man like Moody would then appear in his true position as a great patriot. The soul-winner would be more important than the vote-getter. Why not try it?

Our lesson presents our Lord on Tuesday of His passion week, when He met His adversaries in their cunning efforts to entrap Him in His words so that they might condemn Him. The two incidents before us have broader application than to citizenship alone, but we may well consider them in that light, for they reveal that the citizen who is right with God will be right with the nation and with his own neighbors.

I. The Christian Citizen Loves His Country (vv. 13-17).

The Pharisees, who hated Rome for its domination of Palestine, and the Herodians, who supported Rome in its control of the land, were enemies, but they joined forces to tempt Christ. They knew that if He said "Yes" to their question the Jews would be angry, and if He said "No" He could be condemned as a traitor to Rome.

The trap was set, but it caught only the crafty hunters. Taking their own pocket money he declared that if they used Caesar's money they ought to pay taxes to Caesar. The coin stood for an orderly government, benefits of which they enjoyed and which they ought to support.

II. The Christian Citizen Loves God (vv. 20-30).

Although this point comes second in our lesson it comes first in experience. It is the man who renders unto God the love of the heart, soul, mind, and all of his strength (v. 30) who is ready really to love his country as he should.

The scribes loved to dispute about which was the greatest of the 613 commandments which they recognized. Jesus astonished them by referring to the passage of Scripture most familiar to the Jews (Deut. 6:4, 5), which declares the unity and absolute exclusiveness of the Lord our God. It may be well for us to stress this truth even in our time, for most folk regard the worship and service of God as optional.

III. The Christian Citizen Loves His Neighbor (vv. 31-34).

The scribe did not ask for the second commandment but Jesus presents it as an unavoidable corollary of the first. The man who really loves God will love his neighbor.

Every social injustice would be wiped out and every cause for strife removed if all men loved their fellow-man as they love themselves. Such a condition will never prevail, however, until men love God. It is too much for the flesh to put others before self. Only the grace of God is sufficient for that. Hence the real solution of the problems of capital and labor, the "haves" and the "have nots" is to win the men and women on both sides of the struggle to a true love for God through Jesus Christ our Lord. In other words, we come again to the inevitable conclusion that what our nation needs is a revival.

Social panaceas, revolution either by force or by law, dictatorships, all these are destined to failure. Men must learn to know and love God supremely and thus come to love their neighbors as themselves.

The crossroad Sunday-school teacher, the missionary in the city slums, the preacher of the gospel, whether in the great city or on the the countryside, the faithful Christian living out the love of Christ daily in kindly word and deed—these are the real forces for social as well as spiritual good. Let us do all we can to prosper their ministry!

Sufficient Unto the Day

Do not look forward to what might happen tomorrow; the same everlasting Father who cares for you today will take care of you tomorrow, and every day.

Living Wisely

Let no one think that the way to gain the next world is to despise this one.

Little Courtesies

Miss Helen Shreve Gets Airplane Trip to Washington

Miss Helen Shreve, of Gorman, this county, a student in Oakland High school, was declared winner of the State essay contest, held in connection with National Air Mail Week. The announcement was made last Monday by Ernest Green, Baltimore postmaster.

Miss Shreve is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shreve, residents of the Potomac Valley near Gormania, West Va. She is a junior student in the high school.

Local judges declared James Glass, Swanton, county winner recently, for which he was awarded a cup, but all essays submitted in the county contest were sent to Baltimore to be judged in the State contest.

Miss Shreve went to Elkins from her home on Saturday afternoon and left there by airplane for Washington, D. C., where she was one of the guests of honor at a dinner on Sunday, May 15. Her expenses up to $15 were paid, besides the airplane trip to Washington and return. She returned to Elkins on Monday.

WINGS OVER AMERICA

A silvery transport plane roars over our heads away from the city. Marvelous! Of course. Its swift flight calls for the solving of many problems dealing with transportation and communication in this age of power and speed.

Airplanes over well-established air routes are furnishing an important means of transportation for passengers, mail and express freight. These air routes, covering 55,000 miles, reach every section of the country.

Many remarkable changes have been made in airplanes for safety and guidance of fliers. Many new jobs have come from these changes. About ten per cent of the workers connected with aviation are pilots. There must be fine mechanics, carpenters, radio operators, weather men and electricians.

Planes are used for map-making, surveys, weather observation, forestry work, search for ancient remains, mail carrying and passenger service.

Air transportation is important from the point of view of speed in keeping business appointments. It is also valuable in sending important letters. One valuable service given by air lines is the carrying of money from one city to another so quickly that time (and the interest on the money during these days) is not lost.

Large-scale business demanded cheap and speedy means of transportation and communication, and air-service has solved this perplexing problem, thus maintaining industrial civilization. HELEN SHREVE.

DENTAL DONT'S OUTLINED BY DR. RICHARD LEONARD

Are Given For Benefit Of Those Interested In Healthy Mouths

For the benefit of those who are interested in keeping their mouths in a hetlthy state, a series of dental dent's was outlined recently by Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health.

Some of them relate to practices that are obviously risky, if you only stop to think about it, but most of us are not likely to until the damage is done. Others come under other headings. The don't were offset by advice to do certain things that make for mouth health..

To begin with the don'ts:

If a button pops off and you have to sew it on in a hurry (this applies to scouts, young or old, masculine or feminine), or, if you have any other sewing to do, don't bite your thread. Cut it. The habitual practice of biting threads will result eventually in nicking the biting edge of the teeth. It will not only give them a saw-tooth appearance, but will weaken the edge and may open the way for decay.

Don't bite hard-shelled nuts to crack them. Even though tooth enamel is the hardest of the human tissues it will not stand too great force. You may crack the enamel instead of the nut shell.

Don't place your dependence for the health of the mouth on any commercially advertised dental cure-all. Dentifrices are intended only to help cleanse the teeth. They are not remedies for mouth diseases; neither will they prevent such diseases, and—

Don't expect a tooth brush to last for ever, or for more than a few months. Bristles that have become soft from being used too long cannot cleanse the teeth properly.

Don't—and this is another important one: Because the first or baby teeth come out, don't believe that these teeth should be neglected. Baby teeth have a function to perform. If they are not properly cared for they cannot function properly, and worse still, neglect is likely to result in pain, systemic disease and crowding of the succeeding teeth.

Now, as to the things that should be done: There are three in particular—eat proper food; have a thorough examination and the necessary attention by the family dentist at least twice a year. Keep the mouth clean. Tooth strength comes from the food eaten while the teeth ore being formed. Regular attention by the family dentist will prevent nearly all dental troubles. Proper cleanliness of the mouth through thorough brushing of the teeth at least twice daily will help to prevent tooth decay.

THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1938

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

There was a meeting of the old Haymaker rifle team. William T. Steyer, George D. Browning, John F. Browning, R. S. Jamison, and James Painter were present. Owing to illness P. A. Chisholm was unable to attend. The purpose was to reorganize. Target practice was held over the Washington Spring range at 200 yards and they scored from 38 to 43 out of a possible 50.

Fred A. Thayer, Austin Brown, Sheriff Lee and E. H. Sincell returned from a few days' fishing up in the Canaan country. The total catch amounted to 581 trout. Says the item, "The party did not make as large a catch as State's Attorney Thayer said they would prior to the start."

Geary R. Sinnisen, of Hagerstown, arrived in Oakland to operate a bakery here during the summer. He planned to run a wagon over town every morning to deliver bread to his customers, both wholesale and retail.

The outlook for a creamery at Accident was not encouraging. Some farmers were refusing to take stock in the business for fear of losing the sum of twenty-five dollars.

An item in the Park items: "Two weeks more and the electric lights will be turned on; and all trains will stop at our station."

Daniel Smith at the Park shot a loon on the lake which measured 50 inches between wing tips.

Citizens of Oakland met to protest against the town council annuling a section of the charter imposing a tax upon saloons.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Seed oats were selling at $1.20 per bushel.

Robert C. Townshend and Miss Gracia Lee Stemple, both of Oakland, were married by Rev. W. M. Shultz. The couple were to reside in Grant Town, W. Va.

The second annual school track meet was held at Accident. There were nearly 200 contestants. Oakland won with Kitzmiller second.

Airplane mail service was instituted over a regular route between New York and Washington on May 15.

A coal famine greater than the previous winter, was predicted by the National Coal Association, caused by car shortage and shortage of labor.

Messrs. Offutt, the merchants, put into commission a Ford truck to be used for delivery purposes.

The pages were full of news of boys who were enlisting, who had been selected in the draft, and of those who were already over in France. Word had been received that Walter Wolfe had been wounded in a battle in France.

Plans Progress For K. Of C. Outing On Lake Sunday, June 12

Plans are progressing for the Knights of Columbus get-together picnic, which is to be held on Sunday afternoon, June 12, on the property of the Holy Cross Summer House of Studies at Deep Creek Lake, it was reported at the last meeting of the Oakland Council, K. of C..

Those in charge of the arrangements are William R. Browning, as chairman; Michael Maroney, James Nally, James Hart, Clarence A. Murphy, John R. Murphy, Joseph Wolfe, H. A. Loraditch, Francis R. Shaffer and Edward A. Shaffer.

Invitations have been sent to Governor Harry W. Nice, Herbert R. O'Conor, Attorney General of Maryland; Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore; William S. Gordy, State Comptroller; Lansdale G. Sasscer and a number of other prominent Marylanders.

At the local meeting Edward A. Shaffer and A. G. Hesen were elected to represent the Oakland Council as delegates to the state convention, which opened in Baltimore on Saturday, May 14.

So Near and Yet So Far!

17,000 YOUNGSTERS WERE GIVEN CHECK-UP IN 1937

Health Examinations At Conferences Throughout The State

Over 17,000 youngsters were given a complete health check-up, and their mothers, or others in charge, were advised as to necessary follow-up care, at the health conferences held thruout the counties in 1937, under the joint auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the County Departments of Health.

According to a report issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, the children ranged in age from babies only a few weeks old to their older brothers and sisters nearing school age. Of the total, 10,670 were white and 6,533 colored; nearly 3,300 were under a year old; over 7,000 were from 1 to 4 years old, and 6,728 were between 5 and 7. The older children were examined in preparation for their admission to school.

The purpose of these conferences, Dr. Riley explained, is to help mothers to keep young children well; to detect conditions that might hinder normal growth or development if allowed to run on. No medical treatments were given. Children in need of medical attention were referred to their family physicians.

Over 1,000 conferences took place during the year, including those "on wheels" held in connection with the summer tour of the health trailer of the Bureau of Child Hygiene. Community centers or cross roads settlements in 543 places, covering every section of the State, served as the meeting places for large or small groups of mothers and children with the doctors and nurses. Nearly 38,000 follow-up visits to the homes were made by the nurses associated with the county departments of health in connection with the conferences.

Over one-fourth of the total number of children examined—4,303—were free from conditions in need of correction. Fifteen per cent of the remainder—over 1,900—were underweight or showed other evidence of malnutrition; over 4,700 needed dental attention. Nearly 800 had rickets in some form and 560 had faulty postures. Nearly one-third had unfavorable conditions of the nose or throat. Enlarged or infected tonsils were observed in 4,098; adenoids in 1,552 and 346 were listed as "mouth breathers." Defective vision was recorded for 156; impaired hearing for 187; 66 were found to be mentally retarded.

Of the total number of children in attendance over 4,800 had not been immunized against diphtheria, and over 3,300 of the older group, nearing school age, had not been vaccinated against smallpox. Special efforts were made to have these matters attended to.

Provision is made in the schedule for the current year for one or more child-health conferences, monthly, in each county. In cooperation with the county superintendents of schools and the Parent-Teacher Associations, arrangements are under way for the usual series of special conferences during the spring and summer months for the examination of the youngsters who will enter school in the fall.

The Laymen's League chicken-spaghetti supper will be held at the Parish house of the Episcopal church this evening at 6 o'clock.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

It's Time Wasted

Washington, May 14.

A day or so ago, Mr. John W. Hanes, newly appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, whose ambitious and somewhat overadvertised efforts to bring together the President and the big-business leaders fell slightly short of the advance notices, paid another of his frequent visits to the White House.

This time he conferred at great length with Mr. James Roosevelt, the Assistant President, whose very lucrative side line is insurance. Later, it was stated that Mr. Hanes again is "sounding out" the business leaders with the idea of having them submit "practical suggestions" to the President and was "much encouraged." Now, greatly as cooperation between Government and business is to be desired, it is not good news that Mr. Hanes is to make another attempt. This is said not to discourage the effort, but merely as a matter of experience.

The cold fact is that, over a period of four years, every effort of the sort has resulted not in more cooperation but less. Most of the time the business men either have been kicked in the pants by Roosevelt in order to convince his Left Wing intimates that he was not going to "let the people down," or they have been made to look silly by ensuing Administration acts and words. Take, for example, what followed Mr. Hanes' carefully staged presentation some weeks ago of the signed statement by sixteen very conspicuous leaders "pledging cooperation." One thing that happened was that the President immediately sent a message to Congress urging that authority be given the SEC for an investigation of the insurance companies.

It seems hard to believe that Mr. Hanes knew Mr. Roosevelt contemplated such a move when he got his sixteen signatures, as at lenst two of the sixteen were heads of big insurance companies. But if he didn't know it, one would think he would feel a little pained. No one seems to have a clear idea of why insurance companies should be investigated now, nor what it is hoped to discover as a result of investigation, though it is true that among certain of the more advanced New Dealers there has always been an itch to "regulate" insurance companies. Some of them believe that under such an investigation they can again drag in the Morgan firm, make out a case of "money monopoly" and give what they call a "good show." They have rather elaborate plans along these lines. It can hardly be considered a cooperative move.

Another thing that followed Mr. Hanes' big cooperative splash was the totally unexpected lecture read the banks by Mr. Jesse Jones, who warned that if they wanted to keep credit in private hands they had better be more liberal in lending. Coming from anyone else in the Administration this would have been more or less true to form and not mattered much, but coming from Mr. Jones it was a shock to business men and bankers from which they have not yet recovered. For one thing, they know Mr. Jones knows better.

They know he knows that banks have much more idle money than they want and are only too anxious to lend at lower interest than anyone can remember.

They had every right to believe he understood the situation and was unsympathetic with unfounded criticism. They also say that Mr. Jones' own bank in Houston is no more liberal than any other "liquid" bank. They were sorry to have him talk that way, but say they "suppose he has to every once in a while."

Various other non-cooperative moves upon the part of the Administration, following Mr. Hanes' widely heralded cooperation plan, could be cited if there were space. The point is that these staged "get-together" efforts all end the same wny. The thing has been tried and failed enough times to make its futility clear. Mr, Roosevelt still believes he can spend his way back to prosperity. Despite a gigantic failure, costing sixteen billions; despite his own recorded words and despite the practically unanimous disapproval of big and little business men, he is bent upon trying the same thing again. The only "practical suggestion" n business man could make to him is "don't," and that he won't take. Mr. Hanes is an earnest young man, who apparently hasn't ndded things up in Washington yet. The time will come when he, along with the business men who have been used so often in this cooperation game, will wonder why their common sense didn't tell them they were wasting their time.

STRAWBERRIES

To mnny persons the word "strawberry" is synonymous with shortcake. Others think immediately of their favorite strawberries with cream. Or they may like choice berries best, served with their green caps and the stems attached, circling a mound of powdered sugar as "strawberries au naturel." Since the berries are so good in themselves they need no fancy fixing.

One dish that's decorative and delicious, yet simple is strawberries supreme. Select large, very ripe berries. After they are washed, capped, and thoroughly dried off fold them into sweetened, stiffly whipped cream until every berrey is coated. Serve at once, before the juice is drawn from the berries and thins the cream.

Strawberries are also good cut and combined with fresh pineapple or bananas to make a fruit cup. Orange juice poured over cut strawberries makes a simple fruit cocktail. And they are one of the season's best garnishes for many desserts and salads.

The ideal preserving strawberries are easy to cap, medium sized, and firm. They have a rich flavor and a light, bright red color that does not turn dark with preserving. The berries are uniform in size so that they will cook quickly. And they are firm-ripe rather than soft-ripe.

Following are two recipes for strawberry preserves. For best results not more than 6 or 8 pounds of fruit should be handled at one time.

Strawberry Preserves

Select large, firm, tart berries. Wash, drain, and remove caps. For each pound of fruit use 1 pound of sugar. Combine the fruit and sugar in alternate layers and let stand 8 to 10 hours or overnight before cooking. While heating to boiling, stir carefully. Boil rapidly for 15 to 20 minutes or until the sirup is somewhat thick, taking care to prevent burning. Remove the scum. Fill hot, sterilized jars three-fourths full of the berries. Add enough sirup to completely fill the containers and seal.

Strawberry Sun Preserves

These preserves can be made only if there is sufficient hot sunshine to cause rapid evaporation.

Prepare choice strawberries as in the recipe above. For each pound of these choice berries allow 1 pound of sugar and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Prepare a sirup from the juice of less prefect berries and sugar. To do this crush small berries, then stir them while cooking for about 3 minutes. Strain. To each pound of choice berries allow one-fourth cup of this juice and 1 pound of sugar. Add the sugar to the julce, stir, and heat slowly until the sugar is entirely dissolved. Add the berries to the sirup and simmer for 3 to 5 minutes.

Drain the berries from the sirup and place about an inch apart on shallow enameled pans or china platters. Boil the sirup until it is fairly thick; that is, for about 10 minutes, or to 221 degrees F. Remove the scum, add the lemon juice, and pour the sirup in a thin layer over the berries. Cover with window glass propped up about one-fourth inch from the pans. Place in the sun for 2 or 3 days, or until the sirup has jellied. Take inside at night, and after each day's sunning turn the berries over. Without reheating put the preserves into hot sterilized jars and seal.

SOME OF THE EARLY LAND SPECULATORS IN GARRETT

THE DEAKINS BROTHERS

The Deakins family is of interest to us, not only because of its land holdings here, but because Colonel Francis Deakins made many important early surveys in what is now Garrett county, including the Military Lots, in 1787, and his brother, Colonel William Deakins, was closely associated with President Washington in locating the National Capital in the District of Columbia.

William Deakins, Sr., was a son of John Deakins, an English emigrant to Prince George's county, Maryland. He married, in 1738, Tabitha Marbury, widow of James Hoye. Their children were:

(1) Francis, born November 12, 1739; died October 28, 1804.

(2) William, born March 12, 1742; died March 3, 1798.

(3) Leonard Marbury, born March 9, 1747; died June 28, 1824.

The plantation of William Deakins, Sr., "Bloomfield," was near Bladensburg, Prince George's county. His Colonial home there is still in use and in a good state of preservation. William Deakins, his sons and step-son, Paul Hoye, were all ardent revolutionists.

Colonel Francis Deakins resided in Georgetown, D. C. During the Revolutionary War he was a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Maryland militia. He was a Presidential elector from Maryland in 1796 and again in 1800, when he voted for Thomas Jefferson.

Francis Deakins was a surveyor as well as a dealer in Washington City lots and in "Western lands." In 1768 he surveyed for Lord Baltimore his Great Glades Manor and Green Glades Manor, both in what is now Garrett county. In 1787 he was employed by the State of Maryland, with ten assistant surveyors, to survey the "Military Lots" westward of Fort Cumberland. Incidentally he surveyed what became known as the "Deakins Line," which is practically the Western boundary of Maryland and of Garrett county as well. The old State road from Westernport to the Virginia state line near Terra Alta was laid out by Col. Deakins in 1786. It followed the general route of the "Glades Path" of the Indians across Garrett county.

In 1794 Francis Deakins was associated with Robert Morris and others in real estate deals in Washington, through which he lost heavily, but at the time of his death he still owned extensive tracts of land, principally in what is now West Virginia. Having no children, he willed most of his property to his brother, Leonard M., and to his half-brother, Paul Hoye.

Colonel William Deakins also resided in Georgetown. He was one of the most active of the young Maryland revolutionists and rose to the rank of Colonel in the State militia. As one of the justices of Frederick county, he presided at the trials of a number of persons indicted for "damning Congress, damning Whigs and rebels, wishing success to the King's arms" and other grave offenses against the peace and dignity of the independent State of Maryland.

In 1788 he was a delegate to the convention called to revise the State Constitution.

Probably the most important public service of William Deakins, Jr., however, was the work he did as one of two confidential agents of President Washington in buying the lands in the District of Columbia to be laid out for the public buildings and for sale in lots to private residents.

In 1790 Congress authorized the President to select a site on the Potomac River for the National Capital. At least three sites were considered: One in Washington county; one in Frederick county and the one finally selected—the District of Columbia.

Col. Francis Deakins submitted to the President draft plans of at least two proposed sites. On November 12 he wrote Washington from the Monocacy River enclosing a draft he had prepared "of the lands you viewed about this place." There is also a letter from General O. H. Williams to Francis Deakins in which the General says: "I understand that you intend to furnish the President with plats of land adjacent to the Conoeochegue." This was the Capital site proposed and considered in Washington county at Williamsport. It is of interest to note how cautiously the President proceeded to acquire the land needed for the new Capital City in order not to excite the cupidity of the owners and land speculators. As his agents he selected Col. William Deakins and Benjamin Stoddard, both of Georgetown. Here are extracts from a long letter of instructions he sent them with a rought draft of lands he desired purchased:

Philadelphia, Feb. 3d, 1791.

Gentlemen:—In asking your aid in the following case, permit me at the same time to ask the most perfect secrecy. The Federal territory being located . . . The object of this letter to to ask you to endeavor to purchase these grounds of the owners for the public . . . but as if for yourselves, and to conduct your propositions so as to excite no suspicion that they are on behalf of the public.

Go. Washington.

Probably none were as well posted on the lands in the new Federal "territory" as were William and Francis Deakins. It appears they owned little of the land needed by the Government, but their family possessed considerable property nearby. William Deakins had worked earnestly to get the Capital located near Georgetown, as is apparent from the following letter written before the President's decision:

George Town, Nov. 3, 1790.

George Washington, Esqr.,
President of the United States,
Mount Vernon.

Sir:—The day after you left this place we employed a surveyor to lay down our situations, but it has taken more time than we expected to ascertain the exact quantity of land held by each proprietor within the lines laid down. I expect on Sunday or Monday next to hand you the platt and proposals from the holders of the land.

I am, very respectfully, sir,
Your ob't serv't,
Will Deakins, Junr.

Washington had recently spent a day inspecting the Capital site here, and had at that time received a letter signed by nine of the property owners, including William Deakins, offering to sell their land at a reasonable price.

We note that the price finally agreed upon for the purchase of land for the public buildings and city losts was 25 pounds sterling ($67) per acre—probably a fair price at the time, but "down town" Washington property is many times this value today.

Colonel William Deakins for several years was treasurer of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners. He had no children, and willed his property to his wife, brothers and half-brother, Paul Hoye. He died in 1798 and his remains lie beside those of his brother, Francis, in Rock Creek cemetery, Washington.

Captain Leonard M. Deakins, the youngest brother, commanded a company in Griffith's Battalion of the Flying Camp, which marched to New York in July, 1776.

After the War, Captain Deakins resided on the family homestead at Bladensburg, which he inherited from his father. He was not an active business man, but he married twice and reared eleven children. He died in 1824 and was buried in the family graveyard on his plantation.

Francis William Deakins (1803-1883), son of Leonard M. Deakins, married Jane Cook in 1836 and in the same year located on a large tract of the Deakins land on the Northwestern Turnpike at the Cheat River bridge. He had eleven children, most of whom resided in West Virginia, where a number of his descendants live today.

Deakins' Lands In Garrett County

Of the lands surveyed by the speculators of 1774 in what is now Garrett county, Francis and William Deakins patented the following tracts: Mt. Nebo, Mt. Airy, Hunter's Art, The Hotel, Elder Spring, Accident, A False Alarm, a total of 3630 acres.

But most of the Deakins lands were in what is now West Virginia, patented to their families over a period of years by the State of Virginia. Deakins patents in Virginia and Maryland possibly exceeded 100,000 acres.

Settler vs. Speculator

How did the actual pioneer settlers view the activities of the big speculators? Some light is given on this subject by the following from the History of Preston County, West Va.:

We have observed that the Virginia Government was more considerate of the land speculator than of the actual settler. The most conspicuous of the early instances of non-residentil monopoly was that of Francis and William Deakins, of Maryland. In 1784-1789 they patented 52 tracts in the East side, making an area of 33,383 acres.

That the actual settlers resented this is expressed in a petition of 1793, in which they state that they—

Forced a settlement upon the lands in this county at the risque of the lives of themselves and their families, and thereby became possessed of the equitable right in the soil, contrary distinguished from the swarms of land jobbers that traveled through the country making tomahawk improvements and selling them before any actual settlement was made thereon.

A "tomahawk" claim in Virginia could be made to as much as 400 acres by simply blazing the trees around the land desired. This claim was legal until a survey was made and patent issued.

Gabriel Sples Out The Land

Some of the speculators employed actual settlers to explore the country and pick out the best lands for them. One of these explorers was Gabriel Friend, son of John Friend, Sr., the first permanent settlers in Garrett county.

From a deed recorded in the District of Columbia, dated July 27, 1808, we learn that a "certain Gabriel Friend did enter into a contract with the said Francis and William Deakins in their lifetimes to locate certain Virginia land warrants and for which said services the said Friend was to have a certain part of the land so located by him."

Francis and William Deakins conveyed the land promised Friend, at his request, to "a certain Mr. Ward," but the deed was lost. Therefore Leonard M. Deakins and John Hoye, executors of the Deakins estates, made this new deed to Samuel Ward and Elizabeth Friend, of Allegany county, Maryland.

This Elizabeth Friend was a sister of Samuel Ward and the wife of John Friend, Jr., first settler in the Ginseng Run. The land thereby conveyed was 138 acres in Monongalia county, Va., granted to William Deakins in 1787.

MT. LAKE PARK

The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hillside's dew-pearl'd;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorne;
God's in His heaven—
All's right with the world.
Robert Browning.—

Last week the above lines certainly would have been a "misfit" It was anything but springlike; in fact it was near winter weather. Even now the weather does not look too sure for springtime.

Rumors are again rife that the Park will change hands. To whom it will go we cannot say. Well, it's a good place and we hope it finds a good owner. Goodness knows it is deserving of a better fate than being "booted" around as it has been in the late years. In the meantime the town authorities are going ahead and dong their best to make things go for a fine summer season. Let's hope it will be one of the best.

The local postoffice was open Sunday afternoon from four to five for the air mail service, and despite the nasty weather over a hundred air mail letters were sent out. The Mountain Lake "cachet", or air mail envelopes for Sunday were printed in red. There is also a blue envelope. The left-hand corner has a picture of the Dr. Charles Baldwin cottage on it. Miss Kathrine O'Donnell, the local postmaster, had a fine display of small planes hung around the office. Many posters of attractive designs were on the walls. Mountain Lake seems to be going "air-minded."

An educator declares it is just about impossible to get the modern child to believe fairy tales.

Voters, however, seem to be swallowing them whole by the dozen.

One never knows how far apparently insignificant happenings will spread.

Last week a special train, carrying delegates to the national convention of Women's clubs at Kansas City, stopped here in Oakland for a delegate. Mickey's band from Loch Lynn went to the station and played. A number of people gathered there.

Mrs. Winchell, the delegate to the convention, stated that this event created quite a stir among those on the train. Whenever she had occasion to be introduced to anyone, she was always identified as being the lady who got on the train at Oakland where they had the lovely band out to play for them.

There are many ways in which Oakland and the mountain top can become known to people.

Last week the Board of Education expressed an opinion that the school buildings should not be used during school hours for purposes for which they were not intended, such as basketball, orchestra, or other similar type of extra curricula activities.

Anyone who is acquainted with the situation at Oakland high school will no doubt agree that the board's opinion is sound, but anyone will also realize that such instruction is a vital part of every boy's and girl's education.

Sixty-seven percent of the high school is transported, and it is necessary to have the whole program during school hours to give the great majority of pupils its advantages. The building is not sound proof. The music room and auditorium are not placed to make them serviceable as they should be without disturbing other classes. If possible they should be serviceable.

If this opinion of the Board were carried out it would curtail attempts to offer boys and girls a well rounded and enriched program. Edueation would go back fifteen or twenty years because of inadequate facilities and building.

According to the high school principal, it has already become necessary to sacrifice participation in the annual field and track day because there is not sufficient playground space to prepare the students for this contest.

It is absurd that a school with nearly one-half the high school enrollment of the county has a playground epace equivalent only to that of a one-room rural school. It is time for action of some kind.

There were twenty-three pupils in ID who earned a certificate, the highest number from any one room.

Twenty-seven pupils will get the blue ribbon certificate. Garland Lewis heads the list with sixty-four books. CHOIR SCHOOL TO TEACH MUSIC-WORSHIP RELATION

Is Being Held July 11 To 15 At Mountain Lake Park in Conjunction With Mt. Choir Festival

ANOTHER FEATURE ADDED

A liturgical choir school, designed for ministers, organists, choir directors and other musically minded people, to study the rebirth of worship through song, is being held at Mountain Lake Park this year in conjunction with the Mountain Choir Festival which is now in its fifth season.

The festival dates are July 15 to 17, with the choir school running from July 11 to July 15, inclusive. Rev. Felix Robinson, director of the festival, states that the liturgical choir school represents a departure from the usual schools of this type, and instructors will attempt to show the relation of music to worship rather than to the sermon, emphasizing to choirs and ministers the importance of correlating their program in terms of worship.

"It is our aim to have more people participate in worship services," Rev. Robinson said, "and in traveling throughout the area I find the school is attracting wide attention."

The school faculty will include Rev. Donald W. Brown, dean, of Aurora, W. Va.; Becket Gibbs, of Union Theological Seminary, New York; Dr. Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh composer; Rev. Felix G. Robinson, formerly of the Westminster Choir School, now of Oakland; Prof. Raymond K. Hollinger, Hagerstown, choir director and this year's assistant director of the Choir Festival.

The courses cover six subjects: "The Ecumenical Norms of Christian Worship", "An Interpretation of Living Rites", "The Relation Between Minister and Musician", "The Choirmaster and His Choir", "The Art of Plainsong", and "The Organ."

Rev. Brown, of Aurora, is receiving applications. The tuition fee is $15.00.

Music lovers of the nation will also have an opportunity during the two weeks preceding the festival to attend the Huss Summer School of Musical Ideals, in its second season, at Mt. Lake Park. From July 5 to 16 Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holden Huss, of Steinway Hall, New York City, will conduct this school giving master classes for students, teachers, artists and serious amateurs.

Returning home Saturday from a week's trip throughout this section conducting rehearsals of unit choirs who are to take part in the Mountain Choir Festival on Saturday evening, Rev. Robinsin announced a new feature for his three-day program.

Professor and Mrs. Maurice Matteson, on the staff of the Frostburg State Teachers College, Frostburg, will give a lecture recital on folk music in the Appalachians from 11 a. m. until noon, on Friday, July 15, and from 2 until 3 p. m., he will direct a program of folk music by native folk musicians.

Professor Matteson was formerly head of the department of music, University of South Carolina; is a graduate student of Columbia University; has compiled a book of folk music and has also composed a number of songs. He is also known as a singer and Mrs. Matteson is an accompanist of note.

Rev. Robinson has been conducting rehearsals weekly at Oakland and in Keyser to augment the festival choir that is to sing in the oratoria "Elijah" on Saturday evening, July 16, under the direction of Prof. Raymond Hollinger, Hagerstown. The choral unit will broadcast on Saturday afternoon over the Columbia system and the oratoria will be presented Saturday evening with Reinald Warrenrath, opera star, and M. P. Moller, Jr., as guest soloists.

Choral units will be started this week—one at Grafton, W. Va., by Dr. Matthew Lundquist, professor of music at Salem College, Salem, W. Va., and one at Frostburg by Prof. Matteson.

On Friday evening, July 15, there will be a program under the auspices of the Maryland Federation of Music clubs. On Saturday afternoon there will be the hymn contest and the junior choir contest. On Sunday afternoon there will be the adult choir contest, regular Festival feature, with the outdoor processional and the choral eucharist on Sunday evening.

Former festivals have attracted approximately 5,000 people to Mountain Lake Park, and those in charge of this year's events are looking forward to even greater crowds this year.

Theatre Tax Mounts

The theatre tax thus far during May has mounted considerably over average months, with another Sunday yet to go before final figures are tabulated.

During four Sundays this month the tax reached the sum of $78.00, with Sunday, May 8, showing the largest figures, when "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" were on the screen, $32.75 being realized. Other Sundays showed $12.30, $18.00, and $14.95.

Fifty percent of this tax goes to the Maryland Children's Aid society, 25 percent each to the Oakland Fire Department and the Oakland Library. Last year the tax amounted to $828.10.

GARRETT HAS RECEIVED $331,000 IN WPA FUNDS

Bulk Of Money Has Gone To Improve Heavily Traveled Dirt Roads In County

Garrett county has received about $331,000 from the WPA in the past two and a half years, F. H. Dryden, State administrator, has revealed.

Of the twelve projects completed, the majority of the funds were spent on covering heavily traveled dirt roads with stone. Among the major road projects were the Fish Hatchery road, the Meadow Mountain road, Miller's Run road, Hoyes-Friendsville road, and the Hoyes road, Dryden stated.

About 400 men were employed thruout the county up to the end of April in the road and other projects which have included the Oakland municipal golf course, sanitary sewers at Grantsville, and a flood control project at Kitzmiller.

The county mine-sealing project, sponsored by the United States Public Health Service and the Maryland Health Department to stop the flow of acid from the mines into the Potomac and Youghiogheny rivers, has given employment to a number of the men, he said.

COUNTY-WIDE FIELD AND TRACK MEET TO BE HELD

Events Will Take Place Thursday, June 2, At Accident

The twenty-first annual field and track meet of the Garrett county public schools will be held next Thursday, June 2, at Accident, for the fourth consecutive year at this point.

The meet this year is being held under the supervision of Thomas C. Ferguson, State Supervisor of Physical Education. Meets were formerly held under the direction of the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore.

The games committee includes Foster O. Speicher, Friendsville, chairman; W. J. Glenn, Friendsville; Frank J. Getty, Grantsville; B. O. Aiken, Accident; F. D. Bittle, Oakland; Asa Lewis, Kempton; O. P. Jones, Kitzmiller; Mrs. Iva B. Walker, Kitzmiller; Mrs. Charles W. Ream, Oakland.

The number of entries will be considerably cut down this year as Oakland High school has announced that its students would not enter the meet because of insufficient playground room for training.

Last year 1054 boys and 1137 girls participated in the meet.

The games tournament will be held from 9:00 to 12:30 o'clock, while the competitive track and field events will be conducted from 1:30 to 3:30.

All schools that will participate in the day's sports have been practicing for the past several weeks in preparation for the meet and keen competition is expected.

Dr. Powers, Maryland Bible Society, Here Monday And Tuesday

Dr. Edgar Cordell Powers, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Maryland Bible Society, met officers and directors of the Garrett County Bible Society here on Monday evening. Dr. Powers was in the county Monday and Tuesday concerning the work of the society in distributing Bibles in this section.

On Tuesday evening Dr. Powers also addressed the regular communication of the Oakland Masonic lodge. About thirty members of the fraternity from Deer Park, Friendsville and Oakland were present. Dr. Powers is Grand Chaplain of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Maryland.

FOUR PEOPLE ANNOUNCE THEMSELVES THIS WEEK

All Aspire To Office Of Commissioner From Dists. 2, 7 And 10

Four persons are announcing themselves as candidates for County Commissioner in this week's issue of The Republican, subject to the Republican primary election on September 12.

They are Daniel Sisler, of Friendsville, district No. 2; Alex Frazee, of district No. 2; Charles V. Harvey, of near Deer Park, district No. 10, and Roy O. Winters, of Oakland, district No. 7.

Mr. Sisler is a son of H. R. Sisler and has always been a resident of the county. He was a school teacher for six years and has had other experiences as a mine foreman, soil supervisor, and a farmer. He is also a World War veteran.

Mr. Harvey is a son of the late J. L. Harvey, and is engaged in farming in the Deer Park district, owning and operating two farms there. Mr. Harvey states in his announcement that he is much interested in better road conditions and if elected will do all he can to improve them. Mr. Harvey is married and has two children.

Mr. Frazee states he has been a lifelong Republican, has lived in district 2 all of his life, and is greatly interested in county affairs. He is an excellent citizen and large tax payer.

Mr. Winters resides on the outskirts of Oakland where he has a farm and also conducts a dairy. He has been a taxpayers for a number of years and was a former Sheriff of the county.

All candidates are asking the support of the Republican voters at the primary election.

Three commissioners are to be nominated on the Republican ticket this fall, and with four who are announcing this week, there are now five candidates in the field, John T. Dixon from district No. 10, having made his announcement several weeks ago.

J. S. Teats Candidate for Sheriff

Juniper S. Teats, District No. 5, is the lone candidate thus far for the nomination of Sheriff, subject to the result of the Republican primary election.

Mr. Teats is engaged as a salesman, covering much of the county in his travels and is highly regarded by those with whom he comes in contact.

HUGE SLIDE IS BLOCKING ROUTE 50 NEAR MACOMBER

Pile Of Earth 400 Feet Long and 40 Feet High Covers Roadway

Part of Laurel Mountain, 18 miles west of Red House, soaked with almost continuous rainfall for the past two weeks, broke away Monday evening about five o'clock, covering the Northwestern Turnpike, U. S. Route 50, for a distance of 400 feet with a wall of earth and rock about 40 feet high. Through traffic over the route has been stopped since that time, and all cars, busses and trucks, going westward are being rerouted either through Rowlesburg, Kingwood and Tunnelton, W. Va., or are being stopped at Red House and directed through Oakland, Kingwood and back to Route 50 at Fellowsville.

Crews of workmen with equipment from the State Roads Commission of West Virginia have been at the scene since Monday night in an endeavor to clear the roadway, but it is unlikely that the road will be open to traffic today or tomorrow. Three steam shovels worked Monday night, Tuesday and were still at work this morning loading the earth and rock into trucks which had been driven about a mile before being dumped.

The mountain slide started from a distance of several hundred feet up the steep slope above the roadway and when it stopped the narrow valley was almost completely closed with forty feet of earth, reaching the bed of a small stream many feet beyond the road right-of-way. Trees carried down with the slide remain upright.

There were rumors immediately after the slide occurred that a pick-up truck carrying a New York license plate had been caught in the slide, but there will be no way of either confirming or denying this story until the highway is practically cleared.

The slide occurred just east of Cold Spring Park, a little watering station along the way, and about a mile west of Macomber.

Cheat Mountain, between Aurora and Erwin, seemed to be well drained of water, although at numerous places along the mountain side earth and rocks had rolled down into the roadway.

400 TO 600 EXPECTED ON CAMERA FANS' EXCURSION

125 Cars Will Be Required To Take People on 30-Mile Trip

With the publicity that the Baltimore and Ohio is giving the coming excursion to Oakland on June 5, it was estimated last night that approximately 125 cars would be needed to give the excursionists their 30 mile trip through the Swallow Falls state forest and around Deep Creek Lake.

Mayor Fraley and members of the Town Council who arranged the excursion with the B. and O., urge that citizens volunteer the use of their cars.

Upon the arrival of the train at 1 p. m., the people will be welcomed at the station by the Mayor. The band will also play. Then the trip will begin. Two hours will be spent around Swallow Falls, then an hour at McComas' Beach where they will be entertained by square dancing. This will be followed by an hour's drive around Deep Creek, returning to Oakland around 5:30 or 6. The train is scheduled to leave at 6:30.

A letter from train officials in charge stated they had distributed 15,000 handbills, 650 placards, 5,000 stickers, and 4,00 pamphlets about the excursion.

Hosiery Mill May Come

Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley said this morning that there was a possibility of having a hosiery mill locate here in Oakland.

A letter was received from a concern desiring to move from its present location, and Oakland was recommended by the head of another hosiery mill that contemplated coming here several months ago, but who finally decided to retire from business.

Homemakers' Column

For those of your family who like lemon flavors try the following:

Lemon Snowballs

Three eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons water, the grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup flour, 2 level teaspoons baking powder.

Beat the yolk of the eggs and sugar together till very light, add the water, lemon juice and rind; then the flour and baking powder sifted together. Beat the whites of the eggs till stiff, add them to the batter and fold in as gently as possible. Grease small cups, put a heaping tablespoon of the batter in each, and steam or boil for half an hour. Turn out, roll in powdered sugar, and serve with a lemon sauce.

Lemon Chiffon Pie

One and one-half teaspoons gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt.

Soak gelatin in water. Separate eggs. Beat yolks slightly in top of double boiler; add lemon rind, lemon juice, salt and half the sugar; stir and cook over hot water until of a custard consistency. Add soaked gelatin and stir often while custard cools. When mixture just begins to thicken, add stiffly beaten egg whites to which the other ½ cup of sugar has been added. Pour into prepared pie shell and place in refrigerator one hour or longer, or until filling is firm enough to cut.

Frozen Lemon Custard

One pint milk, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons of lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon rind, 3 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 egg whites.

Mix sugar, flour, salt, and egg yolks and add scalded milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add lemon juice and rind, chill. Beat egg whites, adding the 3 tablespoons sugar. Beat until creamy, fold into the chilled mixture. Freeze.

THURSDAY, MAY 26, 1938

HELPING US ALL—

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials are helping this section in a number of ways in acquainting people of the cities with the advantages of spending their vacations here in the mountains.

For such helpfulnes these officials deserve the hearty thanks of all in the community.

They have recently issued a well-printed and attractive folder concerning the mountain top, which is being widely distributed.

They ran an excursion here last fall to show people the scenery and are repeating such an excursion on Sunday, June 5.

They consented to have the National Limited stop here during the summer months on every Friday evening from May 27 to September 2, which should be a great convenience to those in the cities who wish to spend the week-end in this area.

There is no way of knowing just how many hundreds of people will be drawn to the mountain top as a result of these gestures of friendliness on the part of the railroad company's officials. Such cooperation is much appreciated.

Citizens of the county should acquaint their friends in the cities about the National Limited, as many probably would take advantage of the Friday night stop.

BUSINESS TO BLAME

Now the real blame for the recession in business is being disclosed. For a time Washington told us there wasn't any such animal. The new depression, it was claimed, occurred only in the minds of the people. Now, however, it is being admitted that something is the matter with the "works" at Washington. But as usual it isn't the fault of the New Deal but of private business. The Brain Trusters primed the pump all right and then business grabbed the ball and ran away with it. At least, that is the statement accredited to President Roosevelt and he has informed the newspapermen that the chief concern of the new monopoly inquiry will be to devise ways and means by which the administration can keep control of the ball when the new pump priming project gets to going good.

It is reassuring to know, of course, that the New Dealers had nothing to do with causing this new depression; that it is all the fault of business. It is of course easily possible for a Republican, or Horse and Buggy President to cause a depression but this couldn't be done by New Dealers. When they win they planned it that way. But when they lose, they didn't plan it that way—business just took advantage of a slight fumble and more or less deliberately ran away with the ball, cutting its own economic throat just to spite the reformers.

Of course, it looks a little improbable that the New Dealers could actually "lose the ball", with all the facilities they have for keeping it. They can expand and contract the credit, raise and lower tariffs, increase and devalue the dollar—do about anything they want to—and still they "lost the ball," and business did "all the dirt" to the country.

This must be the true explanation, because the President himself said early in his administration that if the New Dealers made any mistakes he would be the first to admit the fact and to usher in a change of policy. He hasn't done this, so it must be that they haven't made any mistakes.

Of course there is a little difference of opinion on this matter even among the pillars of the administration themselves. In a recent speech before the New Jersey Bankers' Association, Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, admitted that the government was partially responsible for the present "depression" and he called it a "depression" by name. He said that the government had made a mistake in "timing" its pump priming program, and that the huge bonus payment in 1936 had helped to bring about the inflationary psychology which ended in the collapse of 1937.

We are sure Mr. Eccles must be mistaken about this, even if he does think that the next pump priming experiment will be better controlled—doubtless through the "anti-monopoly" investigation. With a Congressional election coming on we don't think it is fair to blame the New Dealers for anything. To do so might nullify some of the political results of pump priming. It wasn't the fault of the college profesors but of our wicked business men who grabbed the ball from the New Deal quarterback and ran in the wrong direction.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

President Mckinley issued a call for 75,000 volunteers, which would make the total army strength 280,000 men. The Spanish fleet was said to be bottled up in Santiago harbor.

A new town being built by the Pen-Mar Coal Company, north of Grantsville, was named Hastings. The village of Tub was about one mile west and a scene of great activity with its saw and woolen mills. Men were grading for a railroad from the mines to West Salisbury. It was thought the railroad would go through Grantsville.

There was also a news letter from a thriving town, Krug, located above Friendsville on the Youghiogheny. Knabb and Company were running their stave and saw mills at full capacity. They were employing 800 men in the operation of their mills, peeling bark, logging, railroading, grading, etc. A number of new houses were being built.

The season of 1898 looked promising with a greatly increased number of visitors here and at Mountain Lake Park as well as Deer Park already present. People frequenting the seaside resorts were said to be afraid that the Spanish fleet might sail along the coast and bambard the resorts.

William E. Smith, District No. 6, engaged in the snake business on a rather large scale. He sent to Rochester, Minn., a box of 22 rattlesnakes, which he had captured at dens along the Youghiogheny River between Swallow Falls and Sang Run.

Conrad Speicher, Keyser's Ridge, found three coins a mile west of the Ridge and on the site of the Braddock Road. Two of the coins were Spanish silver dollars coined in 1744 and 1746.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A contract was awarded for the construction of the Garrett County High school building in Oakland to E. L. Winchell and Company, of Mountain Lake Park, for $30,718. The building was to be of brick construction, 31x82 feet, three stories high.

Two tracts of land of the George F. Gephart estate, sold at auction, brought $20,350. One tract of 200 acres, partly timbered, was bought by the Blocher Lumber Company for $16,250.

War Savings stamp sales totaled the sum of $18,182.33. The sales were carried on through the pupils of the county schools.

At the Empire Theatre the management was showing the second episode of "The House of Hate," with Pearl White as the heroine. Other stars to be shown during the week were Mae Marsh, Billy Burke and Douglas Fairbanks.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Amiable But Futile

Washington, May 23.

In the New York Times last Sunday, Mr. John Hanes, the new Under Secretary of the Treasury, again discoursed at great, platitudinous length upon the necessity of cooperation between the Administration and business. Somewhat unnecessarily, he retold the story of the sixteen business leaders whom he had induced to sign a declaration pledging help to the President, which the President declared "Excellent." And, Mr. Hanes assures us, he is continuing his efforts to bring about a "better understanding."

Some one ought to take Mr. Hanes aside and acquaint him with the facts about the game in which he is playing. Undoubtedly, he is an earnest and well-meaning young man, hut he either does not see things clearly or he has been filled with the same kind of false hopes which, at different times, inspired Mr. Lewis W. Douglas, Mr. Dean Acheson, Mr. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy and other men of that type who had their day of intimate contact with the President. If Mr. Hanes is the sort of man his friends say he is, ultimately he, like the others, will shake off his cooperative illusions and get out. If, however, his friends overrate him, he may stick along after he wakes up, thus emulating his new chief, Mr. Morgenthau, whose voluntary retirement is almost inconceivable.

At the moment, Mr. Hanes is plainly thrilled with the novelty of public service and is in the state of mind where he thinks he has a mission. Actually, his efforts to bring about cooperation between Mr. Roosevelt and business do harm rather than good. That seems a strange thing to say of any move in a direction which nearly everybody agrees is desirable, but it happens to be the truth. It would be different if, as he seems to think, Mr. Hanes had discovered this idea or his efforts were the first along these lines. The fact, however, is that a dozen—and more—efforts, not perhaps as fully advertised as his but essentially the same, have been made in the past five years and failed with singular completeness, just as his will fail. To think otherwise is to ignore experience, disregard the facts and delude ourselves.

The harm in encouraging this new move by this new man is that it definitely misleads the public, obscures the real situation, promotes an unfounded hope that the thing is possible. Thus, it makes matters worse rather than better. It adds to the national confusion. It diminishes the strength of those who oppose the Administration policies as inherently unsound, without any real prospect of altering these policies or persuading Mr. Roosevelt to change his point of view. It is infinitely better to face realities, cease deceiving ourselves and acknowledge the irreconcilable nature of the differences, A few days ago Mr. Walter Lippmann made clear the basic reason these verbal expressions of good will toward and amiable words to business are so perfectly futile.

It is, he truthfully points out, simply against the interests of Administration politicians to bring about a business recovery in the normal way, just as it is against the interests of business men to aid in the pump-priming way, which produces an unsound, temporary and artificial prosperity. To expect these intrenched politicians to accept a normal recovery is to expect them to abdicate. It would be equivalent to relinquishing a power which they have acquired through the spending process, and which not only works in a way and for a time but is the most potent political asset ever known. In Mr. Roosevelt's case, to accept "constructive suggestions" from business men, or to really cooperate with business in promoting recovery in the normnl way, also involves admission of error and a retreat from his spectacular position, from which he recoils.

No better proof of this can be found than in the "recovery program" he is now forcing through Congress, agninst the judgment of little as well as big business, and with the private disapproval of most of the Senators who will vote for it. It ignores every recommendation that has come to him from n business source since this depression began. It insists once more upon the spending policy, which so tragically has failed, nnd in which the overwhelming majority of thoughtful men see grave danger, but which, as Mr. Lippmann says, "has become the most perfect device ever invented for winning elections and staying in office." In the light of what Mr. Roosevelt has done and is doing, in view of his clear determination not to deal with the depression the normal way, these good-will gestures and amiable words toward business, such as exude from Mr. Hanes, simply create an unwholesome optimism. There is no sense fooling ourselves.

MT. LAKE PARK

Mrs. Kiser of the Kiser Nursing home here has asked that we publish the fact that a few days ago a small black and white dog appeared at her home. He was fed and taken care of. There was a chain dragging when he arrived. Later the dog left her place, where it went she does not know, but the chain, a very good one, is still in her possession and any one claiming it can have it.

Noticed the road men of Mt. Lake at work again on Tuesday morning. Certainly they have had it tough. They would not much more than get a road in fair shape when it began to pour in torrents. Mr. Ed. Friend, who is in charge of the town work, is not discouraged however and will have the roads in shape before long.

The past wind and rain storms of the past few days caused the loss of many trees throughout the Park. It was only by good luck that many properties were not seriously damaged. Trees that had rotted and should have been taken down were blown against houses and the houses narrowly escaped severe damage.

A large tree in front of Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson's cottage was struck, and might have caused considerable trouble. In front of the Dixon cottage another tree fell. Along the boardwalk the willows were badly blown and torn. No one likes to think of cutting down trees but a tree that is not sound should come down, and we have many of that sort in Mt. Lake.

Of much interest here is the announcement of the wedding of Miss Edith Margaretta Gibbs, daughter of Mr. Shewell Gibbs, Sr., to Mr. William Charles Davis, of Washington, Pa. The marriage took place on Saturday, May 21, at the home of the bride in Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside in San Francisco, Calif., where the groom is located. Lesson for May 29

MAINTAINING PERSONAL EFFICIENCY

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20; I Cor. 9:24-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. I Cor. 9:25.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Daniel Pleased God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ten Times Strong.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—In Training for the Game of Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Liquor's Effect Upon Working Efficiency.

Personal efficiency is a subject which is receiving much attention in our day. There has never been so much accurate and usable information as we now have regarding diet, exercise, and medical care. The mind as well as the body has come in for attention and scores of books are available on the development and full use of the powers of personality. Some of these are trash, but others are helpful. Business is co-operating with the school and the home in giving boys and girls the opportunity to grow up to be useful and happy members of society. The church adds its important contribution, although we must confess that it is far from what it might be by the grace and power of God.

I. A Sound Mind in a Sound Body (Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20).

Daniel and his three Hebrew companions had been brought to Babylon as captives, and were there chosen to enter the royal school for future service at the court. Every provision was made for the students chosen for that school. Their diet, however, included not only meat which was unclean to the Jew but wine, which Daniel knew to be undesirable. It took holy boldness to ask to be excused from that which the king had prescribed, but Daniel was blessed not only with courage, but with tact and courtesy. A ten-day test of a simple diet and water proved so successful that the plan was continued. At the end of the three-year course the Hebrews were not only physically stronger but mentally and spiritually superior.

The experience of Daniel and his brethren is not just an incident eagerly grasped at by "blue-nosed reformers" to prevent their neighbors from "enjoying" intoxicating liquor. The testimony of science, of business, of experience in all ages, proves that the use of even an amount of alcohol so small that the user does not feel its presence materially "reduces endurance, accuracy, and rapidity of muscular action of all kinds" (Emerson). It so cuts down the ability to think clearly and to react promptly to danger that it is absolutely taboo with such responsible workers as railroad engineers. It is not a stimulant, but a narcotic, which dulls the nerve centers. Dr. Edward Rosenow says, "The use of alcohol as a beverage is never justified. There is no such thing as the right use of beverage alcohol."

Such information as the above is available in publications of temperance organizations, books by various writers, and even in publications by state liquor commissions. It is published in newspapers and magazines and circulated by safety organizations and insurance companies. Yet, unbelievable as it may seem, the use of liquor is on the increase.

II. Success in Life Calls for Self-Control (I Cor. 9:24-27).

Paul delighted in illustrations taken from the athletic field. He talked of running a race, of fighting a good fight. He knew the athlete's need of keeping his body under.

The one who serves his school or athletic association in physical competition gladly surrenders his personal liberty to the guidance of the coach. He eats carefully, sleeps full nights, exercises consistently, and above all does not use alcohol in any form. Listen to the words of great athletic coaches—Yost: "I would not waste my time trying to train or develop one who uses alcohol." Stagg: "Coaches and trainers are dead against the use of alcoholic liquors, even beer."

Paul rightly points out that all these sacrifices are made by men for what is but a translent earthly crown. How much more should we do for the sake of our souls. Temperance instruction may well stress the physical and mental degradation that follows the use of alcohol, but above all let us teach boys and girls that its use has sent countless souls to eternal punishment and separation from God. We should be deeply moved by the loss of personal efficiency, but what shall we say about the loss of a soul?

Faculty of Reason

Reason is a faculty of the mind by which it distinguishes truth from falsehood, and good from evil, and which enables the possessor to deduce inferences from facts, or from propositions.—Locke.

Get a Pontiac with Safety Shift and get everything you want at a price you can easily pay. Incidentally, the big, eye-stopping Pontiac's the answer for economy, too—owners say "18 to 24 miles per gallon!"

Geologist Saves Costs On Savage River Dam Construction

The Savage River dam site, in Garrett county, was simple; there were no serious geological problems involved, no difficulties, a safe dam could be built anywhere in the valley; but they called in a geologist anyhow and it is said will save $100,000 on construction costs at an expense of less than $1,000. Edwin B. Eckel, of the Geological Survey, tells how it was done in the current issue of Economic Geology.

Economic considerations limited the possible location of the dam site to a three-quarter mile section of the Savage River channel. Anywhere within this section engineers could build a safe dam. Geological evidence showed that in one part the bed rock was a shale which would become slippery when wet, while in a near-by section the same rock, here a limestone, contained fissures which might cause leaks in the reservoir.

Test pits and drill holes at several possible dam sites showed, before construction was started, just what underground conditions the engineers had to contend with. As a result of these studies, several superficially good sites were abandoned, the final site chosen being a compromise, based almost entirely on geological consideration.

Lesson for June 5

SERVING BY PERSONAL DEVOTION TO CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:3 11, 27-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—She hath done what she could. Mark 14:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Mary's Present to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Mary's Love Gift.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Our Love to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Heart of Christian Service.

"The love of Christ eonstraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14) was the all-sufficient moving force back of the greatest life of service rendered by any man. It is this personal devotion to the One whom we love "because he first loved us" (I John 4:19), which makes Christianity "different from all other religions. Christianity alone acts through this natural and deep hunger of mankind with a personalized religion which ean be a satisfying joy and pleasure. Yet at this point Christians fail the most and make difficult the work of serving Jesus. They see religion as a job to be done, a form to be observed, a duty to be fulfilled" (W. R. King).

We need to renew that devotion to Christ which expresses itself in true worship. Prayer is too often asking for things; praise, thanking for things (unless we become so engrossed with them that we forget to return thanks); and worship, which is a coming to God in adoration and thanksgiving for what He is rather than what He ean give, is forgotten. Our Heavenly father wants us to show love toward Him. The act of Mary was pure personal devotion and worship, and its fragrance lives to this day.

I. Wasted—But Eternally Saved (vv. 3-9).

The dark hours of betrayal and death were before our Lord. All around Ilim was hostility. Even in the inner eircle of the disciples there was misunderstanding and bickering. Mary (to be distinguished from the sinful woman of Luke 7) with the quick intuition of an understanding woman's heart knew what He was passing through, and with a magnificent act of love stood by Him in the fellowship of His sufferings. Dr. Morgan points out that it was "an impulsive act . . . born of the prodigality of love daring not to calculate." In the words of verse 9, Jesus declared that the gospel and that which this woman had done were to "stand side by side with each other forever. That keen intuition of love, that unealculating outpouring of love, was Godlike, and an act in fellowship with the act of God by which a world is redeemed."

Judas, who was a thief, said she had wasted money that should be used for the poor (John I2:6). The other disciples thought well of his argument and murmured against her. But Jesus commended her. To be thrifty and frugal is commendable, but there are times when the heart should speak without being silenced by the drawing of purse strings.

II. Saved — But Eternally Lost (vv. 10, 11).

Judas betrayed Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. He "made" some money. The fact that he did it by betraying the Son of God may be worse in degree but is not worse in kind than the betrayal of the youth of our land by those who make merchandise of their eternal souls. A recent news item from England declared that church organizations were making money out of properties publicly known as centers of prostitution. The leaders deplored the situation, but said they could not prevent it without losing the income of the property. Why not lose every cent rather than be party to the betrayal of any man or woman?

III. Bold Words—But Weak Actions (vv. 27-31).

Verses 12-26 tell of the gathering of the Lord and His disciples for their last passover and for the establishment of the Lord's supper. As they left the sacred meeting and went out Into the Mount of Olives Jesus foretold His betrayal and His coming denial by the disciples.

Peter, quick with his tongue, and bold in spirit, spake swelling words of devotion and assurance. Sadly the Lord foretold his threefold denial of that very night. Again Peter and all the disciples declared their willingness to die with Him. They undoubtedly meant what they said, but reckoning without the weakness of the flesh they failed Him.

The lesson that is written large in this story for you and for me is, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (I Cor. 10:12).

Complaining

We have no more right to put our discordant states of mind into the lives of those around us and rob them of their sunshine and brightness than we have to enter their houses and steal their silverware.—Julia Seton.

Forfitude and Duty

True fortitude I take to be the quiet possession of a man's self, and an undisturbed doing his duty, whatever evil besets or danger lies in his way.—Locke.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Forcing Them Together

One effect of the entrance of the Roosevelt Administration into the Democratic primaries this summer is to make more certain a coalition of anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans in the Congressional elections this fall. Largely, this will be an unofficial coalition, brought about by the voters themselves and without leader direction, but it will be reasonably concrete—and, at least in spots, effective.

—o—

Most experienced politicians agree about this. Most of them agree, too, that the revelation of the personal willingness of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hopkins to use the power given by the relief billions for partisan purposes has greatly stimulated the coalition tendency. Unless they want to be crushed by the weight of Federal funds, there is nothing else to do. The expectation is that in the coming election there will be a greater disregard of the party labels than ever before. Nothing else makes sense. Politics has reached a stage in America where continued adherence to either Democratic or Republican party by those not dependent upon them for a living has become too absurd to defend. Even in South Carolina recognition of this was given the other day when the Democratic State Convention by an overwhelming vote rescinded the rule pledging voters who participated in the Democratic primary to support the Democratic national candidate.

Unquestionably, the thought back of that action was that the departure of the Democratic party nationally from Democratic doctrines and alliances has been so great that in 1940 South Carolina, heretofore unshakably Democratic, may not want to folow the Democratic standard-bearers—an almost inconceivable idea two years ago. If this sort of thing is possible in South Carolina, where the Democratic party is almost a religion, it can happen in any other Southern State, and to a greater degree north and west. While the strength of the party tie had been diminishing gradually up to 1932, the weakening process has been greatly accelerated since. Mr. Roosevelt's own disregard of the party tie, manifested in his willingness to indorse, accept and appoint Republicans in accord with his views, and to surround himself with advisers not even remotely concerned with Democratic party or Democratic policies—these things in the past few years have released a good many people from their inherited, congenital or acquired political inhibitions. For example, several millions of Negro voters, regarded as an undetachable assct of the Republicans, have shifted over to the New Deal camp. On the other hand, many thousands of voters who had never voted a Republican ticket in their lives did so in 1936.

—o—

That was before the President had tried to pack the Supreme Court or seize the quasi-judicial boards through his reorganization bill. It was before the predicted failure of the spending policy and before the present depression. And, of course, it was before the new spending program insisted upon in the face of overwhelming protest, and his own expressed convictions. All these things, plus the fact that this will be a Congressional and not a Presidential election, make it sure that in November the free voters will divide much more sharply along New Deal and anti-New Deal lines than before. In a number of States, anti-New Deal Democrats will be nominated notwithstanding Administration efforts. In a number of others, the weight of the WPA and other Administration resources will nominate the one hundred per cent. New Deal type. It is as clearly to the interest of the normal Republican, opposed to the Roosevelt policies, to vote for the first kind of Democrat as it is to the anti-New Deal Democrat to vote for the Republican candidate in order to beat the other kind. Circumstances are compelling them to get together.

—o—

To do anything else will be to insure New Deal success by dividing the anti-New Deal forces. Under existing conditions, for any unbound voter to permit any party label to induce him to contribute toward the continuation of a governmental course and conduct in which he does not believe would seem to be the height of political hoobishness. Though it certainly is illogical, it still may be that Mr. Roosevelt is personally popular with people who have ceased to believe in his policies. But that will make it easier for them to coalesce in an election in which he will not be running. In brief, a great many more will vote against rubber-stamp Roosevelt candidates than against Mr. Roosevelt himself. Many people strangely continue to like Mr. Roosevelt who despise his policies and fear the direction in which he is headed. There is reason to think that in the coming election these will see in coalition an opportunity to call a halt and turn back toward sanity. Barring a change in the President, himself, which they cannot bring about, the election of anti-New Deal—or, at least, independent — candidates for Congress, whether Democrats or Republicans, is the one contribution to recovery the voters can make.

To The Public:

WHEREAS, the Federal Alcohol Administration, with a full recognition of the necessity to the distilled spirits industry of bonded whiskey warehouse receipts "for the financing, through regular banking facilities, of operations by the distiller and to enable rectifiers and wholesalers to anticipate their market requirements," has publicly declared that the wide-spread speculation in such warehouse receipts by the public is a "hazardous business, liable to entail losses to those who purchase such receipts as an investment," and has issued a warning to private citizens not to buy such warehouse receipts, "in the hope of making large profits on their investment."

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That the Association of Maryland Distillers and Allied Industries is in full accord with the above-stated position of the Federal Alcohol Administration, and the Secretary of the Association is hereby directed to give publicity to this Resolution.

Asparagus.

The wise shopper knows that asparagus is cheapest and freshest when it is most plentiful and watches for the best time to buy. But she does not wait too long, for asparagus prices never fall to the level of those paid for carrots or cabbage. For asparagus is a perennial and monopolizes the field through the year, although the cutting season is short. Much detailed care is required in growing, cutting and marketing this highly perishable, short-season crop.

The best asparagus is firm and fresh, rather than stringy or wilted in appearance. Stalks are fairly straight, tips are uninjured and tightly closed. Spreading tips and scales usually indicate disease or injury. Such defects generally result in tough fibers. Most families prefer their asparagus green, and the homemaker selects spears with the largest amount of green color. Asparagus is best "from the garden to the table." But if it must be held for a time before cooking, keep it cold, moist and tightly covered.

Like other green vegetables asparagus is best cooked uncovered in a small quantity of salted boiling water and as quickly as possible. Special asparagus cookers are handy, but a large saucepan or kettle is entirely satisfactory. Stand the bunches upright, about half immersed in boiling salted water, and cover the utensil, just until the water returns to the boiling point. After the lower part of the stalks has cooked 10 to 15 minutes, tip the bunches over into the water. The tips and stalks should become tender at the same time and yet be firm enough to handle without crushing or breaking. Total boiling time 15 to 25 minutes, depending upon the condition of the stalks.

The luscious green stalks, perfect in outline, enticing in flavor, are served steaming hot, seasoned with golden melted butter or Hollandaise sauce. Although at its best served with butter or Hollandaise sauce, asparagus has the happy faculty of blending nicely with many other foods. It adds interest to those with bland flavors, such as rice and macaroni, and is especially delightful in combinations with milk or eggs. The green color is preserved and the flavor is improved by cooking the asparagus in milk, especially when soup or creamed asparagus is being prepared. Creamed asparagus in patty shells is a "company" version of an old favorite. The medium white sauce is best when enriched by stirring it into a beaten egg yolk. Bits of pimiento cheese stirred into the sauce add color and flavor.

Cream of asparagus soup is prepared by sieving the cooked vegetable into its own juice, and stirring this into very thin white sauce. Serve immediately to prevent curdling as asparagus is more acid than most vegetables. Perfect asparagus souffles, timbales or custards are worthy of the best efforts of the most skillful cook. Pieces of left-over asparagus transform a hurry-up dish of prosaic scrambled eggs.

As for salad—the attractive form and color, delicate flavor and blending qualities of asparagus combine to make it a favorite for salads. Some like it with a tart French dressing and a sprinkling of hard cooked egg. Others prefer the thicker mayonnaise or cream dressing—perhaps with a dash of catsup for color contrast.

Asparagus assumes a "party" air when clustered stalks are passed through a hollowed out ring of red apple as a substitute for the usual pimiento strip. This salad is at once novel, colorful, inexpensive and easy to prepare.

Very green asparagus is a good source of vitamin A, the greener the stalk the more A it is likely to contain. It is a good source of iron, which is also frequently associated with green coloring. Green and white asparagus both contribute some vitamin C. Asparagus supplies valuable minerals and vitamins with a minimum of calories, for it is in a class with lettuce, radishes and cabbage as one of the more succulent vegetables.

A NEW WPA RECORD—AND THEN WHAT?

Despite five years of effort and the expenditure of nineteen billions by the administration in efforts to prime the pump and increase employment to the point where real and permanent recovery will be had, Harry L. Hopkins, spender extraordinary and relief administrator without hindrance, now announces it is very likely the WPA load next winter will reach 3,100,000 persons on the rolls. That is more than double the 1,450,000 on the rolls seven months ago; it is more than the former peak of 3,035,852 of February, 1936. After all the expenditure, the relief chief is now warning that the situation is worse than ever before and judging by his prediction for next winter, is expected to get steadily worse.

In estimating relief rolls, it must be understood that they only include those actually on the lists; the breadwinners. What does 3,100,000 relief workers mean? It means practically that many families; and it was not long ago that Mr. Hopkins asserted there are 21,000,000 persons in the United States depending upon emergency work or government largess for whatever living they have, with the number growing greater right along, if his pessimistic predictions are to be believed.

Preparing to pour $4,500,000,000 more into the pump, the nation surely must pause and wonder what will be, what can be the outcome of a situation which rapidly approaches the point where one person in very four is being supported by the other three with their growing taxes and the government with its continued borrowing and increasing public debt? Inflation is already being tried in a mild way, the experiment is one that grows until the crash comes, and then what is there but bankruptcy, misery for all, with all values wiped out, life savings destroyed, insurance policies valueless, government bonds only so much wall paper?

The only alternative is to call a definite and immediate halt on expenditure; to give private industry a chance to re-employ people, to adopt a policy of rigid economy. But the administration can hardly be expected to take such a dose; for where is the hophead that doesn't think he needs another shot?—Enid, Okla., News.

FAILURE OF $2 AUTO TAG PLAN DUE TO CONCEALMENT AND SABOTAGE BY THE DEMOCRATS, GOVERNOR SAYS

By HARRY W. NICE,
Governor of Maryland

During the 1934 gubernatorial campaign, I advocated $2 motor vehicle license tags. Because of the fact that this promise has not been carried out, the whole issue requires open clarification. That is what I here purpose to set forth. I shall endeavor to do it as simply as possible, but, above all, frankly and honestly.

My advocacy of the $2 license fee rested primarily on the picture of the State's finances which was presented to the public by the state administration which was in power during the 1934 campaign. If that picture had been correct, my plan was sound. But certain facts regarding the financial condition of our state were concealed until after the election. The inevitable disclosure of these hitherto concealed facts changed the whole situation.

Must Be Recalled

Now that it becomes incumbent upon me to make full explanation of the entire set of conditions which surrounded the failure of the $2 license fee plan, it is necessary to call attention to this apparently deliberate concealment of our deplorable financial situation in 1934. To be forced to do this when the leader of that administration is no longer with us on earth is not an enviable position in which to be placed. I therefore approach the entire subject with understandable personal and official regret and reluctance. Yet the issue must be met.

I do not try to build up an alibi. I make no apology for the lack of achievement of the $2 tag. I am merely telling the facts as they have developed.

Earnestly Approached

It is very easy for irresponsible or malicious opponents to brand a man's campaign promises as the insincere vaporings of a political officeseeker. That is what certain groups have tried to do with the license fee issue. I here make the unequivocal statement that no individual, whether in public life or private, has ever approached a situation with more earnestness or faith in its efficacy than I did in 1934. Nor was my determination to reduce this average of $8.30 per car registration an empty hope unfounded on actual figures. Before I committed myself to $2 tags, I consulted with officials of various automoble clubs, with financiers, and with others supposedly familiar with the State's financial setup. I had carefully scrutinized the official promulgations of the state's financial officers, notably the estimates of income from the gasoline tax and the Motor Vehicle Commissioner's office. I also had examined the governor's budget presentation to the legislature of 1933, and the figures therein bearing on the condition of the state's treasury. Further, I had examined the comptroller's report of early in 1934, containing the latest available re-estimates of these financial conditions.

The Republican Plank

After careful consideration of available figures, I helped to write into the Republican platform the following language:

"In 1922, when the present administration first proposed the original gasoline tax, the motorists were promised in exchange for their approval of this undertaking that when revenue from the gasoline tax equalled the horsepower revenue, that thereafter the tag charge would be reduced to a nominal figure of $1. The promise was given, the Court of Appeals recognized the plain meaning of the promise, but it is needless to call attention to the fact that it has been repudiated and remains unfilled.

" . . . We pledge ourselves to procure a reduction of the cost of tags to a flat rate of $2."

During the gubernatorial campaign I used such figures as had been made public. I argued, and, to my own satisfaction, demonstrated that on the basis of these figures, while a reduction in the rate charged for the registration of pneumatic-tired vehicles would result in a reduction of income available for highway purposes, such reduction would be slight in 1934, and entirely overcome in 1935, provided the estimates of the increase of highway income made by the state's fiscal officers were even approximately realized.

Basic Estimates

What were these figures of the state's finances issued by the then officials of the states—the figures on the basis of which we discussed the issues of the 1934 campaign? The estimates of general treasury income were set for the fiscal year 1934 at $12,152,532; for the fiscal year 1935 at $11,971,253 and an estimated treasury balance for October 1, 1935, at $1,833,055. In fact, a check made during the winter of 1933-34 and published by the comptroller in his report at that time confirmed the previous income statements by estimating for the fiscal year 1934 a general treasury income of $12,145,258 and a general treasury balance on October 1, 1934, of $1,909,199. These were the figures we had to work on.

A fair and unbiased reader will realize from these figures that I was convinced that the time had come when the motorists of Maryland could be released from a tremendous burden and the pledges of 1922, long delayed in their fulfillment, could be carried out.

Vital Matter Withheld

No one had the slightest suspicion that political expediency was dictating the withholding of certain vital information without which it was impossible to discuss intelligently any future financial policy of the state, whether it be in the realm of license tags or anything else. Yet such was the case, as we learned to our consternation after the 1934 election.

While mentioning the withholding of essential financial information regarding our state finances, let me assert that the approximate financial condition of the state of Maryland at the end of the fiscal years 1935, 1936 and 1937 has been available on October 1 of each period. Under no circumstances would I permit the people of Maryland to be confronted with an erroneous picture such as was before them in October, 1934.

Destroyed Plans

After the election, figures released by the financial officers of the state for 1934 utterly destroyed my budgetry plans. Instead of having well over $12,000,000, as they told us we would have, we had a general treasury income of only a little more than $10,000,000. We had been told that the treasury would have a surplus of nearly $2,000,000; as a matter of fact, it had only $156,000. They had told us before the election that, for the year 1935, the general treasury income would be almost $12,000,000, but we found that instead of $12,000,000, we would have less than $10,000,000. Instead of the latest previous official estimate for the year ending September 30, 1935, showing a credit balance of nearly $2,000,000, the re-estimated treasury condition for that year forecast a deficit of about $2,250,000, which was subsequently cared for only through the issuing of bonds—the robbing of Peter to pay Paul.

Dumped On Doorstep

It is very easy to see that there was being dumped on my doorstep a miserable financial condition about which I had not been given the slightest advance warning. Is it any wonder that practically every pre-election program which had been made was forced to revision? I had, first of all, the job to preserve the solvency of the state's treasury. In order to do this, I was compelled to continue the transfer of funds from highway income to general expenses, instead of using that money as I had originally intended—that is, to redeem my $2 tag pledge.

There was another sad mess amid all these jumbled finances, which further added to the collapse of the hopes I had built up with regard to lower motor vehicle license fees. In November, 1934—mark well the date as being after the election—the income of the Annuity Bond fund, which supports the state debt, was reported to have shrunk so greatly as to indicate a deficit in the fund of about a half million dollars for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1935. My first duty was to insure the integrity of the state's credit. I, therefore, had to transfer in my budgets presented to the 1935 legislature, highway income to the support of the state bonds previously issued for the construction of ronds and bridges.

Forced To Act

I had to act in an emergency. I was convinced that the General Assembly would, by the levy of indirect taxes, restore to the roads the temporary transfers which this suddenly disclosed treasury condition made obligatory. Mindful of my pledge to reduce the cost of automobile registration to the motor vehicle owners of Maryland, yet realizing that the financial muddle which we had inherited prevented the full extent of a reduction to a flat $2, I went half way in the direction of what I hoped would be an ultimate fulfillment of my pledge. I constructed a budgetary proposal which would have established a twenty-five cent per horse power rate instead of thirty-two. Along with my budgetary presentation, there was introduced in the state Senate on February 6, 1935, an administration bill providing for this reduction. The legislature, Democratic five to one, forthwith, on February 27th, killed it outright.

In Both Chambers

During the same session, a Republican in the Senate and a Republican member of the House, each introduced a bill providing for a $2 tag. The Senate bill died in the Democratic Finance Committee, and the House bill was unfavorably reported by the Democratic Ways and Means Committee. Thu ended for that session the sincere attempt of the Republican party to keep its pledge.

Frankly, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, do you really think that this Democratic legislature ever intended to permit me, a Republican governor, to give you any relief in this direction? It just was not in the cards.

Far More Critical

As time went on the disclosures regarding previous maladministration of the road finances revealed them to to be far more critical than we had ever, as a party, been led to suspect. A report from Dr. Abel Wolman, of the State Planning Commission, in March, 1935, gave an eloquent, yet distressing, picture of how little the people of Maryland had received for their two hundred and fifty millions of dollars which had already been spent for construction and maintenance of the roads system before I came into office. It demonstrated more vividly than ever how necessary and urgent it was to devote every available dollar to the turning of the tide of road deterioration in the state.

Superior Obligation

I am deeply regretful that circumstances over which we had no control, and of many of which circumstances we were, together with the people of Maryland, denied knowledge, prevented my fulfillment of an election pledge. I feel, however, that I have acted in a manner in which every true citizen, and particularly those who suported me for office, would have had me act. It is my primary duty, as governor of the state, to preserve its financial integrity. If conditions are disclosed which prevent the performance of our earnest hopes, we must accept the only prime responsibility and protect the state finances, regardless of any unjust criticism which may result. This is the course I have pursued. For it I offer explanation, but no apology.

Forstalled Again

As the time for the meeting of the 1937 General Assembly approached, I again found that the general treasury income of the state would not be sufficient to support the general treasury requirements. Two years before I had, by concrete proposals, urged the legislature to put our finances on a sound basis. This legislature, in the complete control of the Democratic party, rejected my proposals, and against my sound judgment again resorted to the method it had been using under the former administration, of manipulating highway fund transfers to stop the gap. Once more the refusal of the legislature, as in 1935, to levy indirect taxes for general treasury purposes, forestalled me in my program of a $2 tag. Once more the surplus highways moneys which should have been returned to the people of Maryland in the form of a lower license fee, were diverted to general treasury purposes.

Restoration Urged

I again recommended the restoration to the highways of Maryland of these temporary transfers, and suggested a list of indirect tax levies from which to make such restoration. The legislature approved my budgets in substance, but rendered its purpose invalid by refusing to levy taxes in support of it. The General Assembly restored the transfers in part to the state roads from borrowed money and not from indirect taxes as I recommended.

Stated In Message

I had made my program clear in my message of 1937 to the state legislature. Here is what I said:

"In connection with the restoration of highway income for highway purposes, may I again repeat my conviction that the motorist should receive his license tags for less than he is paying at present. * * I now recommend that, if in your wisdom, you restore to highway uses the transfers from highway purposes that have been forced upon me by the state's present fiscal "set-up", you favorably consider the enactment of a reduction in the rates for automobile licensing from thirty-two cents per horse power to twenty cents, if not to $2 flat. I believe that, should the funds removed from highway uses be fully restored by your honorable body, a reduction of automobile license rates should be given to the people of the state in redemption of the pledge made years ago when the gasoline taxes were increased."

Approved Conditionally

On January 13, 1937, there was introduced by a Republican senator, a bill providing for a $2 tag. I gave this bill my conditional approval. It was on the basis of all these disclosures of faulty financing In the past, and a knowledge born of sad experience that the Democratic legislature would try to sabotage any constructive Republican program by inadequate financial provisions to put It into effect, that I made this approval conditional. I knew that the feasihility of this reduction, added to the continued financial necessities of the state, was impossible unless the legislature followed my recommendations in reference to levying ndirect taxes for general treasury support. I, therefore, expressed myself as "deeply interested in the bill", but in all candor, had to qualify my approval "provided the bill itself carries a provision for raising the necessary revenue to offset the depletion of present motor and gasoline revenues."

Again Prevented

Once more we gave evidence of our sincerity. The bill was killed. Once more, by its refusal to put our state highway funds on a sound and solid basis, the General Assembly prevented us from carrying out our pledge, either in whole or in part. They used their power, regardless of its injustice to the people of Maryland.

I am still conscious of the debt the state government owes the motorists of Maryland in line with the pledge which was first given them in 1922. I am still convinced of the justice of this proposal, of the unanimity of the demand for its enactment and of the sound financial possibility of putting it into effect under proper legislative auspices. On this important issue, common welfare, and not political partisanship, ought to prevail. United, we can place Maryland in the front rank of roads progress, but with political conflict and sabotage the order of the day, there can be for our state no possibility of constructive tax reorganization, including this just and long-delayed reduction in motor vehicle registration cost.

NOTED MISSIONARY SAFE IN WAR-TORN CHINA

Miss Julia Bonafield Arrives In Foochow 10 Months After Sailing From The U. S.

More than ten months after leaving her native Preston county (W. Va.), Miss Julia Bonafield, noted missionary, has finally arrived at her old home in Foochow, China, where she has spent most of her lifetime. Although she has been in the midst of the gigantic undeclared war between that country and Japan she has so far escaped harm and is with friends of many years. Miss Bonafield, who had retired from active service sometime ago after devoting the major part of her lifetime to missionary work, was with friends in Preston county when she decided to make a farewell visit to China.

She was in Peking for two months but left just before Japanese troops entered the city. She arrived in Shanghai shortly before the city was first bombed but remained there for six months before going to Foochow where she has since remained. In a letter from that city, dated February 28th, but which has just arrived here, Miss Bonafield describes some of her experiences in that unhappy land. Mrs. Alice Falkenstine, at Mountain Lake Park, is Miss Bonafield's niece, and in that town and Oakland she has many friends. The letter is published as being of unusual interest to the noted missionary's friends in this section:

Foochow, Feb. 28, 1938.

My Dear Friends:—

Some of you know that I left the homeland for a farewell visit to my friends in China last May, but some of you did not know, as I left rather hurriedly in order to attend the wedding in Peking of my foster daughter Ruth's only child.

As Ruth had provided the passage money for a visit to China "sometime," when I went home for my retirement, and as she wrote that it would mean more to her to have me come at this time than at any other time in the future, and as a letter from Foochow about the same time came urging me to come as soon as possible to help out in an emergency there, I came and here I am at last in my old Foochow home. Why do I say "at last?" Because ten months have passed since I sailed and I have just reached Foochow.

I had two months in Peking and left on the last train but one before the Japanese took over the city with no bombing.

I had been in Shanghai where I was visiting another foster daughter, Dorothy Lee Cheng, and her three children, who had come from Nanking to spend a week with me before I came on to Foochow, when the "incident" was staged which brought on the undeclared war, the end of which is not yet in sight. Fortunately we were in the French concession, as safe a place as could be found in China. There for three long months, night and day, with only a few hours of quiet in between, the great and crowded Chinese controlled city which surrounded the International and French settlements was bombed—and shelled and burned relentlessly, while refugees, rich and porr, poured into these settlements as safety zones.

The great majority were the very poor from the factory district (five hundred factories were destroyed). They came carrying their meagre possessions, and camping on the streets and in the alleyways while the municipalities and charitable institutio worked night and day erecting ma sheds on vacant lots and securing va cant buildings for them. To my dyin day I will never forget those hord of frightened, homeless folk.

The account in the January Rea ers Digest, "Farewell to Shanghai," describes our experiences very vividly, only the writer left and I staid on The "Divine Mission of Japan," in the same issue is very enlightening.

We think the papers from home are covering the situation here very well indeed. The newspaper and camera men brave every danger to secure first hand information.

You all know the brave resistance the Chinese soldiers made in Shanghai and are still making elsewhere, but the incessant bombing can not be checked by soldiers and it will take time to build up an air force.

I staid on in Shanghai for 6 months and when Dr. Cheng was able to join his family there I came on to Foochow.

The emergency here had been filled by one of our missionaries who could not return to her station because of war conditions, but her co-worker has now returned from furlough and the two left a few days ago with glad and thankful hearts and I am here just in time to take over her work, and so I can truly say: "He bringeth them to their desired haven."

My foster daughter in Peking, for years a semi-invalid, slipped away to her home in Heaven four months after I left her. The memory of my last visit with her will always be a comfort to me. I was with my other foster daughter, Dorothy, just when she needed me as I pray she may never need me again.

And now I am in Foochow, where ten days after my arrival the air field was severely bombed—eight persons killed and over twenty wounded—the first attack on the city. There are fortifications here, so we are hoping the bombing will not be continued. We know not what awaits us, but we know that above the airplanes with their deadly bombs is a God of Justice.

With trust in Him, I am, yours in His service.

JULIA BONAFIELD.

REGULAR MEETING HELD BY MAYOR AND COUNCIL

Number of Civic Matters Discussed As to Streets, Sanitation, Building Construction

BILLS MORE THAN USUAL

At the regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council on Monday evening, a number of items of business were disposed of, relating to streets, buildings, golf course, and sanitation.

Permits to construct buildings were granted as follows: To James Fazzalari for concrete block garage on property at Wilson and Center streets; to Carrie Kolbfleisch, for two-story house on Oak street; to Guy Hinebaugh, for temporary garage in rear of his property, Second and Green streets.

A street light of 100 watts was ordered placed on Liberty street near the Kerins property.

Parking regulations are to be arranged on Alder street, allowing space for trucks unloading their goods there, during the morning hours. The telephone company was also granted a private parking place in front of their office on Third street.

Lloyd MacMurray, resident engineer for the State Department of Health, outlined a proposed plan for sewage disposal for towns of Oakland, Mt. Lake Park, and Loch Lynn Heights, which would be situated west of town, near where the Little Youghiogheny river empties into the Big Youghiogheny, but no definite action was taken by city officials here. A conference for sometime in July was scheduled when officials of all three towns, and the County Commissioners would discuss the pollution question.

Council decided there was no immediate need of a club house at the golf course. A golf committee was appointed including R. D. Houck, chairman; Henry W. McComas, Jr, and D. Emroy Bolden.

About 175 tons of screenings were ordered for the purpose of completing the repair of streets. A number of streets were screened and oiled last year. Among this year's list for resurfacing are Wilson, Center, Pennington, Crook Alder and Upper Second streets.

Bills amounting to $2,200 were ordered paid. These bills did not include interest on water bonds which had become due and did not include payment of the mower and tractor purchased about two weeks ago at a cost of more than $800. Of the $2,200, one item of $500 was to pay for water mains. A number of bills for labor, etc., at the golf course caused a portion of the increase. Monthly bills usually amount to about $1,200.

CAMERA FANS ARE SHOWN BEAUTIES OF THE COUNTY

CITIZENS DONATE AUTOS

The camera fans had their day on Sunday, even though in limited numbers, when they were shown the beauties of Garrett county by a thirty-mile tour of the Swallow Falls State forest, and shown portions of Deep Creek Lake.

More than 200 persons from Baltimore and Washington walked over the Garrett county hills and paths making permanent records of their camera caravan excursion. It was the second time within a year that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had planned an excursion to Oakland, which included on the program a free tour of the beauty spots of this area. Citizens of Oakland again offered the use of their automobiles and themselves as drivers and self-appointed boosters, just in order to give the people of Baltimore and Washington a chance to enjoy themselves.

Upon arrival at the Oakland station they were greeted by Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley and two bands, the Loch Lynn Band and the Oakland Boys' Band. Then began the visit to Swallow Falls, Muddy Creek Falls, Tolliver Falls, McComas Beach and other portions of Deep Creek Lake.

Cameras clicked all along the route, the fans attempting to obtain the "unusual-angle" type which they believe lend more art to photos, in addition to the regular snaps which showed the beauties of the territory.

At McComas Beach recreation hall the visitors were entertained with square dancing and hill-billy music. A Baltimore accordion player, not more than 12 years of age, and a recent winner on a radio amateur program, played three selections here and was showered with coins to the envy of many young onlookers.

Frank Gardina, Baltimore, trying to get an angle shot of Muddy Creek Falls, took an unexpected bath when he lost his footing. He returned to Baltimore disguised as a CCC officer, whose uniform he borrowed from the nearby Swallow Falls Camp.

The rainy weather which greeted the camera fans last fall was almost duplicated, but except for a short, heavy shower in late afternoon, the sun was visible almost the entire trip.

The excursionists left for the return journey to their homes at 6:30.

ACCIDENT-FRIENDSVILLE TO BEGIN USE OF PHONES

Construction of New Line By C. & P. Telephone Company Nearing Completion

COMPANY SPENDING $33,000

Construction of the new telephone line that will extend Chesapeake and Potomac telephone service to Friendsville, Accident and Hoyes is nearing completion, according to an announcement by G. A. Hinds, local manager.

This area, although formerly served by the Accident Mutual Telephone Company, has been without telephone service since the winter of 1936-1937, when snow and ice broke down a number of poles and wire of that company. Rather than rebuild the plant the owners of the Accident Company requested the Chesapeake and Potomac Company to extend its lines into the area.

The plans of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company provide for the installation of the latest dial service with an exchange at Friendsville and an auxiliary office at Accident. To accomplish this the telephone company is spending approximately $33,000.

According to Mr. Hinds, 80 applicants have subscribed to telephone service and additional applications are being received. This will make the service more valuable in the community because of the number of people who will be able to communicate with one another, particularly in bad weather.

The company plans to begin the installation of the telephones the first part of next week. Installation will continue through June and July, with completion expected by the first of August.

Mr. Hinds also announced that Oakland servic chad been extended to the area around Deep Creek Lake where a number of applications for service have been received.

Local Delegation Interviews D. J. Lewis Relative to Proposed Postoffice Building Here

A delegation of Oakland residents, composed of L. M. Fraley, W. R. Offutt, A. T. Matthews, Bernard Gonder, W. A. Gonder and J. Frank Browning, went to Washington yesterday morning to interview Congressman David J. Lewis relative to the proposed new postoffice building in Oakland.

Nothing definite, however, can be stated at this time what was accomplished through the interview, except that Oakland's chances for a building were the same as other towns seeking the same end.

K. of C. To Have Picnic

The Oakland Council of the Knights of Columbus will be host to Western Maryland councils at a get-together picnic on the grounds of the Holy Cross Summer House at Deep Creek Lake, on Sunday, June 12.

All councils of Western Maryland have signified their intention of attending, according to those in charge. Many officials of the State have accepted the invitation to be present.

POLITICAL BATTLE FIELD HAS SEVEN NEW RECRUITS

Five of Number Announce For Commissioner, One For Sheriff and One For Orphans' Court

MAKES 16 NOW IN FIELD

Seven new candidates appeared this week on the political field of battle, and announced their candidacies for various political offices, the position of County Commissioner drawing the attention of five out of the seven. Several of those announcing had been standing on the horizon for several weeks, and now that their hats are in the ring they are setting out in earnest to prepare for the September battle of votes.

Those announcing this week include Otho S. Fike, district No. 15; John W. Herman, district No. 5; Virgil T. Steyer, district No. 8; Thomas W. Enlow, district No. 5; and J. William Glotfelty, district No. 14, all candidates for County Commissioner; George E. Coddington, candidate for sheriff, and T. E. Bishoff, candidate for a member of the Orphans' Court.

With the seven announcing this week, there are now a total of 16 in the field; Harvey J. Speicher for State Senator; Juniper S. Teats and Carl W. Frazee for sheriff; John T. Dixon, Alex Frazee, Charles V. Harvey, Roy O. Winters and G. Blaine Giessman for County Commissioner, and Donald L. Chisholm for a member of the county committee.

Mr. Fike is a former County Commissioner, serving 1908 to 1916, and is also a former member of the House of Delegates. During his service as Commissioner he states that he attended every meeting of the Board and gave the affairs of the office conscientious attention. Mr. Fike was horn and reared in Garrett county, as were two generations of his family preceding him. He is a heavy taxpayer in his home district where he is engaged in farming.

Mr. Herman is a candidate to succeed himself, having served the county for three and one-half years as Commissioner. He was a candidate eight years ago for the same office and was defeated by a narrow margin. Four years ago he was second high man on the ticket. Mr. Herman promises a continued interest in the affairs of the county.

Mr. Steyer is also a candidate to succeed himself. Mr. Steyer descends from one of the pioneer families of the county and is a resident of the same community in which he was born. He is regarded as a man of keen business discernment and is engaged as a merchant and manufacturer of lumber at Steyer. He asks the continued support of the people in the coming primary election.

A new man to enter the political field is Thomas W. (Bill) Enlow, of Hoyes, district No. 5. Mr. Enlow states in his announcement that he always has been interested in the affairs of the county. He has been a lifelong Republican, and has been engaged for a number of years as a farmer and stock raiser.

The other person to announce for County Commissioner this week was Mr. J. W. Glotfelty, of Oakland. Mr. Glotfelty states that he was born in the county 54 years ago, and although engaged in business for a number of years has never held a county office. Mr. Glotfelty has operated a restaurant in Oakland for the past fourteen years and has served on the Oakland city council.

Out For Sheriff

George E. Coddington was the lone candidate to announce this week for sheriff, and makes three in the field at the present time. Mr. Coddington is a son of Asa Coddington. He has been a lifelong Republican and was horn and reared in district 8. At present he is employed by the State Roads Commission, in Oakland. Mr. Coddington asks the support of the voters at the coming primary.

In today's issue of The Republican Mr. Thomas E. Bishoff, of Oakland, district 7, announces his candidacy for the nomination as a member of the Orphans' Court, subject to the result of the September primaries.

Mr. Bishoff has been a member of the court for the past eight years and from the records and first-hand information he has executed the duties devolving upon him satisfactorily.

His experience in the office well qualifies him for the position he again seeks in the opinion of his friends and those who are acquainted with him.

Lesson for June 12

FACING THE SUPREME TEST OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what thou wilt. Mark 14:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In Gethsemane
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Courage in the Face of Danger.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Challenge of God's Will.

No man has ever faced such a erisis as Jesus met in the Garden of Gethsemane, for He was the Son of God incarnate in order to bear the sins of the world. No one ean ever fully understand the agony of soul involved when God "made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the right-eousness of God in him" (II Cor. 5:21). It is, therefore, true that we may never say that we have gone "through Gethsemane." But there is a very real sense in which our Lord's experience is shared by His disciples, in a lesser degree and as ordinary human beings.

Our lesson brings before us the closing scene of Thursday before the crucifixion. The day has been crowded with important events, among them the eating of the Pass-over, the revelation that there was a traitor among the twelve, the in-stitution of the Lord's supper, the precious words of the upper room, the intercessory prayer in the gar-den.

I. Exceeding Sorrowful (vv. 32-36).

The text uses many words to con-vey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to ex-press it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more se-rious than a dread of physical death. He was not a eoward. He was not afraid to die. His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins. Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34).

Since this was the road the Mas-ter trod, should not His servants tread it still?

II. Alone with God (vv. 37-41).

Jesus took with Him into the se-eluded place in the Garden the three who were closest to Him in the cir-cle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a eom-fort to Him. We try to do as mueh for one another in hours of bereave-ment and disappointment, but how much greater was the opportunity of these three, and how ignomin-iously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father, when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "not what I will, but what thou wilt."

The follower of Jesus will know this experience, too. While he will ever find it to be true that there is nothing more preeious than the friends God gives him, he should prepare himself to expeet the arm of flesh to fail him. There is no more bitter experienee in human relationships than to eount on those who should stand by, eome what may, and to find that they have slept through our hour of soul-strug-gle.

III. Betrayed by a Kiss (vv. 42-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expeeted of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he fills the measure of his ignominy to over-flowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affeetion—a kiss.

We know full well that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit be-trayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Never-theless, great is the hurt when we faee the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our lov-ing thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly pro-fesses to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50.)

If We Knew All

The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart: and merci-ful men are taken away, none eon-sidering that the righteous is taken away from the evil to eome. He shall enter into peaee.—Isa. 57:1, 2.

Secret of Holiness

They ask me for seerets of holi-ness. For myself I know no secret than to love God with all my heart and my neighbor (who is all man-kind) as myself.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

Thomas Jefferson's picture will ap-pear on the new nickel. When you see it remember that he said, "I place economy among the first and most important of republican virtues, and public debt as the greatest of the dangers to be feared."

* * *

Quite a number of people were down at the railroad station recently when President Roosevelt's special train passed through Oakland, en-route from Arthurdale to Washing-ton. They wanted to get a glimpse of the Diesel engine, I suppose.

Terrible Possibilities

Senator Minton, or whatever his name may be, proposes that news-papers be permitted to print only the truth. Wonder if the august senator realizes what that means? Think of the short obituaries that would be written if one printed only the truth and left out all of the truth regard-ing the deceased which would not look so good in print. Think of the wedding write-ups where instead of saying, "the charming and beautiful bride and the enterprising groom," one might have to print the truth and say, "the dish-faced bride and the shiftless groom, after a few highballs of sheep-dip and creosote, slipped away and got hitched before either sobered up." No, we believe the au-gust senator had best forget the idea, lest someone might take the fool no-tion to print only the truth about the senator himself.

We didn't overlook the work of the Knights of Pythias in getting the cemetery beautified prior to Memorial Day, hut we offer as excuse the rush of work which prevented a full cov-erage of the news, and also the fail-ure of this column to appear.

Incidentally the subscribers (well, at least ten of them) said they miss-ed this column and not to let it hap-pen again. One week was bad enough, hut two was too many to miss, they said.

The cemetery clean-up was spon-sored by the Knights, and other or-ganizations contributed money for this purpose, and all who were at the cemetery on Memorial Day or who have visited there since, are of the opinion that the project was well worth while. Individual lot owners also had a part in making the place presentable. A well kept cemetery is a respect to those departed ones who are resting there.

So that everybody will get the cre-dit that is coming to them, let it here be known that it was the work of a number of people who finally per-suaded B. and O. officials to stop the National Limited in Oakland on Fri-day evening.

One summer resident evidently, from a letter we have at hand, talked about it with Daniel Willard, presi-dent of the B. and O. Another sum-mer resident contacted B. and O. of-ficials who were relatives and keenly interested in the development of the mountain top. City officials here also contacted B. and O. officials. There may be many other summer residents who had a part.

No matter who was responsible, there is enough credit to distribute to all of them. It was a good piece of work and all citizens here are grate-ful.

Shooting the Rapids

One camera fan here on Sunday really and truly "shot the rapids." He slipped on the rocks below Muddy Creek Falls and took an unexpected ducking. The current was so swift it carried him a ways downstream be-fore he could get out. He lost his hat and a valuable lens from his camera. This is the only casualty as far as is known.

The balance of the more than 200 excursionists were more than de-lighted with the scenery, their gra-cious hosts and hostesses, and with the climate.

One person stated to me, "I came here not looking forward to the trip the least bit. I expected to he a bit bored. But I'm coming back this sum-mer, when the rhododendron is in bloom, if possible. The country here is beautiful." Many others could tell of their guests saying practically the same thing.

I had the head of a newspaper or-ganization with me. At first I was envious a bit. He didn't look as old as I. He had been in charge of the news-paper bureau in a number of large towns. Evidently he made a good sal-ary. All that was something to be envious of.

But before the trip was over, just from things he said, I believe he was as envious of me as I was of him. He liked the lake, boating, wondered about owning a lot around Deep Creek. He was envious of the pure air, the wide open spaces.

When he left I was envious no more. I was glad I lived in Oakland where there is more to living than one can get in the city.

With modern ways of travel, one can get to the city almost whenever one wants, for ideas, shopping, and all advantages they have to offer. People can have city advantages and still live in the small or medium sized town.

One Way to Retire

Concerning the recent announce-ment of Congressman David J. Lewis that he would oppose Senator Tydings in the Democratic Primary, a prom-inent Democrat stated, "Well, if Congressman Lewis wants to take that method to retire, it's all right with me."

And it's all right with me, too—if you care for a Republican's opinion.

Forming Good Food Habits

If time and patience are given to the matter of children forming good food habits, no mother should have the trouble of having to fix certain dishes for certain members of the family. That one thing can cause a lot of unnecessary worry and anxiety on the part of the homemaker. Miss Margaret deHeeters, nutrition specialist, University of Maryland Extension Service, has listed several simple things necessary for the formation of good food habits.

Members of family cooperate in forming family food habits.

Members of family cooperate in giving examples of eating and enjoying whatever food is placed before them.

Avoid all unpleasant associations connected with food. (Most food dislikes are traced to unpleasant associations.

Avoid diet fads.

Have regular meal hours and enough time to really enjoy the meal.

Avoid discussing food at the table.

Avoid asking a young child if he wants a food or telling him it is good for him.

Avoid humoring, nagging, punishing, arguing, or creating a scene at the table.

Draw as little attention as possible to young children at the table; treat them more as grown-ups.

Take extra care and time, if necessary, when adding a new food to the diet, especially one of importance.

Provide a variety of interesting and attractive dishes to prevent monotony.

Avoid discussing a child's food habits before him at any time.

Avoid rush, confusion and worry at meal time.

Be personally neat, attractive, and interesting at meal time.

See that you have plenty of wholesome, well chosen, attractive and appetizing food on your table daily and that only pleasant things are connected with the meal time and you will find the formation of good health and food habits a natural phase of the family life.

PUMPING THE PRIMARIES

More evidence of the possible political use of federal relief funds, gathered from the taxpayers and used supposedly to defeat the depression, comes from the words of New Deal statesmen themselves.

First, charges in the present primary campaigns about the use of political pressure on PWA and WPA workers came from Pennsylvania, and these were so serious that a grand jury investigation was threatened. Mr. Hopkins, generous dispenser of the public funds in Washington, made the grandiose announcement that his department was free from political pressure and that those on his relief work rolls were free to vote as they pleased.

Curiously enough, however, it was a statement of Mr. Hopkins himself which first set off the fireworks in Congress. In response of a query from a newspaperman, Mr. Hopkins is quoted as stating that were he in Iowa he would vote for Congressman Wearin against Senator Gillette for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. Mr. Hopkins only a few days before had endorsed Candidate Hess against Governor Martin in Oregon, but this endorsement caused little comment.

In the Iowa situation, however, his words had an immediate effect. In the Senate came denunciations from Senator Wheeler and others alleging that the New Deal administration was seeking to defeat all Democratic senators who had had the temerity to vote against President Roosevelt's court packing bill. In addition to Iowa, it is charged that the New Dealers are seeking to cook up opposition against Senator George in Georgia, McCarran in Nevada, Lonergan in Connecticut and Tydings in Maryland, where it is said Congressman Lewis is being groomed as a candidate.

It is reported that this New Deal strategy is being arranged by such political geniuses as Mr. Ickes, Mr. Hopkins, Tommy Corcoran and Jimmy Roosevelt. It is hardly necessary to state that National Chairman James A. Farley, with his political astuteness, opposes the idea and is calling for harmony within the Democratic ranks.

It is becoming evident that the anti-court packing senators do not intend to take their medicine lying down, and the future holds some interesting political potentialities.

In the meantime some interesting comparisons may be drawn. It will be remembered that private employers have frequently been charged with seeking to influence the votes of their workers by pay-envelope pressure. Now with the Roosevelt depression reaching its lowest depths, Mr. Hopkins is the biggest employer in the United States. In making known his choice of New Deal candidates he is exerting a pressure which would call down the wrath of the high heavens on hapless private employers who would take the same attitude, and for the same reasons.

When the pump-priming bill was put under way some Republican statesman was facetious enough to state that the bill was not intended primarily to prime the pump but to pump the primaries. It begins to appear that the statement is not humorous but a sober fact. Of course the New Deal purveyors of relief wouldn't "play politics with human misery." But just the same they are not averse to using their influence—which comes solely through their ability to spread relief funds—for the purpose of packing the Democratic primaries. The general election will come later.

Non-Jury Term Held

The non-jury term of the Garrett County Circuit Court was held on Monday with Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan presiding. A few cases on the civil docket were heard.

Gran'pa's Got Somethin' There!

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Spanish-American war news filled the front page. Santiago's fortifications were in ruins. Hobson had sunk the Merrimac in the harbor and had bottled up the Spanish fleet. Manila, in the Philippine Islands, was surrounded.

An item from "Johnson's," "We have no idle men only those who are too lazy to work, and we are beginning to see plenty of McKinley's prosperity." The Blue Jay Lumber Company of that place was building its railroad from Sand Patch to a large tract of timber, 1,296 acres, in district No. 9.

An item from Sang Run: "Charles E. Hoye, one of our estimable and promising young men, has enlisted and has gone with a cavalry troop to Tampa, Fla."

George A. Mills, Washington, prepared to open the Oakland hotel on June 15. The Park was filling up rapidly. Huckster wagons were coming in. Three ice wagons were making deliveries in the Park.

P. A. Chisholm, Gormania, was exhibiting a specimen of wool that he had clipped from a Cotswold sheep one year old. The wool was white as snow and measured fifteen inches in length.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Total Red Cross contributions in the county totaled $3,257.18.

Oakland High graduates numbered 21, including Mary Drake Naylor, Eilzabeth Townshend, Robert Porter, Victor Harvey, Margaret Sincell, Robert Sliger, Lorena and Eva Falkenstein, Emma Rathbun, Virginia DeBerry, Mildred Ford, Louise Chance, Isahel Hamill, Margaret Glotfelty, Reva Davis, Frances Miller, Frank Lyon, Gertrude Carney, Alma and Anna Calhoun and Clyde Dawson.

Home-grown strawberries appeared on the Oakland market.

Among the soldiers arriving in France were Irvin Lee Neville, James Fazzalari and Juniper Teats.

A Clarksburg coal company was fined $5,000 in federal court for coal profiteering, receiving a higher price than that fixed by President Wilson.

Motorist Taxpayers Pay More Than Income Taxpayers

Statistics recently made public by the Income Tax Division of the Comptroller's office reveal that only 65,000 persons, firms and corporations of Maryland actually have paid income taxes to the State of Maryland.

In contrast over 400,000 motor vehicles were registered in Maryland last year, thus over 400,000 automobile owners paid special motor vehicle taxes to the state.

The 65,000 income taxpayers contributed approximately $980,000 or an average of a little over $15. The 400,000 motorist taxpayers turned over to Maryland $10,500,000 in gasoline taxes and $1,500,000 in registration fees for a total of $15,000,000 in motor vehicle taxes or an average of $37.50.

These figures tend to show that motor vehicle taxes are actually "soak the poor" taxes. The average Maryland motorist is said to earn less than $30 per week, but he pays a tax of two and one-half times the amount assessed the income taxpayer.

OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES OF INTEREST

At the preliminary elections for the Acorn staff for next year, Evelyn Teagarden won over Helen Shreve and Mary Isabelle Love for the editorship of the paper. She was on the reportorial staff last year, and managed the college column.

However, in the recent elections Helen Shrive won the responsible position of managing editor, and Mary Isabelle Love will retain the position she so capably filled this year as feature editor.

Stanley Stahl will replace Kathryn Glotfelty as news editor. He was not on the staff at all last year, hut his ability to write fits him for this important office.

William Sharps was elected as boys' athletic editor. He was formerly the IIIA French Club reporter. Kathleen Fields was elected as the girls' athletic editor and is a newcomer to the staff.

The business staff retains some of its old members, James Helbig taking Harry Wolf's place as business manager. Arthur Naylor rises from the assistant business manager to the advertising manager. Velma Browning, the assistant circulation manager the previous year, is the circulation manager this year.

Reporters will be elected next year and others on the editorial staff will be appointed by the staff and advisers.

Twelve school letters will be awarded this year to deserving athletes, librarians and staff members. Those from the library eligible to receive the maroon and white "O" are Edwin Darby, Thomas Stevenson, Ruth Ridder, Gerald Hamill and Stella Leighton.

The soccer players who meet the necessary requirements and who do not already have letters are Harold Teagarden and George Sukow. The only eligible baseball player who does not already have a letter is Harry Wolf. One girl, Genevieve Murphy, receives a letter for her efforts in basketball.

The Acorn staff members to receive awards are Lucile Harvey, Catherine Meisenbach and Laura Susan Butt.

Other students who have been outstanding in these fields have already received letters and so are not eligible for another, but may receive bars by inquiring at the office.

Conservationists Considering Yough River Pollution

A conference to discuss means of abating pollution in the Youghiogheny river, once a fine trout stream, was held Sunday at Rainbow Inn, on Deep Creek Lake, with representatives of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania participating.

The meeting was held hy the State Conservation Commission, and was presided over by Dr. Henry W. McComas, Oakland member of the commission.

A committee was appointed to make a survey of the region, to report at a future meeting. The discussion centered mainly on the acidity in the stream caused by coal mines emptying into it.

Life-Preparation For Youth

For a half-century the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, founded by D. L. Moody in 1886, has provided instruction and training without cost for tuition to earnest minded young men and women who desire either to be better informed workers in home churches, or to devote their lives to full-time Christian service in some specialized field. Ministers, evangelists, missionaries on home and foreign fields, Christian education directors, gospel song directors for churches and Sunday schools, and many other types of workers, have received their training at this school. More than 2,000 students were enrolled in the Day and Evening Schools during the past year. Moody-trained missionaries numbering above 1,400 are now laboring under different church boards in some seventy countries.

The Bible ranks first in all Institute courses, and around it are gathered such subjects as Sunday School Administration, Gospel Music, Public Speaking, Home Economics, Manual Training, and also Homiletics, Apologetics, Greek, Hebrew, and medical subjects for missionary work.

There are three terms a year—Fall, Winter, and Summer. An illustrated catalogue will be mailed on request. Address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

To a Friend Who Has the Mumps

So you've got the dreaded mumps—
Oh gee! Those funny looking bumps,
They make you look just like a bunny
But I don't suppose they're very funny

You can't eat pickles so nice and sour,
And everyone brings you a flower;
You have a hankie tied under your chin,
And oh! it hurts so much to grin.

The doctor says, "Stick out your tongue,
Don't worry; I had 'em when I was young,"
And then you wish with painful whim
You could say just what you thought of him.

But it won't be long till you'll be out,
And then you can even eat sauer kraut
And show all the kids the little bumps
Where you had the awful humps.

--Vera Welch.

MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our darling one, Elza D. Biser, who passed away two years ago today, June 9, 1936:

No one knows our sorrows,
Only those who have lost can tell
Of the grief we bear in silence
For the one we loved so well.
Friends may think we have forgotten him
When they see us smile;
But little do they know the sorrow
Which that smile hides all the while.
Sadly missed by wife and daughter, father and mother, brothers and sisters.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

Illuminating Candor

Washington, June 4.

On Thursday, while the Senate was considering the amendment providing for the instant dismissal of any official connected with the administration of relief funds who used either his position or money to influence or interfere with election results, Senator Chavez, of New Mexico, in a burst of frankness, declared, "Adopt this amendment and you will defeat such Senators as Senator Barkley."

At once Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, where relief is fairly rotten with politics, rushed over and shook his hand. The amendment was lated defeated. A more open avowal could hardly be made. Here is an Admiuistration, the head of which solemnly pledged himself when Government first entered the relief business to keep politics out, using its full weight to prevent adoption of an amendment to punish political activity upon the part of relief officials—an activity which has not only been charged but proven.

On top of this comes the statement from one Administration Senator, applauded by another Administration Senator, that should such prohibition be voted, the Administration Senate leader, indorsed by the President, and a candidate for renomination in Kentucky, cannot be successful. Senator Chavez went further. In effect, he told his colleagues they might as well be honest about it and admit that support of the voters on relief is essential to Administration candidates and that "many of us" would not be in the Senate at all but for that support. It is doubtful whether in the whole history of the Senate a more candid and degrading revelation has been made. In so many words, it was asserted thnt the election of Administration Senators depends upon the funds intended to relieve human misery—that without the influence of these funds, they will he defeated. If it does not mean that, it does not mean anything.

If the people as a whole could be gotten to grasp the full implication of Senator Chavez's statement, of the congratulations of Senator Guffey and of the amazing speech of Senator Barkley himself, it is inconceivable that the reaction would not be very great. If they lack the capacity to be indignant and resentful over this situation, they are in a sad state, indeed, and nothing can be done. The difficulty, of course, is to get home the facts, not to the people who have already seen through the sham righteousness of the Administration, but to those who still remain under the New Deal delusions and accept at face value its promises and professions, despite the tragic failure of its experiments and the awful examples of waste, confusion and governmental demoralization which confront them.

With such people it isn't easy to deal. They are so saturated with the New Deal propaganda, so steeped in the belief that all criticism comes from the "Tories," or "Wall Street," or "the economic royalists"; so convinced that the President is the pure-minded champion of the downtrodden and oppressed, that they reject the evidence of their own senses and desperately cling to their beliefs long after their hollowness has been revealed. The truth is that in the coming primaries the Administration is exerting itself to the limit to drive out of public life the nine Democratic Senators who voted against Mr. Roosevelt's court-packing bill and are now up for renomination. In this effort the relief machine is the main reliance. Against one of these Senators—Gillette, in Iowa—the head of the WPA, Mr. Hopkins, has openly arrayed himself, which is equivalent to arraying the organization which he controls. Until Mr. Hopkins' declaration, Senator Gillette's renomination was not really threatened and the young rubber-stamp Congressman for whom Mr. Hopkins declared was not considered a formidable aspirant.

In nll the other States these anti-court-packing Senators will be opposed by "hundred per cent Roosevelt men," who go into the field with the Roosevelt blessing, announcing their candidacies right after a White House talk with the President, who, at his press conferences, continues smugly to insist that he is not taking part in the primaries. If a less exalted official made a statement like that it would be easier to characterize it. Mr. Hopkins becomes an immediate partisan for whomever the President blesses. That has been his record from the start, but he has now ceased to camouflage it. Action of the Senate has practically authorized him and others who administer relief funds actively to engage in politics. They were doing it anyhow, but now they do not have to hide it. The most shocking thing about it is that they are beginning to regard it as all right. The defense of the Messrs. Barkley, Chavez and others was really shameless.

MT. LAKE PARK

Mrs. Talson Passes

Euripides says:
"Who knows but that this life is really death,
And whether death is not what men call life?"

Early on Tuesday morning this small community was saddened and shocked by the news that Mrs. Elizabeth Talson had passed away at four o'clock that morning.

Her cottage had been made ready for her and it was hoped that this week would bring her to the Park.

"Mrs. Talson," as everyone knew her, was a beloved summer resident. She will be missed in civic and social matters, but most of all she will be missed by those who for years she had helped in their many difficulties.

Just a short while ago, while still quite ill, she lost two brothers, Mr. Will Stone, of Wheeling, West Va., and Dr. J. Sumner Stone, of New Rochelle, N. Y. Following this she returned to the hospital where she underwent another operation. This operation was performed by Dr. Fulton, a well known specialist of Wheeling, and a life-long friend of Mrs. Talson. She had been out of the hospital but a short time when a few days ago Dr. Fulton passed on suddenly. This proved a great shock to Mrs. Talson.

This column could tell you of her parents and other supposedly important obituary details, but this is not an obituary: it is a very poor tribute to a splendid character--to a friend.

We know that today many persons are feeling as we do; that we ourselves and the Park have lost a friend. What more can we say? It is not much, but there are times when feelings make one inarticulate.

Another of the "Old Guard" passes on.

Cheer up—it is not true—we have spent a busy time running down rumors that there were a band of gypsies camping at the Lake—people were pretty mad—but they are a group of tired radio cowboys and their wives. Another report was that there were several of the colored gentry among them. This was true, but they merely were there as efficient help to this group. Their tents are splendid affairs and the whole set-up is an ideal one. Besides this group, there are about fifteen salesmen from Ohio also in camp. If it were possible we should say that this type of camper was the best advertisement Mt. Lake could have. Reverend Teagarden has done well in allowing these campers near the lake. Anyhow, you can rest easy—they are not going to rob you or yours. Regardless of rumors.

One of the funniest and at the same time most ridiculous things that has happened in Mt. Lake Park for some time happened this past week. It seems that one of our townsmen has been meeting the incoming mail trains accompanied by a small female bull terrier—and a small male puppy—so small that it was carried in the gentleman's pocket. What was his surprise to be told by Mr. H. M. Weeks that a complaint had been registered to the B. & O. that the dogs were a nuisance, and annoying people. This regardless of the fact that the older dog was on a leash. Somehow it was just too "silly." With all of the things we really do have to complain about, to think that some person or persons would make a complaint of this sort. We do not think that the B. & O. will take it quite as seriously as the complainant.

Good work has been done on our roads the past week by Mr. Ed Friend and his crew of workers. Certainly they have labored hard and long to get the roads in shape—and it was a job. The Park roads are good and will be better as time goes on.

Miss Kathrine O'Donnell will leave Sunday morning for Hagerstown, where she will attend the annual convention of the Maryland Branch of National League District Postmasters. The convention will be held June 12th and 13th. Miss O'Donnell was chosen a member of the committee on resolutions. Serving with Miss O'Donnell are Edgar S. McCardell, chairman, of Braddock Heights; and Michael Shuman, of Scotland. Miss O'Donnell will be accompanied by Mrs. Anna Clatterbuck of Deer Park post office.

Word has been received here of the death of Lee M. Bender at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Bartholomew, of Baltimore. Mr. Bender was one of the first Mt. Lake residents.

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 16, 1938. NUMBER 16.

RELIEF SYSTEM OF STATE ASSAILED BY EXECUTIVE

Maryland's efforts to furnish direct aid to its unemployables make up a "confusing" and baffling" picture, complicated by a lack of uniform action by the counties, a state relief executive told the annual Maryland Conference of Social Welfare on last Friday.

The speaker, J. Milton Patterson, executive secretary of the Board of State Aid and Charities, said the board had found the variations and discrepancies in the county programs sufficnently serious to merit a statewide comprehensive study of the entire problem.

This study, he said, was recently launched and had not progressed sufficiently to justify a preliminary report.

Administration of general public assistance or direct relief, has been hampered by confusion, caused, he said, by different dates for county tax levies and failure of all counties to act together in handling the direct relief burden.

Three Counties Levy Funds

Since state funds for such aid were halted in April, only nine counties have had an opportunity to levy. Of this number, only three included funds for direct relief. Three others refused to earmark such funds, two have not yet reported, and one handles its problem alone.

He pointed out that four counties—Garrett, Montgomery, St. Mary's and Worcester—administer direct relief through their county commissioners instead of through the county welfare boards.

"Applicants to the county welfare boards in this category are referred to the county commissioners who dispose of them as they see fit," Patterson commented. "Evidence would seem to show that these decisions are made with little or no investigation, and with no consideration of the actual needs of the client in terms of budgetary decisions."

Refused To Make Levies

Prince George's and Washington counties, two of three which refused to levy for direct relief, left their county welfare boards "in the precarious position of being dependent upon the continued goodwill of the county commissioners," he asserted.

Carroll county, the third which refused to levy, apparently still has sufficient funds on hand to meet direct relief needs, he said. Four other counties—Baltimore, Harford, Howard and Talbot—also have some remaining relief funds, Patterson continued.

However, he said, the problem was 'becoming increasingly serious" in Anne Arundel, Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Frederick and Queen Anne's counties, where case loads already have been restricted, funds are inadequate and there is no assurance for the future program.

$1,000,000 Deficit Forecast

Baltimore City, with 250 direct relief applications daily and a case load of 4,250, has no specific funds earmarked for direct relief and is running a deficit to meet present needs. The deficit, Patterson said, will total $1,000,000 by December, 1938.

The charities official added a pointed criticism of the method of distributing funds for the needy on a population basis, asserting that $838,149 was given to the counties and $1,257,724 to Baltimore City between April, 1936, and April, 1938.

In that period, the counties spent $569,218 and Baltimore, $3,391,415, he said, "which shows conclusively that, had this fund been distributed to the local units on the basis of need, there would be no shortage at the present time except in the City of Baltimore."

Nearly 8,000 persons were receiving direct relief last month, Patterson said.

Breaks Arm At Play

Ralph Beckman, a son of Walter Beckman, about 16 years of age, from the Pleasant Valley community, had his right arm broken last night while running and playing with a group of young people at a party at the home of A. R. Martin. He fell against a parked automobile. The arm was set this morning in Oakland by Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh.

STUDENT COMING HERE TO ASSIST IN CHURCH WORK

Will Aid Rev. Trimble in Episcopal Parish During Summer

Stephen Walke, of Pikesville, Md., a third-year student of the Virginia Theological Seminary, will assist Rev. David C. Trimble in the work of the Episcopal Parish during the summer months, it has been announced by Rev. Trimble. Mr. Walke is being sent here by the Bishop of Maryland and will have as his particular interests the churches at Deer Park, Altamont and Swanton.

Mr. Walke will arrive in Oakland next Saturday. He is a graduate of Episcopal High school, Alexandria, Va., and of Yale University. Before entering Seminary he instructed in China for one year.

The men and boys of St. Matthew's church, Oakland and the Anderson chapel, Swanton, have been busy during the past week cleaning the grounds and making repairs and improvements to the two properties.

HOSPITALITY IS ENJOYED BY CITY EXCURSIONISTS

Stories In Newspapers and Many Letters Attest to Many "Good Times"

An insight into how the recent camera excursion visitors looked upon Garrett county and its citizens, is given in the article published below, which appeared in the Sunday Sun of June 12.

The article follows:

"Back-to-nature" excursions are no longer unique to camera fans in the big cities.

But quite uncommon is the type of reception that citizens of Oakland, Garrett county, gave to 250 snapshotters, hikers and bike riders who traveled by a special train from Baltimore and Washington last Sunday to "shoot" the scenic wonders of western Maryland.

The picture takers found the ideal settings for photographs matched by the hospitality of the hosts who had volunteered their cars and their services for the day, including a thirty-mile tour. Local residents treated the city strangers like long-lost relatives—with two welcoming bands at the station, printed programs, a barn dance, and a troupe of military guides.

Thousands of Snapshots

Thousands of pictures were snapped throughout the day, made to order for human interest shots of people who go on excursions, and for studied photos of virgin timber, mountain waterfalls, and quiet lake waters. The natural beauties of the Swallow Falls State forest preserve will no doubt be well represented in the first week's judging of the amateur snapshot contest, now being sponsored by The Sunday Sun.

The city guests made the most of a rural background for pictures of a hill-billy orchestra and old-time square dancing, on their visit to the McComas barn on Deep Creek Lake, not far from the forest preserve.

Professional Slips

Amateur fans, toting their dollar boxes along the mountain trails, got as much fun from taking their shots as the professional cameramen, one of whom ruined his equipment when he slipped into Muddy Creek below the Falls. Everyone moaned about the action picture he didn't get—the professional struggling in swirling water up to his neck.

Since the excursion on June 5, people of Oakland who gave themselves and their cars for the afternoon tour, have received letters from their guests expressing their thanks for hospitality. Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley also has received a number of letters of appreciation.

A sample of what Oaklanders have received is contained in the following, written by a Baltimore guest:

"Thank you and your generous citizens for the splendid time which you provided for the guests of the B. and O. special train. In this day and age it is indeed gratifying to find a people who out of the warmness of their hearts will inconvenience themselves for the benefit of their visitors. I am sure everyone enjoyed himself as much as we did and longingly look forward to visiting in your beautiful countryside again."

Birthday Congratulations To:—

Senator Millard E. Tydings concluded a week-end visit in Western Maryland by attending the Knights of Columbus picnic and get-together meeting at the Holy Cross Summer House of Studies, on Deep Creek Lake on Sunday.

Senator Tydings made no speech, but spent a portion of the afternoon talking with friends at the gathering.

Other speakers included Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg, and H. C. Edwards, Grantsville.

Senator Tydings spent Saturday in Oakland where he met quite a large number of Democrats as well as many Republicans.

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, also attended the Knights of Columbus picnic.

Many persons were kept away from the picnic on account of heavy rains throughout the day, but more than three hundred attended the gathering.

G. O. P. COMMITTEES TO BE NEUTRAL IN PRIMARY

Committeemen Of Five Counties Said To Favor A. C. Stewart For Nomination For Congress

MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT

Republican central committeemen from the five counties in the Sixth congressional district adopted a hands-off attitude in the congressional race, at a meeting at Hagerstown last night.

J. Frank Ridenour, chairman, of the Washington county committee, presided and announced the committees would endorse no candidacies, but would concentrate on organization and registration of voters in the approaching primary and election.

Stewart Favored

Although no candidacies were advanced, talk among the committeemen after the meeting indicated A. Charles Stewart, of Allegany county, was favored as the Republican hope to seek the seat being vacated by Representative David J. Lewis, Cumberland Democrat.

Lewis is leaving the House, after a long term of service, to contest for the Senate seat of Millard E. Tydings, Maryland's senior senator and also a Democrat.

Stewart has been prominently mentioned as a "harmony" candidate in the congressional race and a majority of the counties represented at last night's meeting were viewed as being in favor of a "harmony" move to eliminate a Republican primary.

Doesn't Want Primary Fight

It was understood Stewart had been approached on the subject of a congressional candidacy, and that he had agreed to run for the House of Representatives, provided he would not be required to face a primary fight. He is recuperating from an illness.

Stewart was considered earlier as a possible candidate for the Senate, in the event Governor Harry W. Nice decides to seek reelection. Persistent reports the governor will seek nomination to the Senate himself turned party strategists to Stewart as a logical candidate for the House.

Members of the Republican State Central Committee of Garrett county attending the meeting were Neil C. Fraley, chairman, Charles A. Ashby, Carl W. Frazee and Lester Bittinger.

Degree Of Medicine Conferred

Howard Rathbun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Rathbun, received his degree of doctor of medicine at the commencement exercises of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, held on Tuesday. The young man was graduated from Oakland High school, class of 1930, and received his A. B. degree from Western Maryland College in 1934, where he was also given an award for his work in science.

Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun went to Baltimore to attend the graduation exercises held in the Lyric theatre. All returned to Oakland following the ceremonies where Dr. Rathbun will remain until July 1, when he will enter Jefferson hospital, Roanoke, Va., for a period of internship as assistant to Dr. Trout, for additional preparation for general practice.

Closing Exercises Are Held At Red House School

Closing exercises were held at the Red House school on Wednesday, June 8, at 8 o'clock. Those schools taking part were Sunnyside, Swan Meadow, Corunna, Steyer, Gorman, Lynndale, Mason, and Red House.

A pageant, "America's Heritage of Song," by the seventh grade graduates featured on the program. Superintendent F. E. Rathbun presented the certificates.

Thermometer Sinks To 38

The mercury dropped sharply on Tuesday and Wednesday morning to give farmers some cause for alarm about frost, but the government weather station at Weber's reported that the readings on those days were 38 and 40, respectively.

An unofficial report was to the effect that 31 was recorded at some portions in town.

At the regular communication of Oakland Lodge, No. 192, A., F. and A. Masons, on Tuesday evening, Howard C. Riggs delivered a short talk on the significance of Flag Day. H. C. Buckingham, district forester, also spoke briefly on the possibility of permanent recreational improvements for the Swallow Falls forest area.

FRANK CALLIS IS LONE CANDIDATE TO ANNOUNCE

Out To Succeed Himself In Orphans' Court; Political Arena Is Very Quiet

The county political arena remained relatively quiet this week, only one candidate having announced. This was Frank Callis, a member of the Orphans' Court, seeking reelection as one of the judges of that body.

Mr. Callis is a farmer of the Flatwoods section of the county, district No. 5, and states in his announcement this week that he feels better qualified with his three and one-half years experience, than he did when he appeared before the voters four years ago. Mr. Callis was second high man on the ticket in the 1934 primaries.

Since his election he has been a faithful member of the Orphans' Court and has discharged his duties with credit, according to those who are familiar with his activities.

His candidacy makes 17 Republicans who have publicly announced for office through this newspaper.

Barn Near Cranesville Burns

A barn belonging to Mrs. Anna Sisler, a widow, was destroyed by fire one day last week. The structure was located on her farm in the Cranesville community and was a practically new building, having been erected about three years ago.

Two calves, one hog and most of her farm machinery were in the barn at the time. The fire occurred early in the evening and its origin was undetermined. There was practically no insurance.

Describes Trip Abroad

At a meeting of the Ladies' Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal church at the home of Mrs. B. B. Nethkin, Miss Thekla Fundenberg gave a brief description of her trip abroad last summer in company with Miss Charlotte Johnston. A business session preceded the talk.

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZES REQUEST FOR W.P.A. FUNDS

Additions May Be Built To Oakland Elementary and Kitzmiller High Schools This Year

APPLICATION ON ITS WAY

A resolution authorizing the request for PWA grants upon a 55-45 percent basis for the construction of additions to the Oakland Elementary school and Kitzmiller High school, was passed at a meeting of the County Board of Education held at its office in the Court House last Friday afternoon.

Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and Walter W. Savage, Friendsville, were members of the board attending, along with F. E. Rathbun, secretary and county superintendent.

The application for the PWA grant in formal order and according to requirements left the Baltimore office yesterday for New York, according to Mr. Rathbun, and should be heard from soon. Preliminary drawings for each of the two additions were received this morning at the school board office from Baltimore architects.

The addition to the Oakland elementary school would consist of four class rooms, cloak rooms, facilities for modernized conveniences, and a fireproof stairway. The addition to the Kitzmiller school would be for six class rooms, for use of the elementary school of that community, the addition to include cloak rooms and other conveniences with a fireproof stairway.

The Board authorized the employment of an additional teacher in the Grantsville High school, and a teacher of fine and applied arts to be located in the northern section of the county. Both teachers are being financed under provisions of the equalization fund, Mr. Rathbun stated.

The salary schedule for teachers of vocational agriculture was outlined by the Board, as provided by the Federal Smith-Hughes Vocational Act. This provides graduated salary, ranging from $1800 for the first year to $3000 for the 20th year.

William E. Tarbell was appointed teacher of vocational agriculture in Grantsville High school. He formerly taught in Accident and Friendsville schools from 1924 to 1928. Since 1928 he has taught in Anne Arundel county. William A. Parlett taught vo-ag classes in Grantsville during the past year

Harland L. Jones and Cecil Smith were appointed to audit the records of the board.

Resignations accepted were those of Anna Louise Connelly, Oakland Elementary; and Mrs. Dorothy Edwards Frame, Oakland High school. Alice Howard, principal of the Frankville school, was granted a leave of absence so she might complete an additional year of college work.

Mr. Rathbun reported that principals of all schools had been requested to make a report upon the condition of school buildings and grounds with recommendations for improvements.

The Board approved the tentative school calendar for the coming school year as follows: opening of schools, Wednesday, September 7; Christmas holidays beginning Thursday, December 22, school to reconvene Monday, January 2; schools to close for year Friday, June 9. This calendar makes a total of 188 possible actual school days.

Winners in the county track meet omitted in last week's tabulation included the following:

THE SUFFERING SERVANT

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:22-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many. Mark 10:45.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—On Calvary.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Self-Sacrifice for Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love s Supreme Sacrifice.

"A Christianity without a dying Christ is a dying Christianity. History shows us that the expansiveness and elevating power of the Gospel depend upon the prominence given to the sacrifice of the Cross. An old fable says that the only thing that melts adamant is the blood of a lamb. The Gospel reveals the precious blood of Jesus Christ, his death for us as a ransom, as the one power that subdues hostility and binds hearts to Him" (Alexander Maclaren).

We consider today that darkest of all days in the history of the world—when wicked men with cruel hearts and hands crucified the loving Son of God. But, thanks be to God, it was also the day when bright hope shone forth for sinful humanity, for in His death Christ bore our sins upon the tree, the veil was rent, the old sacrifices were set aside, and the "new and living way" was opened into the "holiest by the blood of Jesus" (Heb. 10:20).

I. Crucified—That We Might Live (vv. 22-28).

The details of and circumstances surrounding the crucifixion are of deep interest to every Christian. We stand with Luther and weep as we see Christ's unspeakable agony, not only of body but of spirit, and we cry as did Luther, "For me, for me!" How ean any believer contemplate the eross and withhold self, substance, or service from Christ?

Equally earnest and heart-seareh-ing is the message of the eross to the unbeliever. He knows he is a sinner (Rom. 3:23), he knows that "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23), and he knows that "neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). Here at the cross he meets that one "who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed (I Pet. 2: 24). There were two malefactors who were crucified with Him, and one railed at Him. The other said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom"; and Jesus said to him, "Today thou shalt be with me in Paradise" (Luke 23:39-43). Unbeliever, who reads these lines, will you not just now take the eternal life which Jesus died to make possible for you?

II. Forsaken—That We Might Be Accepted (vv. 29-36).

The railing, head wagging, and other abuse that men heaped upon Jesus as He hung on the eross, must have been a grevious thing for His tender loving heart to bear. But it was as nothing compared with that hour when, covered with all the sin and eurse of the world, He who knew no sin "was made sin for us" (II Cor. 5:21), and God turned away from Him.

We eannot fathom the full meaning of that hour, we dare not attempt to explain it, we can only accept it and thank God that because He did become sin for us we may be "made the righteousness of God in him" (II Cor. 5:21).

III. A Veil Rent—That We Might Enter (vv. 37-39).

The death of Jesus was not the pitiful weakening of a human martyr. Here was the Son of God, crying with a loud voice (v. 37), giving up His spirit to the Father (Luke 27:46), declaring that the work of redemption was "finished."

As a visible indication of that part—and as a declaration that the old dispensation of law had given place to the dispensation of grace, God tore the temple veil in twain. Only He could have done it. No man could have torn this sixty-toot long, twenty-foot wide, and inch-thiek curtain from top to bottom. It had hung in the temple to keep all but the High Priest out of the Holy of Holics, and he entered with fear and trembling but once a year as the representative of the people. Now all this is changed. We have now, "brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil." Therefore, let us draw near with a true heart and full assurance of faith" (Heb. 10:19-22).

Tuesday, June 14, was Flag Day. That was the day, in 1777,that the flag as made by Betsy Ross, in May of that year, was adopted by Congress as the American Flag.

In August of that same year it was carried into military service at Fort Stanwix and has been in service ever since.

Each star added to the original flag, which contained five, has meant a new chapter in history, a new state admitted to the Union. There were fifteen in the War of 1812; twenty-nine in the Mexican War; thirty-five in the War Between the States; forty-five in the Spanish-American War, and now there are forty-eight stars.

People who are on relief and still riding around in their automobiles evidently got "into the hair" of a Cumberland writer. He says:

"There's no use denying the fact that far too many relief applicants (whose requests for federal and State support are granted) continue to enjoy the 'luxury' of operating a car, regardless of its age or appearance. It looks like some of them would rather have gas for their cars than hash for their health.

"An incident along this line was related by a dentist who sent a long overdue bill to a patient and received one of the most heart-breaking replies, by mail, that you can imagine. The man had lost his job, his wife was ill and the relief money was not sufficient to furnish proper food. So the dentist forgot the matter until one day he was walking across the main street and a rattling flivver whizzed past him, grazing his heels and at the wheel was the 'poor man' while the rest of the family occupied the back seat."

People like that will probably ride to the poorhouse in their own car.

KEEPING BABIES WELL IN SUMMER IS BIG PROBLEM

Bulletin of State Department of Health Gives Some Suggestions

Some of the ways by which mothers can hely to keep their babies well and comfortable during the hot weather are explained in the accompanying bulletin from the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health. Here they are:

"The coming of warm weather means good times and better health for most of us. Little babies, however, face great dangers unless their parents are extremely careful. The dread 'summer diarrhea' sometimes known as 'cholera infantum', is ready to take a toll of infant lives.

"Thirty years ago forty out of every thou-and babies died of this disease before they reached their first birthday. Now, there are only one-fifth as many deaths from summer complaint, in proportion to the number of babies. Our record has improved very much, but the disease is still a source of great danger to young children. There were over sixty deaths from this cause among babies in Baltimore, last year and over twice that number in the counties. Many of these lives are lost unnecessarily and could be saved if the proper preventive measures were taken.

"The cause of the disease, in the great majority of cases, is a germ which finds its way into the baby's food. It is plain that the child who is nursed by his mother is best protected against infection. Every effort should be made to encourage breast feeding wherever possible.

"If mothers' milk is not available, the best substitute is fresh cow's milk or unsweetened evaporated milk mixed with an equal quantity of water. Sugar and additional water, if any is to be added, should be mixed with the milk according to the directions of a doctor. All milk or milk mixtures given to children up to the age of two years should be boiled.

"The utmost cleanliness must be observed during the preparation and storage of the milk mixture. All pots, pans, bottles and nipples must be sterilized by boiling. The person who prepares the milk mixture must wash her hands carefully before starting.

"Flies are carriers of disease germs. Strict precautions must be taken to see that they do not get to the baby or the milk at any time. The baby's bottle should not be left in the crib because the nipple is sure to get dirty. The crib should be covered or screened with mosquito netting.

"In every county in Maryland there are the public health nurses ready and eager to help any mother with advice or suggestions. One need only to call or write to the county health officer and the nurse will do her best to help.

"Just a little care may mean the difference between life and death to the baby."

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

On many a mealtime occasion it's a cake that holds the center of the stage. All eyes are upon the bride as she ceremoniously cuts the first piece of her wedding cake. And it's a thrill in the life of any youngster to huff and puff out the candles on his own birthday cake while a party of his young friends look on.

In a plain sponge cake recipe it is possible to substitute liquid and baking powder for one or two of the eggs. Two tablespoons of milk or water and one-half teaspoon of baking powder may be substituted for each egg omitted from the recipe. Sift the baking powder with the flour and add the liquid before folding the egg whites into the batter. With this subsitution the cake may be baked at a slightly higher temperature—about 340 degrees Fahrenheit.

Both angel food and plain sponge cake are good desserts in themselves. But often cooks use them as a base for other desserts—combine them with fruits and sauces—make them into ice box cakes. Cake and ice cream is an old-time favorite. But a new angle is ice cream served atop a piece of angel food, or between two slices of sponge cake as an ice cream sandwich.

A similar dish is a piece of angel food with a chilled soft custard served over it. A decorative puff of whipped cream tops this off.

Cocoanut squares make a special dainty for a spring tea or party. Roll squares of angel food in a butter frosting. Then roll them in shredded cocoanut. Or this may be varied by rolling the frosted pieces of cake in toasted, chopped nuts or chopped candied cherries.

Many other similar variations may be devised by the imaginative cook. Some like the flavor of sponge cake better if it is lightly toasted. Others have special ways in which they combine sponge or angel food cakes to make use of fruits in season and the family's favorite sauces.

Following is a basic recipe for plain sponge cake:

One cup sifted soft-wheat flour, 1 cup (4 or 5 eggs), 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon lemon rind, grated; 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Sift the flour three times. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; gradually add half the sugar, beating thoroughly, and then add the lemon juice and rind. Beat until thick. Beat the egg whites and salt until they start to peak but will still flow. Fold in the remainder of the sugar to make a meringue. Pour the yolk mixture over the whites and fold it into them gently. Then fold in the flour. Pour into an ungreased pan and bake in a slow oven (about 325 degrees Fahrenheit) for from 50 to 60 minutes.

GOOD NEIGHBORS—

Cumbrland has started a "Good Neighbor Movement," which should prove beneficial to both communities.

The Chamber of Commerce of that city is sponsoring a program to call attention to the rare scenic beauty and recreational opportunities of Oakland and its surrounding territory.

All of us at times fail to appreciate the advantages and the beauties which are right at our door. Our own motorists travel to distant states to see points of interest which are not comparable to any of those within a few miles distant.

This program such as the Cumberland organization has planned should lead to a better appreciation of our own hills, forests, streams, valleys and lake, and should prove a stimulating effect to all of us in getting better acquainted.

Incidentally the movement should increase the development of the whole section. Garrett county people spend a lot of time in Cumberland. It would be good for Cumberlanders to spend much of their time here, where the climate is a healthy one ans is air conditioned.

COUNTY HELPED, TOO—

While the praises are going around about those responsible for the Grantsville High School building, it seems like everyone has been extolled except the County Commisioners and the taxpayers of the county who at least had their little finger in the project.

Figures show that the school cost about $85,500. Of this amount the PWA furnished $36,567. The School Board furnished funds that had been saved over a period of years to the extent of $32,301.29, and $162.75, which is really coming from the taxpayers of the county. In addition to that the County Commissioners also furnished approximately $16,700, which is more money from the taxpayers.

So while Senator Tydings, Representative Lewis and numerous citizens are being thanked for the new building at public and private gatherings, let it also be realized that the Commissioners and taxpayers also had a little something to do with it. This certainly shouldn't take any glory from those who personally worked for the project. It is a fine school building.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The season had begun in Oakland quite early, a number owning summer homes here having arrived. Trout fishing was better than it had been for years. Mountain Lake Park was also ahead of previous years. Eighty cottages there were already occupied by their owners. Eighteen cottages had been built during the year.

Mumps were the order of the day (history repeats).

Uncle Tom's Cabin Company was coming to Oakland under a big tent, seating 2,000 persons.

Fourteen acres of big vein coal in District No. 1 were sold for $8,000 cash.

The first guests for the season arrived at the Oakland Hotel. George Mills, manager of the hostelry, had a number of men and women putting the house in order during the previous two weeks.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Oscar Harvey Lee, Crellin, a seaman in the United States Navy, was cited for bravery in rescuing thirty-four of a crew of seventy-five men when an American munitions vessel caught fire.

Seventy-two men were called to service from Garrett county by the war board, the largest number called at any one time.

Daniel War, of Avilton, Garrett county, went to Frostburg and there put in a plea for better mail service. He said that a thousand persons of the area were complaining of the inadequate service. The week previous there had been only one mail arrive.

Eighteen persons of the county were tried for permitting their children to remain out of school. The trials took place before Justice West and in each case fines and costs were imposed.

Eighteen students were graduated from the Oakland Elementary school.

OLD GLORY HAS WAVED OVER THE NATION 161 YEARS

Proudly waving over our nation for 161 years, Old Glory celebrated another birthday on Tuesday, June 14. Our forefathers gloried in this beloved symbol, which has been handed down from generation to generation as the priceless heritage of a liberty-loving people.

Born amid the first flames of America's fight for freedom, it has continued to wave through troublous or tranquil times, and to lead the way to our nation as year by year it has marched with a renewed hope and a high resolve along the Road of Destiny.

Much of our flag's early history is shrouded in mystery. We know that a flag of thirteen stars and stripes was adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, but we do not know positively by whom it was designed or where it was first flown. A popular legend attributes the making of the first Stars and Stripes to Betsy Ross, a flagmaker of Philadelphia.

Flagmaking materials were scarce in those days and this was often a severe handicap to those who wished to display the new banner. When John Paul Jones was at Portsmouth, N. H., preparing to sail abroad on the Ranger, the young ladies of that seaport fashioned out of their own and their mothers' gowns a beautiful Star-Spangled Banner which was flown to the breeze in Portsmouth harbor on July 4, 1777.

Another flag was fabricated a few weeks later by the defenders of Fort Stanwix, N. Y., when an officer donated his cloak for the blue field, soldiers gave their shirts for the white stripes, while the red stripes were fashioned from the petticoat of a soldier's wife. This flag was flown from a flagstaff, raised on a bastion nearest the enemy on August 3.

These are well-authenticated accounts of the early, yet probably not the earliest, displays of our national flag afloat and ashore. We may smile a little at these primitive efforts at flagmaking, yet we cannot forget the pride and patriotism which inspired the makers.

Old Glory first floated over a fortress of the Old World when Lieutenant Presley N. O'Bannon, of the Marine Corps, and Midshipman Mann, of the Navy, raised our flag over the captured fortress at Derne, Tripoli, where it was flung to the breeze on April 27, 1805.

Nearly every schoolboy knows that "by the dawn's early light" on September 14, 1814, Francis Scott Key saw the Star-Spangled Banner still waving over Fort McHenry, at Baltimore, and composed the spirited song which is now the national anthem.

From time to time slight changes in the flag have been authorized by Congress. The flags displayed at Tripoli and at Fort McHenry had fifteen stars and stripes, a departure from the original thirteen stars and stripes design. Two new stars and stripes had been added when Vermont and Kentucky came into the Union, and our flag was of that pattern from 1795 until 1818.

Realizing that too many stripes would mar the beauty of the design, Congress then authorized a return of the flag to its original form of thirteen stripes, one star being added thereafter for each state entering the Union.

Gone are the earlier flags of colonial days: the rattlesnake spreading its coils over thirteen stripes with its slogan of defiance, "Don't tread on me"; the Grand Union Flag, bearing the British crosses of St. George and St. Andrew where the white stars in a blue field now appear. Anchors, pine trees, beavers and other colonial flag symbols in infinite variety have vanished, save as they remain as a part of the insignia in State flags.

Forty-eight gleaming stars, representing a united nation, shine among the fluttering folds of Old Glory as it passes another milestone on its march through the years.

STREAM POLLUTION WILL BE STUDIED BY 3 STATES

Several Recommendations Are Made At Recent Meeting At Rainbow Inn, Deep Creek

A resolution to make a study of the pollution of the Youghiogheny River basin in West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, to include mine acid pollution, industrial waste and sanitary sewage, was adopted at the recent meeting at Rainbow Inn, on Deep Creek Lake, of various groups from the three states.

The study is to be made through the joint cooperation of the State Health Departments and Conservation Commissions of West Virginia, Maryland and the State Department of Health, Sanitary Water Board, Department of Forest and Waters, Board of Fish Commissioners and the Game Commission of Pennsylvania.

The report with recommendations for correcting the pollution in the basin shall be submitted to the State Health Departments and Conservation Commissions of West Virginia and to the State Health Department and Sanitary Water Board of Pennsylvania.

These studies are to be carried on during the entire year of 1938.

Dr. Henry W. McComas, chairman of the Fresh Water Division of the Conservation Department of Maryland, who presided at the meeting, expressed the hope for the ultimate and complete elimination of all pollution in both the Youghiogheny and Casselman Rivers.

W. E. Scurfield, division engineer of the U. S. Public Health Service, Mine Sealing, through the courtesy of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, showed two reels of educational pictures on mine sealing in that state.

C. L. Chapman, U. S. Public Health Service of West Virginia, outlined the progress that the State had made in reducing mine waste from inactive mines and in closing abandoned shafts in active mines.

Fred. Jennewine, West Virginia Bureau of Mines, described the efforts of his department to control mine acid waste.

George L. Hall, Department of Health of Maryland, spoke of the work already accomplished on mine sealing and the corresponding decrease in acidity of the Youghiogheny waters. Active mines in Maryland, he said, contribuate approximately 502,000 pounds of acid each year. Mine sealing in Maryland is being done by WPA labor, supervised by the State Departments of Forestry and Health and the Bureau of Mines. Mr. Hall also mentioned that industrial and raw sewage was going into the Little Youghiogheny and suggested a central plant to handle all of this waste at one point.

Others speaking about pollution and the work of the various departments were E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden; Swepson Earle, with the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries; J. A. Wills, Connellsville, Pa., and Major E. B. Garey, of Oakland.

A. M. Powell, in charge of the Lewistown Fish Hatchery, reported that the Little and Big Youghiogheny Rivers were polluted, the latter from mines on Laurel Run and Snowy Creek, to within a short distanee from Friendsville and were devoid of fish life and vegetation and unfit for fish stocking.

The committee selected to make the study of pollution include Swepson Earle, chairman; George L. Hall, Paul C. Hune, C. L. Chapman and E. Lee LeCompte.

The National Pike Or The Cumberland Road

By ALBERT C. ROSE,
Senior Highway Engineer, Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture

Through the courtesy of the American Road Builders' Association Feature Service.

The National Pike, or Cumberland Road as it was legally known, stands first in the list of transcontineutal roads in the United States in a number of important particulars. It will be interesting to trace the relation of its location to the topography and soil of the country.

In New England, the towns grew up about islands of fertile soil as nucleuses.

In the first place, this historic Cumberland Road follows the shortest practicable path connecting the head of navigation of the Potomac River at Cumberland, Maryland, with the Ohio River watershed at Brownsville, Pa., formerly known as Red Stone Old Fort, on the Monongahela River, 72 miles distant. This old portage path had been followed by the wild animals, then the Indians, and later by the white trappers, traders and colonists.

Another jewel to be added to its crown is that this old road preserved the Union by providing a connecting link across the Alleghany mountain barrier between the thirteen original states, along the Atlantic seaboard, and the growing settlements in the West, in what are now the States of Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. General George Washington perceived this peril of disunion when, after the close of the Revolutionary War, he made an exploration of the Ohio country and declared, "The Western States stand as it were upon a pivot" and might turn either to Spain on the south or to England on the north.

A third mark of distinction for the Old National Pike is that it was the first road to be built by the government of the United States with the aid of funds appropriated from the Federal Treasury. It is true that these funds were "advanced" by the United States with the understanding that they were to be rapaid later from the revenue derived from the "two per cent fund" resulting from the sale of fertile public lands in the Ohio territory as provided for in the Ordinance of 1787. Nevertheless, when the sale of the public lands failed to raise the necessary funds to carry on the work on the road the government continued to finance the construction under the guise of an advance of funds. At the beginning of the nineteenth century it was the prevailing opinion that Congress did not have the power to appropriate funds for internal improvements. Later, President Monroe's veto of an appropriation for the Old Cumberland Road, in 1822, debated over many years by such celebrated men as Clay, Calhoun and Webster, established the right of the Federal Government to appropriate money for improvements of a national character.

Lastly, the Cumberland Road is an enduring monument to the engineering genius of the United States Army engineers and civil engineers who located and built it. Rising and falling over the hills and traversing the plains of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, by a series of straight courses of greater length than are to be found on any other road on this continent, this great national road was planned to span a distance of 677 miles between its point of origin at Cumberland, Maryland, and a proposed terminus on the left bank of the Mississippi River between St. Louis and the mouth of the Illinois River. At Cumberland, at its eastern extremity, the National Pike was designed to connect with the 130-mile turnpike leading from Baltimore through Frederick to Cumberland and financed by the bankers of Baltimore, as early as 1796, in order to stimulate trade with the West.

Furthermore, the massive stone arches built over the waterways, many of which are in use to this day, demonstate the permanent qualities which were incorporated into the construction of this historic thoroughfare. The engineers employed every available means to build a road which would withstand the ravages of time.

This stone-arch bridge over Will's Creek, immediately west of Cumberland, Maryland, was built in 1836. The bridge proper was built at right angles to the center line of the creek to reduce the cost and because the stone masons were unable to cut and fit stones of the irregular shapes needed for a skew crossing. The diagonal approaches to this and other bridges on the Pike account for the shape of these bridges.

The foregoing brief outline of its claim to first place may help to show why the Old Cumberland Road, which constitutes the eastern section of what is now known the United States Route 40, is recognized as the most important portion of the "Main Street of America," now extending across the mid-section of the country from Atlantic City, in New Jersey, to San Francisco, in California.

Let us follow the story of the rise, fall, decay and reconstruction of this romantic thoroughfare which, in the two centuries following the English settlements in the New World, measured the westward expansion of our national frontiers from the wave-washed shores of the Atlantic Ocean to the muddy banks of the broad Mississippi River. The facts in this story fit together as neatly as the parts of a picture puzzle. In the interst of conserving space, however, it will be necessary to sketch with bold strokes the outline of our story. The narrative naturally divides itself into seven main sections as follows:

Location of the Early Trails Determined by the Topography of the Country (Period Prior to 1755)—For many years after the landing of the Cavaliers in Virginia, in 1607, and the Pilgrim fathers in New England, in 1620, the Atlantic Ocean and the rivers and streams provided the only practicable highways for travel from place to place. Much of the seabord was covered with dense forests almost to the water's edge and among the sounds which broke the stillness were the chop, chop, chop of the woodman's ax, the crackling of a brushfire in a clearing, the loud report of a matchlock musket and the ominous calls of wild animals. The gentle wind sighing thru the trees, the scream of a pioneer woman in distress, the rustling leaves of the towering trees, the terrifying warcry of the Indians, the rippling music of mountain streams tumbling over the rocks, the roaring breakers on the seashore and the surf receding over the sand back to the mother ocean, added their tones to the symphony of the forest wilderness.

In primitive times, a canoe would be propelled by its Indian occupant as far upstream as the depth of water would permit, then the lithe woodsman would step ashore and carry the light birch bark on his back across the portage path, which perhaps led across a mountam divide, to the watershed of another river. Such as the way in which developed the most important portage path in America which led from the headwaters of the Potomac River across the Alleghany mountains to the head of navigation of the Monogahela River. This old path, worn deep in the soil by the tramp of unnumbered moccasined feet, because of strategic importance in 1713, when, by the Treaty of Utrecht, the French acknowledged the Five Nations of Iroquois Indians as English subjects and gave the English colonists the right to trade west of the Alleghany mountain divide.

With the trade extending farther and farther into the West, the English, in 1744, paid the Iroquois Indians 400 pounds for the lands between the mountains and the Mississippi River. Five years later, the English organized the Ohio Company and granted to settlers large tracts of land in the West in order to establish commercial relations with the indians and hold the French in check. War between the two European nations was the logical result of this policy. In the same year (1749) that the Ohio Company was formed, Christopher Gist, a fearless pioneer, was employed by the company to begin explorations at Will's Creek, the site of the present city of Cumberland, Maryland, the head of navigation on the Potomac River, to seek out the best route across the mountains.

The route having been selected, Colonel Cresap, one of the members of the company, in 1751, in company with a friendly Delaware Indian chief named Nemacolin, blazed the trail over the Alleghanies into the new country. Two years later, Governor Dinwiddie, of Virginia, despatched George Washington, in company with Christopher Gist, westward over this trail to warn the French commandant at Fort Le Boeuf, now Waterford, Pennsylvania, to withdraw his forces from the Ohio valley.

This incident led up to the French and Indian War (1754-1763). In those days the feeling was general in the colonies, especially among the Quakers in Pennsylvania, that the war was brought on by the activities of the Ohio Company. Thus, in 1755, when General Braddock selected Washington's route along the general location of the Cumberland Road, as far as the present position of General Braddock's grave, ten miles east of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, for the English expedition against the French at Fort Duquesne, the Pennsylvanians plainly showed their apathy. Without their active assistance, it required so long a time for Braddock to open a road through 100 miles of wilderness that the French were given an opportunity to concentrate their forces and annihilate the British.

Fairview Tavern, three miles from Baltimore, on the Frederick Turnpike connecting with the National Pike at Cumberland. The picture is typical of the heavy travel on the Cumberland Road. The stagecoach passengers stopped at the taverns and the Conestoga wagon drivers put up overnight at the "wagon houses" situated one or two miles apart. From a financial viewpoint, the passenger business, similar to the conditions existing on the railroads today, was only a fraction of the freight-hauling operations.

French and Indian Wars Divert East-West Travel Southward to the Cumberland Gap (1758-1781)—Determined to wipe out the stain of this bitter defeat, the British General Forbes cut a road north of the Cumberland Road through the forest westward across the mountains in Pennsylvania and led his soldiers to victory over the French at Fort Duquesne in 1758. Behind the retreating French, the Ohio country would have settled more rapidly with immigrants from the East, had it not been for the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, in 1775, which left the Indians bitterly hostile to the colonists along the Atlantic seaboard. The retention of the French forts in the northwest was a further deterrent. These obstacles turned the tide of immigration southward to the route later known as the Wilderness Road leading through the Cumberland Gap in the Alleghany mountains between Tennessee and Virginia. This route, however, was too far south of the center of population to permanently hold the leadership as the main transmountain road. Furthermore, George Washington, in 1784, after the close of the Revolutionary War, made an exploration into the Ohio country to revive his boyhood plan of a highway across the mountains connecting with a canal from Cumberland, Maryland, to tidewater at Georgetown, near the present city of Washington. The remains of the canal begun by Washington's company may be seen today on the Virginia side of the Potomac river at Great Falls.

The stagecoaches travelled at a speed of eight to ten miles an hour. The Cumberland Road was renowned for the excellence of its taverns where Mexican and Spanish milled dollars were seen more often than the United States dollar. The Spanish "fippenny bit", called a "fip", was worth 6 1-4 cents, and the Spanish "levy" was valued at 12 1-2 cents. The "stage houses", where the horse relays were kept, averaged twelve miles apart.

Loag-Distance Roads Were Needed To Provide Cohesion in The Period of Disunion Following the Revolutionary War (1785-1805)—Washington early realized the danger of a mountaiu barrier dividing the interests of the West from those of the East and his beloved Virginia. Nevertheless, appropriations by the Old Dominion, in 1795, and by the State of Kentucky, in 1797, although coupled with military necessity and private initiative, were insufficient to build the Wilderness Road across the mountains through a sparsely settled region. Thus attention was directed to the treasury of the United States. As the Federal Government owned no domain south of the Ohio River at the beginning of the nineteenth century, the choice of the most practicable transmountain routs shifted again to the northwest where the government owned land.

When the Ordinance of 1787 created a territorial goverument for the region northwest of the Ohio River, three eastern cities were striving for the trade of the West. Philadelphia, in 1792, begaa the construction of the Lancaster Pike, the first link in the improvement of a western road thru Pennsylvania. The belt of rich limestone soil in Pennsylvania supported luxurious crops of wheat for the metropolis of Philadelphia. The parent limestone rock made possible the construction of the Lancaster Pike, the first crushed-stone road in America. Baltimore, in 1796, had begun to build the Frederick Turnpike westward toward Cumberland. As late as 1805, however, Virginia had done little to connect Richmond with the Northwest.

When Ohio applied for admission into the Union in 1802, it was feared that this new State would sell the unpaid-for Government land for taxes. To prevent this, Congress, in 1803, agreed to a plan whereby a "two per cent fund," derived from the sale of public land in Ohio, was to be used for the construction of roads to and thru the new state. The Cumberland Road resulted from this "compact" between the State of Ohio and the Federal Government.

United States Government Lays Out And Builds The Cumberland Road (1806-1821). — The commissioners chosen hy President Thomas Jefferson to locate the route selected the old portage road, between Cumberland, on the Potomac River, and Brownsville, (Red Stone Old Fort) in Pennsylvania, on the Monongahela River, as the most practicable land-crossing connecting the watersheds to the east and west of the Alleghany mountains. Two commissioners were influenced also largely in their selection of the route by the growing trade of Baltimore with the West. The fact that Maryland owned no territory extending over the mountains made Federal aid necessary to continue the road westward.

Congress passed the act for laying out and building the road from Cumberland, Maryland, to the State of Ohio, on March 29, 1806. The route recommended by the commissioners and modified by presidential actioin was adopted to pass through Brownsville, Washington and West Alexandria, to Wheeling on the Ohio River. By 1808, the right-of-way had been cleared one-half width from Cumberland to Brownsville. The first construction contract was let on May 8, 1811. The partially completed road east of the Ohio River was opened to traffic as far as Wheeling, then in Virginia, in 1818.

Indiana was admitted as a State in 1816 and Illinois in 1818. The United States entered into a "compact" with these states similar to the agreement made with Ohio. In 1820 an appropriation was made for locating a continuance of the road through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, to a point on the Mississippi River between St. Louis and the mouth of the Illinois River. In 1825, when Congress made an appropriation for completing the survey to the capital of Missouri, at Jefferson City, the road was located as far west as Columbus, in Ohio. One year later a direct location was continued to Indianapolis. In 1828 the route was adopted from Richmond, Indiana, to Indianapolis and Terra Haute. In the same year the commissioners examined the route to St. Louis and, in 1829, to Jefferson City, Missouri. The road was located between Terra Haute, Indianapolis and Vandalia, then the State capital of Illinois, in 1830.

Then began a struggle which lasted for eighteen years between Missouri, which wanted the St. Louis crossing of the Mississippi River, and Illinois, which favored the crossing at Alton. In 1847 a bill was introduced in Congress favoring the Alton crossing but the question never came to a vote. The Cumberland Road was never located beyond Vandalia, because other more satisfactory methods of transportation gained the ascendancy while the dispute over the crossing was in progress.

National Pike Yields First Place to The Canal and The Railroad (1825-1837).—Opened to travel in 1825, the Erie Canal across New York State stimulated trade and travel into the Northwest to such an extent that both Philadelphia and Baltimore, confronted with dwindling revenues were forced to cast about for more efficient methods of transportation. Prior to 1800, Philadelphia's leadership as the commercial metropolis of the colonies and later of the republic, had never been threatened. Then, during the first quarter of the nineteenth century, New York City slowly forged to the front to assume her rightful position of supremacy because of her geographical position as the city on the Atlantic seaboard nearest to the vastly wealthy lumber and grain-growing region bordering the navigable waters of the Great Lakes. As the commerce on the Erie Canal increased in volume, the port of New York so far outdistanced all other competitors that her leadership from that day to this has never been in jeopardy. Meanwhile, searching in desperation for means of regaining her lost prestige as the gateway to the Northwest, Baltimore, on July 4, 1828, laid the cornerstone for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and simultaneously began the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. In 1830, the first successful locomotive trip was made from Baltimore to Ellicott's Mills, Maryland. These events cast the first shadows of approaching doom over the Cumberland Road, then in the heyday of its glory.

Lacking Repair and Falling Into Disuse, the National Pike, Reverts To The Counties For Maintenance Purposes (1838-1881)—The National Pike was completed as far as Columbus, Ohio, in 1833, but it was never finished beyond Springfield, Ohio. The new developments in the East were casting their shadows before them. The railroad had reached Point of Rocks, thirty-seven and three-quarters miles west of Baltimore, in 1836. Appropriations for the road in Indiana, begun by the United States in 1829, were discontinued in 1838. Then came feverish demands for speed from the western states and Springfield and Indianapolis became centers of activity for construction operations. Only a few miles, however, were completed between Richmond, Indianapolis, Centerville and Terra Haute.

Because President Andrew Jackson opposed government-collected tolls for repairs on the constitutional ground that such action involved national jurisdiction over the Cumberland Road, the old pike, much of which was in bad condition at that time, was surrendered to the states east of the Ohio for maintenance in 1835. The states of Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia made arrangements to finance these repairs with tolls paid by the users of the road. West of the Ohio, Indiana and Illinois chose the state-aid method of paying for the upkeep.

Nothing that could be done, however, was sufficient to turn the ebbing tide of travel along the old pike and, in 1810, the property of the United States used in the construction of the road began to be sold. The darkness of almost total eclipse was spreading over the turnpike road. In 1850, the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal was opened from Georgetown to Cumberland, 150 miles away, but it was never extended beyond that point. The first locomotive of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad puffed excitedly into Wheeling, on the Ohio River, in 1853. Meanwhile, although slower in getting started, the Pennsylvanians had been busy and had completed a combined canal and railroad which reached Pittsburgh in 1852.

Unable to compete with the newer and more efficient means of transportation, the stagecoach and Conestoga wagon freight-hauling companies on Cumberland Road began to lose business and finally went into bankruptcy. In 1856 the section of the road in Illinois was surrendered to the State after a total of nearly seven million dollars had been spent hy the United States Government in the construction of the road throughout its entire length. During the War Between the States (1861-1865) the old pike became a great military thoroughfare and of strategic importance in the maintenance of mail communication between the East and West. In 1877 Ohio petitioned the United States to free the road of tolls and similar action was taken hy Maryland in 1878. Finally, the United States Goverament, in 1879, discontinued all future obligations in connection with the road.

Twentieth Century Modes of Highway Transportation Revive The One-Time Glory of the Old Pike (After 1885)—The spirit of the old pike had not died. The body was hibernating during the storm of the transition period which marked the end of the milleniums when horse-drawn vehicles were the leaders in the sphere of human travel. Just ahead was the springtime of a new era ia the transportation history of the human race when the mechanical wagons, foreseen as long ago as the fifteenth century by Leonardo da Vinci, would supplant all other forms of highway transportation. The old Cumberland Road before long was to be restored to more than its earlier prestige. It was to become the most important link in an east-west highway chain extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts.

The first gentle zephyr of the new era was felt about 1885 when the "safety," the precocious child of the "high-wheeled" bicycle, jolted along the neglected, pot-holed macadam roads on the outskirts of cities and towns. Then the League of American Wheelmen began to voice an appeal in favor of the construction of "good roads." Tandem bicycles, bicycle trousers, turtle sweaters and caps, ladies' bloomers, shirtwaists and straw hats and "century runs" of 100 miles were soon the order of the day.

Responding to the demands for road improvement, Congress, in 1893, created the office of Road Inquiry, in the Department of Agriculture, to gather and disseminate information with regard to road construction and maintenance. This small office was provided with an annual appropriation of $10,000, a sum which was shortly to become inadequate to serve the requirements of the motor vehicle.

At the turn of the century, the "horseless wagon" began to chug, cough and spatter along the old pike on short excursions from a nearby town or city. Scared within an inch of their lives, chickens dashed cackling across the road in mad flight in front of the advancing wheels of the century's new contrivance. Horses snorted, reared on their hind legs, turned tail and jack-knifed the shafts as the harness broke and parted from the overturned wagon and the animals galloped frantically away in terror-stricken panic. Thus routed, horses, as a means of highway motive power, continued their retreat as the automobiles grew in number until today a horse-drawn vehicle is an unusual sight upon the old pike.

As the mechanism of the motor vehicle was steadily improved, its ability to travel long distances without a breakdown caused it to grow steadily in favor with the farmer as well as the city dweller. To provide a greater mileage of continuous highways, by joining the country roads into a statewide system of highways, forming a vast national network of roads extending from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border. One of the most important features of the act was the provision for the establishment of a competent highway engineering department within each state as a prerequisite to the granting of Federal-aid funds. The original Office of Road Inquiry had grown into the Offices of Public Roads and Rural Engineering and, in 1916, the Bureau of Public Roads was designated to act as the agent of the Secretary of Agriculture. In 1919, Thomas H. McDonald, for many years chief engineer of the Iowa State Highway Commission, was made the new chief executive of Old toll house on the National Pike near Frostburg, Maryland. The pikes, or pole, were placed across the road to halt the vehicles until the toll was paid, when the pike was turned out of the way. This turning of the pike gave the name of turnpike and finally pike to these privately-owned and operated toll roads. The toll houses were spaced in Ohio about ten miles apart and the toll averaged 1 1-2 cents a mile for a stagecoach, as compared with a gasoline tax of 2.5 of a cent a mile for an automobile in the present time.

the revitalized Federal road-building agency.

It was springtime once more across and beyond the Alleghanies for the Old National Pike, as automobiles and motor trucks honked and rumbled along the route once traveled by the buffalo, the Indian and the pioneers. The petals of a climbing rose, sprawled along a fence bordering the roadway, blushed pink in the sunshine of the new season. A Kentucky cardinal flashed his brilliant scarlet plumage to the traveller from the swinging limb of a cream-white dogwood tree blossoming beside the highway, a prophetic evidence of the improvement and beautification of the roadsides to become an important by-product of road building a few years later.

Workmen, foremen, surveyors and engineers were working with a will to make the old pike serviceable for the thousands of motor cars being produced by the manufacturing plants and driven first by goggle-eyed motorists clothed in long linen dusters. Mile after mile of the Old National Pike was hard-surfaced to meet the new standards by the State highway departments with the aid of funds appropriated from the Federal treasury. In 1925, the restored pike was given the designation of United States Route 40 and standard numbered shield markers and danger and caution signs were erected in each state to guide the cross-country motorist along the way.

Today a neatly uniformed attendant, at a spotless white filling station, watches with a satisfied smile the rotating dial of a gasoline pump as the dynamic fluid flows into the tank of a jade-green, streamlined limousine, filled with a carefree, happy family on a Saturday afternoon outing. Stepping from a halted school bus, a sprightly blue-eyed, golden-haired little girl, with a potted plant clasped tightly in her hands, trips lightly and happily through the front door of a red-brick consolidated rural schoolhouse.

Today, travelled from coast to coast, this National Main Street, which may some day be the central thoroughfare in a country to densely populated that it resembles one extensive urban area, beckons the tourist, the business man, the farmer and the city dweller to take part in the development and enjoyment of the social, commercial, industrial and recreational advantages of our land of freedom and opportunity.

MT. LAKE PARK

The radio show, sponsored by Mickey's Concert Band, was considered a success. The Assembly hall, where it was held, was filled. We are informed that over $45 was cleared. Many of the patrons would like to have heard more from the band. They gave a fine program, however, before the visitors gave their performance. It's a great little band and well worth hearing.

Must be summer time. We counted six swimmers returning from the lake on Tuesday evening. Personally, we get a chill when we think of it.

The ladies of the Bible class of the Methodist church are going to give Mt. Lake a lawn fete on Wednesday, June 22. It will be held on the Amphitheatre grounds, and there will be plenty of entertainment. A fortune teller, fish pond and other games, also plenty of music. There will be all sorts of food.

The annual children's program will be given on Sunday night at eight o'clock in the U. B. church. This service is under the auspices of the U. B. Sunday school. It is a yearly feature of the church program.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 23, 1938. NUMBER 17.

CAMP FACILITIES NEAR BITTINGER ARE AVAILABLE

26-Acre Lake For Bathing, Boating, Fishing, Now Completed By Government Agency

Public picnic grounds and camping facilities are now available on the government-owned tract of land near Bittinger, it has been announced. Development of this model vacation place, along with reforestation and improved forestry practices, has been carried on for about three years.

The work is being done by the Farm Security Administration with WPA labor, originally begun by the Resettlement Administration.

A succession of projects had led to reforestation work on 30,000 acres of land denuded of much timber years ago, the building of 25 miles of roads, the impounding of Pleasant Valley Lake of over 26 acres, for bathing, boating, and fishing.

The reforestation program has called for the planting of over 400,000 white pine, red pine and spruce seedlings, clearing up of forest stands, 300 miles of forest trails, and roadside fire hazard reduction.

Picnic, Camping Facilities

Public picnic grounds have been set out in the area, with fireplaces and log shelters. Camping facilities include water and sanitary conveniences.

At the Pleasant Valley Lake a 4-H camp has been erected for boys and girls and a group of 4-H girls from Allegany county will camp there next week. One side of the lake is set aside for bathing with a sandy beach. The opposite shore is to be restricted to the use of organized groups such as 4-H clubs and Boy and Girl Scouts.

Harry L. Porter, Oakland, project manager, under whose supervision the work has been carried on, stated he hoped to see additional cabins, assembly and dining halls, recreational facilities adjacent to lakes and streams made available.

"We wish to make it possible so more people will come and enjoy an outing or vacation in the forest and facilities offered them as if it was their own private grounds.

This area may be reached from Grantsville. People from the Oakland section may also reach it by turning into the Bittinger road, near Railey's Stone Tavern, at the Deep Creek Bridge, and traveling almost to Bittinger.

BASS SEASON OPENS JULY 1 THROUGHOUT MARYLAND

Trout Fishing Ends Next Week Except in Parts of This County

Trout fishing ends in all sections of Maryland except in parts of Garrett county at sundown next Thursday evening, June 30, and the fishing for bass will then be opened.

The special exceptions in trout fishing are in force in Garrett county because the water here is cooler and a longer time is thereby required for the fish to become active and self-protective following the season for spawning.

It will be legal to fish for trout in Deep Creek Lake until October 31, and in the Youghiogheny River below Swallow Falls until November 30.

The bass season, which opens next Friday morning, July 1, will continue until midnight, November 30, except in Deep Creek Lake, where it will close on October 31. The lake is closed to all fishing from November 1 to April 15.

Trout in Deep Creek must be 8 inches long and bass 9 inches long, to be kept, while in other streams trout must be 7 inches and bass 10 inches.

Fishing is permitted in Deep Creek Lake on Sundays.

Golf Course Will Not Open Officially Until July 15

At a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council Tuesday night, it was decided, after conferring with Henry Tarring, Jr., local WPA administrator, that the golf course would not be officially opened until July 15.

Certain portions of the course, however, will be available for practice, on the west side of the area. The grass on the fairways is being given that much extra time to grow. The large amount of rainfall and the small amount of sunshine throughout the past two months are said to have retarded its growth considerably.

CANDIDATE ANNOUNCES AS CLERK TO COMMISSION

Walter G. Meyers Is Only Person To Appear On Horizon This Week

Walter G. Meyers, of district 16, was the only person to appear on the political horizon this week. Mr. Meyers announced himself a candidate to succeed himself as clerk to the board of County Commissioners.

Mr. Meyers resides in Mountain Lake Park. With the exception of a four-year term, he has been clerk to the board for a number of years. He states in his announcement that his former experience makes him acquainted with the duties required of the aspirant, and solicits the votes of all citizens at the Republican Primary on September 12.

A. CHARLES STEWART IS SEEKING SEAT IN HOUSE

Change Is Needed To Save People From Disaster, He Says

Declaring that there is imperative need for a change of management at Washington in order to save the people from servility and disaster, A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, today made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Sixth District United States Representative.

Counties Canvassed

Stewart took the step after a careful canvass of all the five counties of the district had disclosed no other aspirants for the nomination and a general desire to unite behind one candidate and thus avoid a primary fight. The counties in the district include Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery.

Liberty Endangered

"There are pressing needs why the people should have a change at Washington," Stewart stated. "The rights and liberties of citizens are endangered today as never before in the history of the nation as the result of the persistent effort of the New Deal to concentrate more and more power in the hands of the executive, to render impotent the coordinate judicial and legislative branches of the government and to enslave the people in regimentation."

Mr. Stewart bases his qualifications for the seat in the National House of Representatives on a long record of service to his people in many capacities. He has served fifteen years as a member of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners. He is a son of sturdy Scotch parents and was born in Frostburg. He served as mayor, having been elected without opposition. During the World War he was Red Cross chairman in his district. He has served as president of the Frostburg Business Men's Bureau and the Frostburg Rotary Club. He is active in fraternal circles and a member of the Methodist church.

Detailed Program Given For Broadcast On June 28th

The detailed program of the broadcast over radio station WTBO, Cumberland, June 28th, has been announced by Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley. The program will be heard from 6:00 to 6:30 p. m.

J. B. Mordock, chairman of the special committee of the Cumberland Mercantile Bureau, will introduce Mayor Fraley, who will present the Oakland Boys' Band for a five-minute selection, after which he will give a five-minute talk on Oakland and its coming events.

There will be another band selection and then three selections by the Cumberland Community Choir. This will be followed by another band selection, which will close the half-hour broadcast.

A full page of pictures of Garrett county is appearing in the Cumberland Sunday Times.

Vindex Man Held at Cumberland

James Minnicks, of Vindex, this county, was held under $1,000 bond for Federal Grand Jury action, when arraigned Monday before United States Commissioner William A. Vandergrift, of Cumberland, charged with possession and manufacture of illicit liquor.

Minnicks was charged with operating an unregistered still. His wife, Blanche Minnicks, and younger brother, Lawrence, were freed of the charges.

LAKE ASSOCIATION SENDS INVITATION TO TYDINGS

Wants Him To See Possibilities Of This Region As A Resort

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Deep Creek Lake Association, held Saturday evening at the Deep Creek Yacht club, an invitation was extended to United States Senator Millard Tydings to be a guest of the committee on the week-end of July 4 to see the vacation possibilities of this county.

The Deep Creek Lake Association was formed last year by a group of lake property owners to promote the health, happiness and interests of all who come to this section. Other objectives are to give wise and forceful direction to the growth of the community, to promote the interests of the county in bringing new taxpayers to it, and put through the building of cottages and the purchase of products from local farmers, and thus increase the circulation of money in the community. The organization also feels that roads and electricity constitute a key to further growth there.

In the plan of the association, according to Major Garey, secretary-treasurer, is the hope of getting an expert from the United States Parks System to make an early, careful survey of the section, chart needed roads, suggest commercial areas and develop landscape ideas along lines that are natural to the locality. A survey of wild life in the county by a federal representative with suggested improvement, is also in the plan.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY, JUNE 27

Is To Be Continued For 2-Weeks Period In Methodist Church

The Daily Vacation Bible School, sponsored by the Lutheran, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Methodist churches of Oakland, will open on next Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock. The school will be held this year in St. Paul's Methodist church. There will be classes for the kindergarten children and for those in the first to the seventh grades and any who are older who may care to attend.

The following schedule will be adhered to:

Worship period, 9:00 to 9:30, with Dr. A. B. Leamer in charge and directing this part of the work; study classes from 9:30 to 10:20; assembly or recess, 10:20 to 10:30; art and handwork from 10:30 to 11:30.

An efficient corps of teachers will be in charge of the classes, including Rev. D. C. Trimble, who will teach the 7th grade and older groups, and Student Pastor Robert Allen, who will be the teacher for the sixth grade.

Rev. W. S. Patterson will be the director of the school.

Emphasis will be placed upon worship, serious Bible study and character training, art and handwork, and parents are urged to send their children for this important instruction.

The school will be in session from June 27th to July 8, with the exception of July 4.

As heretofore, there will be no registration fee, but the usual offering from the children will be received on one day before the school closes. The closing exercises will be held on Sunday evening, July 10.

New Telephone Directories To Be Delivered Soon

The new issue of the Oakland and vicinity telephone directory will be delivered to subscribers in this area soon, according to G. A. Hinds, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City here. This directory also includes listings of subscribers at Avilton, Blaine, and Kitzmiller.

Subscribers are requested by Mr. Hinds to be careful to remove personal papers from their directories before discarding them. Because of many changes in directories, it is urged that all old directories either be turned in or destroyed when the new book is delivered.

It was not known whether or not the new book would contain names of subscribers on the lines to Friendsville, Accident and the lake region, which are now nearing completion.

July CCC Quota Is 45

hhe Maryland CCC quota in July will be 787, according to J. Milton Patterson, executive secretary of the Board of State Aid and Charities. The Garrett county quota is 45.

69 SCHOOLS VISITED IN PRE-SCHOOL ROUND-UPS

317 Children Were Immune To Smallpox Or Had Been Vaccinated

The summer round-up of pre-school children conducted by the Health Department the first two weeks in June had very satisfactory results, according to Dr. H. R. DuPuy, health officer.

Sixty-nine schools were visited. These schools anticipate a total of 503 children to enter the first grade next year. Of this number, 317 either were already immune to smallpox or were vaccinated at the time of the visits. One hundred ninety-nine of them were either immune to diphtheria or were immunized during the round-up. This means that 63% of the first graders for next year are already immune to smallpox and 40% of them are immune to diphtheria.

A small number of children under pre-school age were immunized and a few school children who had not received these treatments were taken care of. During the two weeks a total of 301 vaccinations and 202 injections of toxoid were given by the Health Department.

Holy Cross Students Arrive At Summer Camp On Lake

Students of the Holy Cross College, Washington, D. C., have returned to their summer home on Deep Creek Lake.

For several years the Holy Cross Fathers have conducted a summer house of studies on the Lake. The group this year will number approximately sixty young men who are studying for the priesthood.

Rev. Charles Corcoran, C. S. C., and Rev. O. C. Oswald, C. S. C., arrived at the lake with the first group of the student body.

TO SING AT FESTIVAL

REINALD WERRENRATH

PLAN IS PRESENTED FOR OAKLAND HI PLAYGROUND

Delegation Presents Proposition To Commissioners On Tuesday

A plan to obtain a playground for Oakland High School was presented to the Board of County Commissioners on Tuesday afternoon by a delegation of interested citizens, and although the outcome will not be known until the next meeting of that organization, it was indicated that the request might be granted.

The ground in question contains the quantity of five or six acres on Eighth street, near the Hamill bark house, and is owned by Stuart F. Hamill. The purchase of the ground would be made by accepting a proposition favorable both to the County Commissioners and Mr. Hamill which would necessitate only a small outlay of cash.

The lot, according to F. D. Bittle, Oakland High school principal, who was chief spokesman for the delegation on Tuesday afternoon, could be obtained immediately and would be in shape to use for soccer and fieldball this fall. The ground is not far from the school building.

It was pointed out that all other high schools in the county had ample playground facilities for all athletic activities and that Oakland High school, which had half the total number of high school pupils in the county had only a small "cage" for all recreation.

The Commissioners will inspect the proposed site, confer with the Board of Education, and give their reply at their next meeting on Tuesday, July 5.

Looking ahead into the future it was also pointed out that when the proper time came there would also be suitable ground in the neighborhood for a new high school building.

County Commissioners to Assume Sponsorship of Sewing Projects

Beginning July 1 sewing projects carried on in Maryland under the Works Progress Administration, and sponsored by the Board of State Aid and Charities, will be sponsored by the County Commissioners of the various counties, it was announced by F. H. Dryden, state administrator.

The County Commissioners of this county accepted sponsorship of the projects at their meeting several weeks ago, it was stated. A percentage of the cost already is being borne by the Commissioners and the change of sponsorship will increase the cost by a few percent, it was estimated.

At the present time 900 women are employed on sewing projects throughout the state. They produce garments to clothe the needy unemployed in the State. Each month they make 19,000 garments.

Weather Considered Peculiar

The weather of the past two weeks or more has been one of the most peculiar on record, according to a number of older citizens whose memories run back quite a few years.

Hardly a day has passed in which rain has not fallen, and during which time it is a strange sight to see the sun shining in all its force and glory. Even the old maxim, "Red at night, sailor's delight," has not been carried out for upon two occasions there were signs of a clear day ahead, but upon awakening the next morning people found it had rained during the night and the skies were still overcast.

Tuesday, June 21, was the longest day in the year, and since that time days have been getting shorter by a few seconds each 24 hours.

OPERA SINGER WILL TAKE PART IN CHOIR FESTIVAL

Reinald Werrenrath Will Have Leading Role In Oratorio "Elijah" To Be Given July 16

MOLLER IS GUEST TENOR

Reinald Werrenrath, baritone of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera Companies, who has had more than 2,500 appearances in concerts and innumerable appearances at soloist with symphony orchestras, will be the guest soloist in the oratorio, "Elizah," to be presented Saturday, July 16, in the huge amphitheatre at Mountain Lake Park, in the fifth annual Mountain Choir Festival, it has been announced by Rev. Felix G. Robinson, founder and director.

The festival dates are July 15 to 17, with the first day's program given over to Maryland artists, and the concluding day featuring the adult choir contest, the choral eucharist and outdoor processional of hundreds of vested singers.

Mr. Werrenrath will assume the role of "Elijah." Another guest artist will be M. P. Moller, Jr., tenor, who will sing the role of "Obadiah." Other portions of the oratorio will be taken by the following: The widow, Dorothy Hoffman, soprano; the youth, Romayne Beyard, tenor; Ahab. E. J. Phillips, tenor; angels. Mrs. Ernest Clark and Mrs. James Dean, contraltos.

Although the performance is scheduled for 7:30 p. m., on Saturday, portions of it will be heard over the Columbia broadcasting system from 4 to 4:30 p. m., Rev. Robinson also announced.

Organizations which will take part in the singing will include the Hagerstown a cappella choir, Martinsburg Choral Society, Potomac Valley Chorus, Oakland Community chorus, and the Frostburg community choir.

Prof. Raymond K. Hollinger, of Hagerstown, associate director of the festival, will be the conductor, with Miss Isabel Lindsay, accompanist; and Clarence Heckler, Harrisburg, Pa., organist. Assisting Prof. Hollinger in the rehearsal will be Prof. Maurice Matteson, of the staff of the Frostburg State Teachers College; and Rev. Robinson, Oakland.

Two new features of the festival which have been added this year will also be held on Saturday. There will be a junior choir contest from 2 to 3 o'clock of choirs composed of a minimum of 15 voices, ages 6 to 15, and a hymn contest, open only to male and mixed quartets, from 3 to 4 o'clock. There will be awards made in both events.

The aim of the Mt. Choir festival is to promote the rebirth of worship through song, according to Rev. F. Robinson, and ancient church and almost forgotten medieval church ritual will be revived when the festival chorus of several hundred will bring the festival to a conclusion on Sunday night, July 17. An adult choir contest is a feature of the Sunday afternoon performance.

Forty-seven different choral organizations have participated in the first four seasons, while from three to five thousand people have attended the sessions each year. Last year the festival occupied two days, but has been extended over a three-day period this year so as to include a greater variety in its program, Rev. Robinson stated.

Summer Supplement Issued For Our Summer Visitors

Beginning with this issue of The Republican and continuing for ten weeks, a summer supplement to the paper is being issued along with its regular weekly edition, for the special interest of the summer visitors to Garrett county.

Richard J. Gonder, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Gonder, of Oakland, will be editor of this special publication, and he will be in charge of both news and advertising. The supplement is being named The Allegheny Guide.

As Mr. Gonder states in his foreword, our duties as hosts become more numerous as more and more vacationers come within our resort area. Many hundreds of people come to the mountain top during the summer months and it will be the purpose of The Allegheny Guide to provide a medium of contact between our visitors and the people of the county, and also between themselves.

Lesson for June 26

SHARING SERVICE WITH THE LIVING CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-8, 14-16, 19, 20.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them. Mark 16:20.
PRIMARY TOPIC—At Work With Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Living Lord.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.

Easter again? No, the calendar does not say so, nor have we forgotten that we observed Easter ten weeks ago, but quite properly we study the resurrection story again today. Not only does it come in the sequence of our lessons as our final study in the Gospel of Mark, but the fact is that every Sunday is a reminder of Easter. The reason why we worship on the first day of the week is that it is the resurrection day. What life it would put into our Sunday worship if the glory of the risen Lord would shine forth (as it should) each Lord's Day in all of our service and worship.

It is difficult to think or write about the living Christ without using superlatives. Our lesson for today brings before us the most important truth that the world has ever heard—"He is risen"; it speaks of the worst thing in the world—"unbelief"; and it presents the world's greatest commission—"Go . . . and preach."

I. The Transcendent Truth (vv. 1-8).

"Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified; He is risen, He is not here" (v. 6).

The world anxiously awaits news, and, hoping almost against hope, it longs for good news. This is the good news—the Gospel—the all-important tidings that the Son of God who had taken upon Himself not only the form of man, but the sins of mankind as well, who had tasted the bitter death of Calvary's cross, could not be holden of death, but breaking its bands asunder had risen from the dead.

This truth becomes the chief burden of the messages of the disciples as they soon went everywhere proclaiming the Gospel. See the sermons recorded in the Book of Acts (2:24, 32; 3:14, 15; 4:10, 23; 10:40; 13:30). It was such preaching that was at the foundation of the Christian church. It may be that we should emphasize it more.

II. The Impassable Barrier (v. 14).

"He upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not." Many are the sins that men commit, but at the root of them all we find the heart of all sin—unbelief.

The tragic consequence of unbelief is that it shuts the door, throws up a barrier to God's blessing that is virtually impassable until God himself gives grace to believe. The astonishing thing is that the hardness of heart and lack of faith here were on the part of those who had been the disciples of Jesus, to whom He had made known the fact that He was to die and to arise on the third day, and to whom there had now come the word of eye-witnesses that they had seen the Lord.

While we marvel at their short-sighted unbelief, shall we not ask ourselves what hindrances we have placed in God's way in our own lives?

III. The Supreme Commission (vv. 15, 16, 19, 20).

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation" (v. 15). "And they went . . . and preached, the Lord working with them and confirming the word" (v. 20).

The great commission of Christ is still the "marching orders of the church," but how slowly we have marched. The writer of these notes was recently startled by statistics revealing anew the fact that "Christian" America is rapidly returning to the status of a mission field. It is said that last year 60,000 churches in America had no converts, and 9,000 churches were closed during the year. There are 10,000 villages reported to be without church services, and 30,000 communities without a resident pastor.

The command of Christ is that we should go to these pagan communities in our own land with the gospel, and surely it is our double shame that there are still lands where Christ has never been preached, yes, tribes that do not even have a word in their language for the blessed name—Jesus!

If we will go He will indeed work with us (v. 20) and accompany the message and ministry with divine authority and power. Who will go?

EXPLANATORY—

Referring to an editorial appearing in The Republican last Thursday concerning the Grantsville school building, this paper was not unmindful of the fact that the Grantsville people themselves had a testimonial dinner in honor of the County Commissioners and the Board of Education, to which the editor was invited, immediately upon the completion of the school building, which showed a mark of appreciation on the part of Grantsville citizens.

The thought last Thursday was voiced because of political speeches at a recent gathering where those higher up appeared to be taking all the credit for the completed structure.

LOOK OUT FOR TICKS, IS ADVICE OF HEALTH DEPT.

Vacationists, Campers, Fishermen Urged To Use Precautions

Furteen cases of spotted fever—tick-bite fever—have been reported to the State Department of Health from widely separated parts of the State since the first of May. There have been four deaths from the disease.

As ticks are apparently unusually prevalent this year, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, urges vacationists, campers, fishermen, owners of camps and of shores, and all others whose business or pleasure takes them into tick-infested areas, to use all possible safeguards against being bitten by the insects and to take great care not to crush the ticks in handling them. Precautions advised by Dr. Riley follow:

"For some reason—weather conditions possibly—ticks are unusually numerous this year. Spotted fever, which we generally speak of as tick-bite fever, is spread by the bite of infected ticks, or from absorbing disease-producing material from crushed ticks. Fortunately not all ticks are infected but it is safest to regard all ticks as possible sources of danger and to act accordingly. The disease does not spread from person to person.

"1. Be careful in going through tick-infested areas. Wear suitable clothing.

"2. Cut out undergrowth and all weeds; cut grass very short around dwellings; along paths leading to bathing pools and shores. Remove or burn debris. Spray the trails around the settlement with creosote oil.

"3. Look out for ticks on your body and on your clothing. Make a careful inspection at least twice a day, if you are on a hiking or camping trip or are employed in a tick-infested area. Children are likely to be bitten back of the ears, on the head or neck. Don't overlook these or any other hiding places in your inspections. Examination of the whole body is necessary.

". Remove ticks at once. Be very careful in withdrawing any found on the person, and in taking ticks off of dogs, horses, cattle or other animals, not to crush the insects between the fingers. The disease-producing material may be absorbed into the system through the slightest scratch or break in the skin. If the insect is embedded in the skin, use forceps or wear gloves in withdrawing it. Disinfect the spot from which the insect has been withdrawn by swabbing with iodine. Wash the hands thoroughly with soap and water after withdrawing the ticks."

The period between infection with the disease-bearing material and the first appearance of tick-hite fever ranges from two days in some cases, Dr. Riley said, to ten or twelve in others. In its early stages tick-bite fever may be confused with influenza, measles and typhoid fever. It is advisable, therefore, to call a doctor promptly, if suspicious symptoms develop after having been exposed to ticks. Laboratory tests of the blood are valuable in confirming the diagnosis.

The majority of the cases of tick-hite fever that have been reported in Maryland, have occurred between May and September.

Although no bones were broken, Ream was badly bruised and cut. There were several occupants of the other car and all were cut and bruised but none hurt seriously. Both automobiles were badly damaged.

Hooton, 25, of Baltimore, formerly of Rowlesburg, last Thursday. He died later in a hospital. Miss Shaw suffered a broken neck.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

The Record

Washington, June 18.

In some respects the record of the Seventy-Fifth Congress, now fully written, stands out as unique in American history. Sitting almost continuously since January, 1937, with two regular sessions and one special session, its results were completely unforseen and against every reasonable expectation.

It spent more money, indulged in more talk and passed fewer laws than any session in recent years. The total appropriations exceeded twenty billions, twelve of which were authorized in the last three months. Except for one World War year there has been nothing approximately as great. A special appropriation of $400,000 was necessary to print the 10,000 additional pages of the Congressional Record forced by the various filibusters. Though it began in a strong economic atmosphere, with the President insisting upon a balanced budget and urging rigid retrenchment, it ends in an unmatched and lavish outburst of spending.

More than 5,000 names have been added to the pension rolls. The number of Federal jobholders, commissions and boards has been increased. The Federal bureaucracy, against which Mr. Roosevelt once inveighed, has been enhanced and extended. The deficit for the year will approximate five billions and the debt by July 1, 1939, is estimated at forty-eight billions, an undreamed of figure, twenty-seven billions increase in six years. As the session ends, it is clear that Federal finances are dangerously out of control. There is no longer even any talk about restoring the national equilibrium.

Startling as these financial facts are, the record of the Cougress on legislative and political matters and its attitude toward the Executive is just as remarkable. It started off looking for guidance to an immensely popular President, fresh from his great 1936 victory, at the top of his prestige and with a larger party majority in Congress than any President in a hundred years. The notion that it would revolt against Mr. Roosevelt was regarded as ridiculous. Yet revolt it did in an astonishing and significant way. It mortifyingly beat his most cherished plan to seize control of the Supreme Court, resisting extraordinary White House pressure and personal Presidential appeals. When it came back in the special session of last November it rejected the wage-and-hour bill, and in the regular session this year, despite every Administration effort, refused passage to the anti-lynching and the departmental reorganization bills, both deeply desired by the White House. And it passed a tax bill so disliked by Mr. Roosevelt that he let it become a law without his signature and denounced it to the country.

Under the circumstances, this was a really extraordinary exhibition of independence. However, it was certainly balanced by the almost complete subserviency into which Congress lapsed in the last month of the session. It then passed the President's wage-and-hour bill, for which there is no real demand, and the theory as well as the details of which are open to question. It passed, too, his whole pump-priming program, in the soundness of which not more than a fifth of those who voted for it believe. It yielded to his demand that no strings be attached to the great sums given him. It gave way to him in the proposed anti-monopoly investigation. Most amazing of all, it voted down amendments to the spending-lending bill, which would have made it impossible for the Administration to use relief funds as a club with which to force members of Congress into line.

In brief, they refused to free themselves. While denouncing the mixture of politics with relief, they rejected three separate proposals to take politics out of relief, thus creating an honest election issue upon which the opposition will dilate in this and the next campaign. There is not space here to discuss fully the causes of this Congressional transition first from subserviency to independence and then from independence to an even greater subserviency, except to say that chiefly it was due to the fact that this is an election year. The unfounded fright taken from the over emphasized Florida primaries, the great temptation of the Federal funds, the anxiety to adjourn, reluctance to be put in a position of opposing a "recovery program" and incurring Administration hostility on the eve of a primary—all combined to sap the Congressional spirit and relegate reason to the rear.

Appreciation of these facts and a complete sense of futility sent Senator Glass home in disguest two weeks ago. The Congress dies in a murky political atmosphere, with the President preparing for a political tour across the country (financed, as Mr. David Lawrence points out, with public funds), while members of Congress rush home to patch up their political fences and face the voters. The whole mess winds up on a low moral plane, with a political circus under the guise of an anti-monopoly investigation about to be staged by young White House radicals; with the unemployed at nearly the 1934 highwater mark; with business awfully sick, its recommendations rejected and its stimulation sought by a method which has already failed once. It is not what could be called a pretty picture nor a pleasing prospect, though it could be worse.

Eighteen Attend Women's Short Course From Garrett County

MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE OFFICIALLY OPENS SUNDAY

Nine-Hole Course Rated "Fair" By Jimmy Spencer, Pro And Greens Keeper

JULY EXHIBITION SLATED

With the condition of the greens noted as "good" and the condition of the fairways "fair", the Oakland municipal golf course will open on Sunday, June 26, Jimmy Spencer, pro and greenskeeper, said early this week. Mr. Spencer said that the course would be in excellent condition by July 4th.

Garrett county visitors who liked golf and the Garrett county fans have since the decline and fall of the Deer Park Hotel links, found it necessary to go to the golf links in distant cities. Last year a group of Oakland citizens banded together and made the Oakland club possible.

The nine-hole course, which is one mile west of Oakland, at this early date is slated by golf authorities to become one of the finest small courses in the east. It is unique in being one of the few nine-hole courses to have a theoretical eighteen holes. This is accomplished by the placing of two tees, one considerably behind the other, for each green.

Tom Brand, West Virginia amateur champion, and several other well-known players will give an exhibition game early in July.

Do You Remember When . . . .

..there were four bachelors in the Four Horsemen?

..Deep Creek had motor boat races?

..dances were prohibited in Mountain Lake Park?

..Noah's Ark was the fastest passenger boat on the lake?

FOREWORD

As Oakland and Garrett county continue to grow into a large summer resort and more and more vacationers come within our fifteen-mile resort area, our duties as hosts become more and more numerous. It becomes necessary for us to widen our facilities and lengthen our variety of entertainment in order that they may go back to their homes thinking only of the time when they may return. It becomes necessary, also, for us to adequately describe our facilities and picture our entertainment features so that our visitors will be able to use all we can offer to their best advantage.

Second in our interest is the providing of a concrete medium of contact between our visitors and the people of Garrett county in order that our wide-spread and numerous summer activities may be enjoyed by all. We wish to make it possible for the people of every section of our resort area to be able to enjoy the recreational facilities of every other section.

This publication will be glad to give all possible free publicity to all church benefits and the benefits of other organizations.

It is, politically, Republicrat.

With these thoughts foremost, The Allegheny Guide today makes its debut as a supplement to The Republican.

FIREMEN ARE TO HAVE PARADE ON JULY FOURTH

Many Awards To Be Made

With $185 in cash awards offered to the best fire companies, bands, drum corps and floats beaming up as an attraction for parade entries, the Oakland Fire Department's Jubilee parade on Monday, July 4, looms as one of the largest in three years, it was announced by a fire company official on Wednesday. The parade is scheduled for one p. m.

The celebration, which will be held on the property of the old Glades Hotel, will be composed of the Latlip Shows and firemen's benefit stands, and will remain for the entire week.

The Jubilee dance, which will be held at the Manhattan Hotel on July 4, will begin at 9 p. m. A hope chest will be given as a door prize.

A cash prize of $150 will be given away on July 9 at 10 p. m.

A recent survey by the Plymouth Motor Company shows that American Vacationists will spend $4,500,000,000 on summer motoring this year.

WILL O' THE WISP WILL HAVE MORE ATTRACTIONS

Summer Camp To Have New Swimming Dock

Three new cottages and a large club house have been added to Camp Will O' the Wisp and are now ready for use by vacationists. The club house, which will be used by camp patrons, contains ping-pong and other indoor games and has ample space for dancing.

Dr. T. E. Bullard, manager, stated that the swimming dock will be remodeled this week.

"We hope," Dr. Bullard said, "to be able to build sun benches on the new dock. These benches will be slanted platforms extending from the sides of the dock and will allow passage for swimmers from place to place on the dock without interference with sun bathers. The dock will also have a new diving board."

Riding horses will be available at the camp throughout the summer.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK HOTEL REDECORATES FOR ITS SIXTIETH CONSECUTIVE SUMMER SEASON

Many Attractive Improvements Have Been Made

Many improvements have been made at the Mountain Lake Hotel this spring, and now all is ready as it begins its sixtieth year of service as one of Western Maryland's best known resort hotels.

The old ball room, which has not been used for the past several years because it is too small to accommodate the crowds that attend the summer dances, has been remodeled into a game room featuring ping-pong and several deck games.

The tennis court is remodeled into badminton courts and at the rear of the hotel an archery range has been made.

Mrs. June Grimes, manager of the hotel, stated that all recreational facilities would be open to the people of the Park, Oakland and Deep Creek, as well as to the guests of the hotel.

"We hope," Mrs. Grimes stated, "to be able to start a badminton and archery contest, sponsor a tournament and offer cups to the winners. It will be open to all."

Another new feature at the hotel is the athletic supervision of children. Mr. Jimmy Byrum, of Wheeling, W Va., will be in charge. The tentative program includes instruction in swimming, woodcraft and botany for the younger guests of the hotel. Mr. Byrum was president of the student body of West Virginia University last year.

An athletic director for the girls will be engaged later in the summer.

DEEP CREEK ASSOCIATION SEEKS ELECTRIFICATION

Authorizes Buying Of Pulmotor By Safety Committee

The Deep Creek Lake Association, which was formed last year by a group of eighty property owners of the lake area, has recently been negotiating with the two power companies in an effort to get electricity around the lake. If the negotiations are unsuccessful the association hopes, with the cooperation of all the property owners on the lake to form a corporation and apply for Federal aid through the Federal Rural Electrification Plan. Dr. Frank Wilson, Cumberland, is chairman of the electrification committee.

As stated by an association official, the plan will include the continuation of electricity from Glendale Bridge across North Glade to Turkey Neck, then to the south side and down by the Holy Cross Camp.

In a meeting held Sunday, June 19, at the Turkey Neck Estates, Raymond Houck, of Oakland, was authorized to buy a boat and a pulmotor which will be on call at all times and pressed quickly into service when needed.

The association, which is considered a definite step in the advancement of Deep Creek as a resort, recently published a pamphlet from which the following is extracted: "No miracles will, of course, come from the association. If, in the first year or two we can prevent one drowning, can keep the lake free from pollution, can improve the sports and roads, etc., the association will be worthwhile."

A PLEA FOR A SINNER

Dear Mr. God, please listen,
Since I had to give him up,
Please take good care of Tippy, Sir;
He's such a little pup

Mother says You called to him,
And he just had to go—
I wonder if he misses me,
'Cause, gee, I miss him so.

I know You'll treat him awful nice,
But he's really lots o' care;
And if it's rainy out of doors
He'll track mud everywhere.

He'll sure get into everything
If You leave him just a crack;
But Mr. God, if he bothers You
I'll be glad to take him back.

GARRETT COUNTY HUNTING TALES

Old Hunters Make Baron Munchausen Look Like A Sissy

Tales by hunters and woodsmen are always interesting because of their fictional qualities. The beautiful beast that they almost got, or the one that almost "got" them, makes such a healthy imprint upon one's imagination that one shivers and squirms and nods politely until all the amazing facts are known. Then at the story's end, hoses are wiggled by persons sitting next to each other and one thinks or whispers, "Boy, what a liar."

But in the days when men were men and women were scarce in our backwoods settlements, men really had experiences in the wilds that were exciting and unusual. Men were liars then, too, and were greedy beings that liked nothing better than stretching experiences into almost unbelievable yarns. Actually, they put out tales that made modern liars look sick. They knew how to swing their stories to give them the light touch that made them capable of moving even their toughest companions into a state of surprise, however slight.

Considering the fact that there was nothing better to do on pioneer evenings than to sit around the fire and talk, one can see how these story-telling champions rose to great heights. They didn't have books, for books were an unnecessary evil about which they knew little and cared less. Anyway, it would have been difficult to secure a novel that would have been half so exciting as their own simple lives. So they all tried for the evening prize, which was nothing more than the envious grunts which announced that their companions had been licked.

Thus developed in our pioneer fathers an imagination as a means of self-defense, and as a means of elevation in the opinion of their fellowmen. A good liar was worth more than some fellow who had figured out some new plan for advancing civilization. The simpler stories were enough to make Baron Munchasen look like a sissy! And there is proof for the statement in the few "tales" (there might be a better word for them) which follow that were actually told by some of the pioneers that penetrated into the interior of Garrett County—believe it or not!

Thomas Wilson III was one of Western Maryland's noted hunters in the period around 1840. He talked of an extremely exciting day in the woods. Here's proof:

Once while camping under a large tree for the night, he was awakened by a violent storm and falling timber. He crept to safety under a large fallen tree. When dawn came and the storm abated, he began to try to find his bearings. Looking over the fallen tree which had given him protection, he noticed a deer not far away looking at him. He fired, but when the smoke had cleared the deer was still looking at him.

Thinking that he had missed, he loaded carefully, aimed carefully and fired again. But still the deer looked over the log. Resolving to kill it, he fired twice more, and the deer disappeared after the last shot. Making his way to the place where the deer had stood he was amazed to find not one—but four deer lying dead on the ground.

One thing peculiar about these old hunters is the fact that they never went out for one thing that they didn't bring back at least two, or five, or a whole pack. They were good at that.

An old-timer wrote that having encountered a huge grizzly bear one day and having but one shot, he was forced to flee and keep his remaining one ball for a greater emergency. But it seems that the bear was a persistent animal, and followed so close to the hunter's heels that he was forced to climb a tree. On his way out to a small limb his musket was accidentally discharged, but not in vain, for the ball lodged in the bear's brain.

The impact, however, knocked the hunter into a river below which broke his fall. When he emerged to skin his unwanted prize, he found the two pockets of his coat each held a fine fifteen-inch brook trout. And he had had a bath.

Perhaps the best known of all the hunters of that day was Meshack Browning, author of "Forty-four Years the Life of a Hunter," a book which stirs the imagination to its peak.

Characteristic of the whole book is his story about the time one of his sons had wounded a deer but had not been able to find it. Meshack was kind, so the next day he started out to find the deer and put it out of its misery. Finding its tracks (he never failed) he followed them through the woods until tempting panther tracts crossed the deer's course. Mr. Browning invariably found other tracks, and this case being no exception, he forgot his humanitarian purpose and allowed himself to be disconcerted by the larger game. He tracked the panther, killed it with "one ball which entered the head right between the eyes," and also got two deer and large bear on his way home.

Garrett County animals used to do all kinds of favors for hunters, but Mr. Holmes Wiley asked no favors.

One evening while walking home from his job of cleaning, his little dog let him know that a panther was following them. Wiley immediately turned and scared "the eleven-foot animal" away, that being nothing, because Mr. Wiley often scared things away.

But he wasn't finished—no indeed! He came back to the spot the next day with a gun and found the panther reclining on a log near the spot from which he had been scared away the night before. Bang! And the panther was dead, killed by a shot that went "right between the eyes."

The prize-winner of all Garrett County tale-tellers was one Mr. Tolver Childs, who was born in Garrett county, then Allegany county, in 1809. Like all the rest, Mr. Childs was also a great hunter and prided himself on being the best shot in the country. There's no doubt in anyone's mind that he was the biggest liar in the country. Less forcefully, he had an excellent imagination and his tales are so fascinating that the old fellows even today tell about him with a great deal of pride.

With his favorite dog one evening he was following a path toward home when they started up a deer. The deer "lit out" down the woods at breakneck speed with the dog immediately behind. It was proved that the buck was no fool, for he purposely led the dog toward a young sapling, jumped quickly to the side and let the dog crash into it, head first. The poor animal hit the tree so hard that he was split into halves from head to tail.

His master rushed to the scene and quickly bound the two halves together, tying them securely. But in his haste he got two legs up and two down. After careful nursing the dog recovered. Yes, and he made a better hunting dog than before the accident, for he would run a while on two legs, then flip over and run a while on the other two. Having developed a particular grudge against deer, he would overtake and run down the fastest in the mountains—and there were some fast ones, too.

The best of all Mr. Child's yarn-spinning career is his "peach story," which is really a peach. It seems that one fine spring day he spotted a deer, which was nothing unusual. Reaching into his pouch there was not a shot to be found, which was rather irritating, for he'd shot only twelve that morning. In his pockets he found a peach seed, and being always willing to take a chance, he loaded his musket with a seed and shot away. But alas! The buck only threw up his head and ran away.

He had forgotten the occurrence a few years later when he was walking along the same path and found a peach. A little further on he found another. And another. Finally, he came to a peach tree which was loaded with fruit. He jumped up on a stump and reached for a peach—when the tree got up and slowly walked away!

Recovering from his fright, he followed and found that the tree was growing between the eyes of a big buck. Not until later did he connect this singular event with the time he had shot the peach seed at the buck and thought he had missed his mark. His record as a marksman is still unsoiled!

His records and those of his colleagues will never fade.

SOME OF THE EARLY LAND SPECULATORS IN GARRETT

PAUL HOYE AND HIS SONS

Paul Hoy I emigrated from County Antrim, Ireland, about 1690, and settled in Prince George's county, Maryland. His grandson, Paul Hoye II (1736-1816), only son of James and Tabitha Marbury Hoye, finally settled on "Frog Harbor," near Williamsport, Md.

Tabitha Marbury married, second, William Deakins, and Paul Hoye, with his half-brothers, William, Jr., and Francis Deakins became intereted in the lands "westward of Fort Cumberland."

In 1774 he secured from Lord Baltimore a warrant for 1,000 acres of land for which he paid fifty pounds sterling "caution money." In the same year, with other land speculators, he came to Western Frederick county, now Garrett, and surveyed four tracts of land: "Crab Tree Bottom" and "Friend's Delight" on the Ginseng Run; "Shawnee War," later the Ridgely plantation, south of Grantsville, and "Carmel," in the Green Glades.

During the Revolutionary War, Paul Hoye served as a first lieutenant in the State militia, and after the war patented several tracts of land in Virginia and Maryland, including "The Gleanings," 5144 acres, which extended from near McHenry down the Crab Tree (now Hoye's) Run and the Youghiogheny Valley to Friendsville.

Paul Hoye married Marian Waller, of Virginia. Their children were Ann Elizabeth, William Waller and John.

William W. Hoye became a surveyor and first settled in Cumberland where he and Samuel Selby 3d conducted a mercantile business. In 1787 William W. Hoye was one of the ten surveyors employed by Colonel Fransic Deakins to assist him to survey the Military Lots westward of Fort Cumberland.

In 1796 William W. Hoye married Eleanor, daughter of James Slicer, of Cumberland, and three years later they settled on Crab Tree Bottom, now the Joseph Sebold farm at Sang Run.

John Hoye (1774-1849) went into the land business with his half-uncle, Francis Deakins, in Georgetown, now part of Washington City.

Francis and William Deakins, Jr., had no children. They willed parts of their extensive estates to the half-brother, Paul Hoye, who, in 1805, deeded his share to his son John, who was also the executor of the Francis Deakins estate.

In order to be nearer to the lands which he controlled in Allegany county and in Virginia in 1813 John Hoye moved to Cumberland where he soon married Mary daughter of Captain George Calmes. They resided in what is now the Christian Science church, adjoining the Court House. This house, one of the oldest in Cumberland, was built by George Dent, in 1796.

In cooperation with his brother William, John Hoye engaged in patenting and selling lands in Western Maryland. Thomas, in his history refers to John Hoye as "the land king of Allegany County."

The late Alexander C. Mason, of Oakland, is our authority for the story that once George Rinehart, pioneer settler at Sunnyside, and his neighbors, were discussing whether or not the moon was inhabited, when Rinehart remarked that he did not believe it was, "because," he said, "if there is habitable land on the moon John Hoye would patent it."

The Hoyes patented from the State some hundred tracts of land in Allegany county, which then included Garrett. John Hoye left an estate of about 50,000 acres of land.

While the Hoyes were speculators, they were also settlers and did much to develop Allegany county. John Hoye had several farms cleared. He was actively interested in the building of the Chesapeaks and Ohio Canal and in locating the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. He fenced the glades for cattle. The site of Mountain Lake Park was part of "John Hoye's Cow Pasture."

John Hoye had only one child—George Calmes—who died in early manhood.

William W. Hoye married, second, Mary, daughter of John Rutan, of the Blooming Rose. He became the father of twenty-one children, fourteen of whom grew up and were married. He was a kind father and an obliging nighbor, but a very careless business man. He died in 1836 and Jnhn took over the care of his brother's large family.

John Hoye was executor of the will of his father, Paul Hoye, and in order tn consolidate the family estates he bnught the interests of his nephews and nieces in their grandfather's estate. But in his will of 1849, John Hnye left the greater part of his property to his four nephews, John, David, Daniel and Edward. These arrangements led to a bitter family quarrel between his nephews and nieces and ended in a law suit between them.

In 1850 Jeremiah L. Townshend (who had married Tabitha Hoye) and others, brought the noted case in Equity, No. 840, against George Smith of A, executor of John Hoye's estate. This case dragged through the Maryland courts until 1873, when it was finally decided in favor of the complainants, that is to say, the female side of the house, to the effect that the executor or administrator of an estate cannot legally buy of the heirs any part of the estate of which he is administrator or executor.

Seems simple, but it took the lawyers and judges twenty-three years to settle the question!

CAMPBELL AND CUNNINGHAM

Captain William Campbell and James Cunningham, both of Frederick County, Maryland, were two great land owners and for a time residents north of Deep Creek in what is now Garrett County.

Captain Campbell resided on the "Wild Cherry Tree Meadows" tract, later the Joel Bender farm on the east side of the McHenry-Bittinger road. The graveyard near the Bender home is said to be the Campbell graveyard. Another graveyard to the east was for the colored people.

Meshack Browning, writing about it about 1826, said:

"By this time we had several new neighbors—Captain Campbell, from Frederick County, with his family and son-in-law, James Cunningham. . . Captain Campbell agreed to build a saw mill if 1 would build a grist mill."

The Campbell saw mill, operated by water power, was the first in this part of the county. It was located at the falls of Cherry Tree Creek, near the present Rock Lodge, convenient to forests of magnificent virgin white pine. Lumber sawed there was used by the settlers for miles around.

Stoddert and Campbell

Benjamin Stoddert, second Secretary of the Navy under President Adams, was born in Charles County, Md., in 1751. He was the grandson of James Stoddert, a surveyor, who emigrated from Scotland to LaPlata, in Charles County, Md., about 1650. Benjamin was an officer in the Revolutionary Army and after the war became a member of the mercantile firm of Forest, Stoddert and Murdnck, of Georgetown. Stoddert and William Deakins, Jr., as confidential agents of President Washington, arranged for the purchase by the Federal Government of the lands in the District of Columbia needed for the National Capital. He became president of the Bank of Columbia and probably suffered heavy losses when it failed.

Benjamin Stoddert speculated in lands in Western Maryland and elsewhere, but during his later years lost money. In 1813 he died, heavily in debt. It is of interest to note that Stoddert and Dr. James McHenry, Secretary of War, and founder of our own village of McHenry, served together in President Adams' cabinet. Both were interested in lands in our county.

In 1802, Benjamin Stoddert, of the District of Columbia, deeded to William Campbell, of Frederick County, for the nominal sum of five shillings, half of "Cherry Tree Meadows," four other tracts and eighteen Military Lots—22,799 acres—all in the Deep Creek neighborhood. Stoddert was already in financial difficulties and had mortgagde the other half of this property in 1796 to William Marbury, of the District of Clumbia. In 1806 Stoddert and Marbury deeded the other half of this great estate in the Glades to Captain Campbell, who later resided on it, at least during the summer months.

Captain William Campbell appears to have died in 1829, since in that year a court decree ordered a trustee t) dispose of the estate of William Campbell, "late of Frederick County," and in 1832 Robert Oliver, of Baltimore, bought 6033 acres for the sum of $4,824.75—less than $1.00 per acre—for some of the best timbered and farm land in Garrett County.

JAMES CUNNINGHAM

The Cunningham homestead in the Glades was on the Glendale-Bittinger Road, about three miles south of Bittinger. Some of the foundation stones of the house remain there. Nearby is an old graveyard which is said to have been an Indian burying-ground. In recent years this place was bought by the Federal Government as a part of its Resettlement project in this county.

On August 21, 1827, the County Surveyor, Benjamin Brown, resurveyed for James Cunningham, "Cheviot Dale" (originally 2480 acres), including vacancies, making a tract of 17,090 acres, which extended from the Bittinger neighborhood, north of Deep Creek, to the Savnge River Valley. In partnership with Robert Oliver, of Baltimore, James Cunningham had also patented over 31,000 acres of land, which they divided between them in 1835. Cunningham resided for a period of years on his "Cheviot Dale" estate in what appears to have been called "Palo Alto House."

Cunningham's will, dated 27th of March, 1849, beginning: "I, James Cunningham, of Allega..y County, Maryland," left half of his estate to his brother, William Campbell Cunningham, and the other half to his sister, Rebecca Janet Washington. His friend, Bushrod W. Herbert, was executor as named in the will. He appears to have died in Jefferson County, Va., where the will was probated in 1853.

In 1849 the heirs of James Cunningham agreed to sell part of the Cunningham lands to Jacob Markell, of Frederick County, and in 1852, George Schley, as trustee, deeded to Markell 13,723 acres of "Cheviot Dale" and other lands for $12,554.62.

We wonder how much the Federal Government paid for this land after the timber was removed from it.

Mrs. Cunningham Was Fond of Wild Honey

The Cunninghams and their Negro servants left their Palo Alto House in the Deep Creek Glades ninety or more years ago and are almost forgotten by the present generation.

Probably the only account outside of dry official records that we have of the residence of this family here is given in Meshack Browning's book, "A Hunter's Life."

Some of Browning's favorite hunting grounds were in the Cunningham neighborhood, so he often stopped at Palo Alto House on his trips to the Little Crossings and Meadow Mountain. One of his stories tells of a bear hunt with Jeremiah Enlow, when "In order to be on the ground early next day we went (from Sang Run) that evening to the Cherry Tree Meadows and staid all night with Mr. Cunningham, who, though a sportsman, did not accompany us."

In the morning, after an exciting chase, they killed their bear near Meadow Mountain.

Returning from another hunt in that neighborhood, after killing a fine buck, Browning stopped at the house of "Mr. James Cunningham, who was a hunter, and whose lady was extremely fond of honey in the combs." Mr. Browning asked if there were any bee trees yet standing in the woods. Browning replied that he knew of one about two miles away. Providing themselves with a bucket, bed-cord and tomahawk, they hurried away to the "bee tree". Instead of felling it, as was usually done, Browning climbed a smaller tree alongside and when opposite the hole where the bees entered, he cut a large hole below into the hollow. But here the bees protested.

Says Browning: "Although it was cold and snowing, the bees poured out on me and stung my face, hands and bosom . . until I was forced to leave the hive, descend and make a fire, when up I went again, put some fire into the hole and blew the hot smoke among the bees until they were strangled. The poor little creatures had to yield and let their long hard-earned store be taken from them."

Putting the combs in the bucket, he let it down by the bed-cord and Mr. Cunningham filled the fresh buckskin Browning had with him, then selected a bucketful of choice combs for Mrs. Cunningham. From Browning's share of the combs he pressed eight gallons of pure honey. "This tree," he wrote, "was among the best I ever found in the woods."

LOOKING FORWARD

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

The title of this column is no accident. It was deliberately chosen as indicative of the best Republican thought. Republicans today distinctly are "looking forward", not in the narrow sense to the day—now not far distant—when their party will be restored nationally, but in the larger sense of looking forward to that day when the echievements which are the natural, logical fruits of the American system can he realized. Those fruits are an incrensed standard of living for all of us under ordered liberty.

This column will be conducted in the spirit of that title and that thought. It will undertake an objective analysis of what has happened in Washington during the last five years, hewing always to the facts. Its viewpoint will rest on a deep-seated belief in the practicality and workability of the American system of free enterprise and private initiative, held in bounds by necessary and reasonable regulation.

Its measuring stick will be—not the opportunism of a football game—but the measure in which the Roosevelt Administration has improved the future security as well as the present condition of the American people as a whole. It shall be more concerned about Mr. Roosevelt's failures than his faults.

It will not quarrel with all of the New Deal—but will diligently seek to expose those parts which either seek to pervert the traditional American system or have had the effect of destroying opportunities for greater employment of labor and a better standard of ljving. It will recognize that President Roosevelt frequently has asked the right question—but in many cases has gievn the wrong answer.

It will undertake to demonstrate that the standard of living in this Nation cannot be raised by working less, producing less and expanding the government payroll. In that direction lies only decreased national wealth, increased prices, higher taxes and fewer of the good and essential things of life.

It will seek to show that the underprivileged will not he helped merely by pulling down those higher up the ladder. It will be much too American to tolerate the fomenting nf a futile class struggle because hate feeds on hate and leads only to destruction for all.

It will regard with hostile eye exploitation by the powerful—but no less than it will oppose pillage by the mob. It will be ever mindful of Justice Brandies' words that "we gain nothing by exchanging the tyranny of capital for the tyranny of labor."

Its concern will be primarily for the average man, the really forgotten man of our country, who toils in field, factory and store, who consumes what he and his fellows produce, who pays the taxes, who fights our wars, who raises our children and who is the real backbone of this nation.

It will adhere religiously to the belief that "public office is a public trust". It will undertake to demonstrate that in the wake of recent revelations evidencing callousness to political jobbery, party spoils and panhandling with relief funds there is a need in this land for a revival of a vigorous public morality.

It will be oblivious to such labels as "right", "left", "liberal", "Tory", "progressive" or "reactionary"—mere words, used by demagogues to mislead people. What men do, rather than what they call themselves, will excite our interest.

Its tone will be critical and not destructive. When a building falls down the first task is to clear away the debris before new construction may begin. There will be no effort to "smear" anyone. Nor will its author be a common scold.

Above all, this column will shun opinions and abstract philosophical discussions in the belief they may better be left to the academic minds of the cloistered universities. A philosophy is set forth in this first column only to indicate what thoughts motivate the man who writes it.

Arguments will be left to those on the rostrum and the ether waves in the belief that it is only necessary to give the penple light in the form of undisputed facts and they will find their way. Facts, and more facts, intelligently marshalled, will be the keynote and objective of this column.

MT. LAKE PARK

Returning from work Monday evening we were surprised to see a crew of men at work on G street. They were cleaning and cutting brush on the lot opposite the amphitheatre. Our first thought was that they were WPA men. When we drew closer what was our surprise to see that Dr. E. L. Mowbray was in charge of a number of civic-minded residents who had decided to "clean up things." In this block are two lots, one belonging to the Association and another to a private individual. Anyhow, it was worth while to watch Dr. Mowbray, assisted by N. E. Wildman and his son Lewis and several others whom we did not know. Certainly it is a great improvement and thanks are due these public-minded residents.

Regardless of the weather people are coming to Mountain Lake Park. Perhaps its the advertising—we don't know. Houses are being rented and each day sees new summer residents coming in. This is good for the Park and it is also good for the whole of Garrett county. Mountain Lake Park can come back and we believe it will come back. It's a good place in which to live and all should help things along this line.

THREE HELD ON CHARGES OF MAKING BOGUS COINS

Garrett County Man Had Plaster Moulds For Indian Head Nickel

George Washington Davis, 31, and James Wallace Davis, 40, brothers, who gave Potomac street, Cumberland, as their address, were given a hearing Tuesday before United States Commissioner William A. Vandegrift charged with the possession of plaster-paris molds for counterfeiting. They were committed to jail in default of $1,000 bond each, for action of the Federal grand jury and trial in Baltimore. They said they were unemployed laborers.

Two plaster molds for the making of "Indian head" five-cent pieces were produced at the hearing.

Ray Helmick, 31, a companion, is also held in jail on the same amount of bond, charged with passing the counterfeit. Their arrest followed last week after they were found playing a pin-ball machine in Miller's restaurant in the South End, Cumberland.

Quizzed By "G-Man"

Special Agent James H. Hickerson, of the Treasury Department, questioned the men regarding the manufacture and passing of the bogus coins. Neither of the Davis brothers would admit much about the molds, denying that they had made any more than one or two nickels.

Helmick is accused of using or passing counterfeit coin in the machine.

Two sets of plaster molds were recovered. The molds are about an inch-and-a-half square and were evidently made by someone with mechanical ability and knowledge of coin counterfeiting.

James Wallace Davis formerly lived at Shallmar, in this county. More than three years ago his wife and her companion, Carl Trickett, were instantly killed near Hopemont when the motor of the automobile in which they were riding mysteriously exploded. Davis was taken into custody as a material witness following the double killing, but was released a few days later by the Garrett county authorities.

PLANS FOR ADDITIONS TO SCHOOLS ARE APPROVED

Formal "O.K." Given By State School Superintendent; Purchase Of Land Also Favored

MAY CLOSE THREE SCHOOLS

Formal approval of the architect's plans for additions to the Oakland elementary school building and the Kitzmiller high school building has been given by Dr. Albert S. Cook, state superintendent of schools, it was announced at a meeting of the County Board of Education last Friday afternoon.

Walter W. Dawson, and Walter W. Savage, members of the board, were in attendance, along with F. E. Rathbun, secretary and county superintendent.

The Board passed a resolution approving and recommending the raising of funds by the County Commissioners for purchasing a tract of land in East Oakland for the use of the Oakland high school for an athletic field. This matter was brought before the Commissioners by a delegation of citizens at their meeting last week. Their decision in the matter is expected next Monday.

The Board appointed Miss Beulah Burton as teacher of vocational home economics in Kitzmiller high school. Miss Palma Lucente, teacher there last year is being transferred to Oakland high school, to assist Miss Marie Hamstead in home economics instruction here. Miss Burton was highly recommended by Miss Edna McNaughton, chief of the teacher-training department of the University of Maryland, Mr. Rathbun stated. Miss Burton was graduated from there in June.

Letters recently received from bus contractors soliciting continuance of their contracts for the next several years, were submitted to the Board. As terms for their continuance were satisfactory and improved equipment offered, Mr. Rathbun was instructed to enter into contracts with those complying with the Board's standards.

Further consideration was given to the contemplated closing of three one-room schools due to the small number of pupils there would be in their communities during the coming school year. The three schools are Mason, McHenry and Mar's Hill.

Mr. Rathbun stated that the schools would be unable to make the required attendance of twelve pupils, thus making it advisable to transport the pupils to other schools as funds from the state could be secured.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Adella V. Jaspert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Jaspert, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to Mr. Thurl W. Tower, of Oakland, a son of Mrs. E. Z. Tower and the late Mr. Tower.

The wedding will occur the latter part of August at Pittsburgh. Miss Jaspert is a summer resident of the Deep Creek Lake community. Mr. Tower is a graduate of Oakland High school and the University of Maryland, receiving his degree in engineering. Following his graduation he studied architecture. Since his return to this vicinity he has been engaged in construction and designing of cottages and cabins along the lake.

Commissioners Confer With Hutton Road Delegation

The County Commissioners were in special session on Tuesday morning, having been requested to meet with a delegation of citizens from District No. 11 who are interested in the completion of the Hutton road, by way of the Youghiogheny River bridge, the road being known as the "Fingerboard Road."

A number of men working on the project who had been transferred last fall from the Pleasant Valley road project were ordered back to the former project, and through some misunderstanding of officials it was learned that all the men on the project were being moved to Pleasant Valley, beginning July 1.

According to Virgil T. Steyer, County Commissioner, about 60 men were employed on the Hutton road. Arrangements were made whereby there would be about 40 remaining on the Hutton road project, while the remainder would be returned to the Pleasant Valley project.

MARRIED

Martin-Harman—The marriage of Miss Frieda Harman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harman, Accident, to Mr. Bryson Martin, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Martin, of Frostburg, was solemnized Saturday afternoon, June 25, at 2 o'clock, in the St. John's Lutheran church, Cove. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. Fickenscher, pastor.

Attendants were Miss Esther Harman, sister of the bride, and Mr. Walter Margraff. The nuptial music was played by Miss Mary Dille, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The bride was attired in a gown of bridal satin made on simple lines with a square Dutch neck and long tight sleeves. She wore a long veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of blue embroidered net and carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium.

TEMPERANCE MEETING IS SCHEDULED AT MT. LAKE

Meeting Sponsored By Anti-Saloon League To Be Held July 10th

For a number of years the Maryland Anti-Saloon League has sponsored a temperance meeting at Mountain Lake Park, and the meeting will be held this year on Sunday, July 10.

These gatherings have always been interesting, and outstanding speakers have delivered addresses. This year the league is having Dr. E. L. Bunce, from Baltimore, to make the principal address in the afternoon of that day. He is considered one of the outstanding pulpit men of Baltimore. According to a member of the local anti-saloon league committee Dr. Bunce is a forceful and fearless speaker and has a magnetic personality that will interest his audience.

He is said to know the liquor problem thoroughly from his contact with men, women, and children. Conditions brought about by the liquor traffic are becoming intolerable, according to the local committee member, and he is of the opinion that a great national emergency is here.

The Anti-Saloon League is particularly anxious that the people of Western Maryland and the neighboring states of Virginia, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia hear Dr. Bunce.

George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, who is well known in this section of the state, will speak at the morning service in the Park.

TENNIS COMMITTEES ARE PLANNING FOR TOURNEY

Nineteenth Annual Event Scheduled August 8 To 13, Mt. Lake

Committees in charge of arrangements for the nineteenth annual tennis tournament for Western Maryland championships, to be held at Mountain Lake Park August 8 to 13, are already beginning to plan for the coming event, which is considered one of the highlights of the season.

The tournament annually attracts about one hundred entries, and many spectators, and is held under the auspices of the Woman's Civic Club of the Park. The affair is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Men' singles will begin on Monday, August 8, with women's singles, men's, women's and mixed doubles being held throughout the week. Finals events will be on Friday and Saturday, August 12 and 13.

Ralph E. Weber, of Oakland, again is chairman of the tennis committee. Mr. W. N. Skyles, Mountain Lake Park, is chairman of the finance committee. Mrs. Bushrod Grimes is in charge of social events and other members of her committee include Mrs. Charles J. Bolgiano, Mrs. W. Thompson Burch, Mrs. W. D. Grimes, Mrs. Elmer Murphy, Mrs. Elwood Offutt, Mrs. Arthur Taylor, Mrs. Stanley Taylor, Mrs. H. E. Stockslager, Mrs. James Holoway, Mrs. John Christhilf, Mrs. Raymond McCutcheon, Mrs. Walter Pollard, Mrs. Miles Poindexter II, Mrs. Fred. Chesley, Mrs. Haymond Rapp, Misses Isabelle H. Hardie, Kitty Carr and Joanna Grimes. A reception is scheduled for the first night of the tournament and a dance during the week.

The present Western Maryland challenge cup in men's singles has been in competition for nine years. Frank Broida, Pittsburgh, has two legs on the cup, winning in 1933 and 1934, but trophies become the permanent property of players only when won three times. Broida was defeated in 1935 and 1936, but did not compete last year. Last year's winner was Edward Jacobs, of Baltimore.

Miss Frances Grimes, of Morgantown, W. Va., won permanent possession of the women's singles challenge pitcher last year, having also won in 1934 and 1935. A new trophy will be in competition this year.

Mrs. Skyles announced that a number of inquiries were already being received and that invitations would be sent out within the next few days.

Lesson for July 3

A CHOICE OF LOYALTIES

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:2-6; 24:14-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Joshua 24:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Choosing Sides.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Loyal Leader.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Choice of Loyalties.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Man's Highest Allegiance.

"Lives of great men all remind us," according to the poet, that we too may make our lives sublime, and thus leave our footprints in the shifting sands of time. The study of biography is interesting, instructive, and often challenging. When we enter the field of Bible biography we bring into consideration an additional and fundamental factor, namely, the power and grace of God working in and through a surrendered life. All strength of character and ability is a gift of God, but its glory is largely veiled and its usefulness definitely limited, if not actually perverted, because there is no recognition of the foundation of true greatness, which is faith in and loyalty to God.

During the next three months we are to share in the study of the life stories of great men and women which will not only stimulate ambitions, but which also reveal what God can do through those who are ready to follow Him.

Moses, God's great leader for Israel, having brought them out of the land of bondage and through the terrible wilderness, is about to leave them. God's workman is about to die, but His work is to go on. God is not taken by surprise.

I. A Prepared Man Takes Command (1:3-6).

"Moses is dead; now therefore arise." Life is like that. "The king is dead; long live the king," is the cry of those who live under monarchies, as one ruler dies and his successor takes over the throne. Until that day when there shall be "time no longer," men must put away their sorrow and go on. Three words characterize the commission.

1. Promise (vv. 2-4). God gave the land to Israel. Every place that Joshua planted his foot upon was to be his possession, even as God has promised Moses. A river lay between; there were walled and armed cities to be taken; there were even giants in the land, but God promised it to Joshua; and he took it by faith.

God has given us many promises, too. If we are fearful, poverty-stricken, powerless Christians, it is because we do not believe God.

2. Power (v. 5). No man is able to stand against God's servant who is doing God's will, in God's way, in God's time. It was true of Joshua; it is true today. Men set up their opposition to God's plan and program with the assumed belief that because they have position, power, or money, they can readily crush the poor little band of Christian workers. Russia tried it. They even "abolished" God. But religion thrives in Russia, secretly perhaps, but none the less sincerely and successfully.

3. Courage (v. 6). To serve God means to be assured of His help. Faith lays hold of that fact and the whole man becomes courageous.

II. An Experienced Man Gives Counsel (24:14-21).

More than two decades have passed since the appointment of Joshua to lead Israel. God has fulfilled every promise. Israel is in the Promised Land. Before the aged leader dies he calls the leaders of his people together to urge them to continue in the way of faith and loyalty to God. This he does by:

1. Example (v. 15). "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." No man can honestly and effectively call others to devotion to the Lord unless he sets them an example.

2. Instruction (vv. 16-19). Remembering God's dealings with them, the people declare their determination to serve the Lord. They spoke rather glibly. Joshua instructs them. God is not interested in lip service. He does not need them so much as they need Him. He does not look upon their confession of Him, if they continue to live in sin.

3. Warning (v. 20). God will visit His judgment on His people if they forsake Him and turn away—such is Joshua's warning. We who look back to the history of Israel know that they did forsake Him, and that the judgment of God is still upon them. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7) is God's warning through Paul to the Christian.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

Roosevelt Radio Technique

Washington, June 25.

Some months ago in an article in The Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Alva Johnson stated what a good many people in Washington believed, that Mr. Roosevelt's radio addresses were written mainly by Mr. Thomas Corcoran, whom the President jovially calls "Tommy The Cork." One occasion when Mr. Corcoran more or less boasted of the fact was cited.

Whether this is so or not, certainly there runs through the entire series of twelve a common thread. They are linked and stamped by a procedure which the more advanced of the young radicals close to the President, such as Mr. Corcoran, have used consistently from the start. Invariably they dwell upon the high intelligence of the people to whom Mr. Roosevelt especially appeals and then proceed to deal with them as though they had no intelligence at all.

Pretending to appeal to the reason of his great audiences, the President's radio talks are aimed almost exclusively at their emotions. Depending upon the charm of his voice and the picture of himself in the popular mind as the shining champion of the toilers, apparently his utterances are made in the belief that the great bulk of the people are incapable of grasping the discrepancies and contradictions when addressed through the ear, and that those who do grasp them can be disposed of by denunciation. The success with which he has operated along these lines is not much of a tribute to the character of his support but it explains it. It is an interesting fact that some of the more candid of the inside New Dealers privately concede the truth of this radio theory and, privately, discuss it quite realistically.

Friday night's address was a particularly good specimen of this New Deal technique. For example, there was the avowal by Mr. Roosevelt of his purpose to enter Democratic primaries in various States in behalf of "liberal" candidates. In the same breath, he insisted that, as President of the United States, he would not participate in the primaries or make a partisan appeal. "Let that," he said, in his most dulcet tones, "be clearly understood." Of course, that insults the intelligence. If Mr. Roosevelt takes the part in the primaries he says he will, he takes it as President, and he will be potent in them only because he is President. Mr. Roosevelt and the President are one and the same person. He cannot, while he is President, enter into State politics as a private individual. If he were a private individual it wouldn't make any difference. It is the fact that he is President that makes his announcement important.

But, the assumption is that the people will not understand that; that they will accept as gospel the Roosevelt words and believe that he can, just by saying so, divest himself of the Presidential power and the White House glamour and enter the primaries merely as Mr. Roosevelt, the leader of the Democratic party. Nor are the people supposed to note the complete omission of any mention of the evidence that the WPA relief organizations and relief funds are being used in support of Roosevelt candidates in different States; that the immense weight of the Federal machine has been, is and will be exerted for Administration candidates and against those who have shown independence. And they are not supposed to understand that Mr. Roosevelt's personal announcement of his political purposes releases the Federal officials handling the people's money from all restraint. If the President can divest himself of his high office and enter the primaries as an individual, why can't they? In brief, he has let the bars down for an unprecedented effort by the Federal machine, equipped with relief money, to dominate State politics. But the people are supposed not to realize that. Perhaps they don't.

There were in his latest address other declarations, the inconsistencies of which almost any degree of intelligence would detect. There was, for example, the pride with which he spoke of carrying out the promises of his 1936 platform, coupled with conspicuous neglect to mention the completeness with which he had violated those in the 1932 platform. There was, too, the unctuous and holy way in which he urged his liberal friends to be tolerant; to refrain from name-calling and put their trust in argument, just after he had finished calling his opponents copperheads and reactionaries and attributing criticism of his wage-and-hour law to "calamity-howling executives with incomes of $1,000 a day, who have been turning their employes over to the Government relief rolls"—a pure and obvious piece of demagoguery and class appeal.

These and other statements which will not stand up under any test of logic or consistency are to be found in the address—are, in fact, to be found in all of them. However, the top of Friday's talk was the extraordinary assertion that, though while as Mr. Roosevelt he intended to participate in the State primaries where it seemed desirable, as President he would remain wholly aloof. That was the prize piece of effrontery. If the people swallow that there is really no limit to their credulity and the New Deal Corcorans and Cohens have adopted the effective way of dealing with them—at least over the radio.

Editorial

From The Baltimore Sun (Democratic), Monday, June 26

Mr. David J. Lewis loves his statistics. In his speech at Cumberland he had great sport.

He set up a figure which he said represented the increase in the national debt under Mr. Roosevelt. He set up a figure which he said represented those who have incomes. He divided the former figure by the latter in order to ascertain individual responsibility for the increased debt. By the time he had finished dividing, Mr. Lewis had discovered that if 50,000,000 persons paid $1.58 a month for twenty-five years, they would pay off the increase in debt plus three per cent interest.

He asked how many workmen out of jobs would be glad to undertake these payments if guaranteed steady work.

We shall undertake to answer Mr. Lewis' question. There is no doubt about the answer. Every last unfortunate workman would be glad to pay $1.58 a month if guaranteed a job.

But now we should like to ask Mr. Lewis a question. Who is going to guarantee these unemployed workmen steady jobs? Does Mr. Lewis rely upon President Roosevelt to give the guarantee? In that case, we should like to ask Mr. Lewis who is to guarantee the President's guarantee? He has been in office five years. He has possessed a popular following and a political power such as no other President of modern times has enjoyed. He has been able to work his will in reshaping the economic organism of this nation as no other President ever has been permitted to dream of doing. And he never has been able to remove the great pool of unemployment. Today the total of unemployment is stupendous.

Who gives your guarantee of steady work, Mr. Lewis? Are you asking the people of this country to accept Mr. Roosevelt's guarantee? If you are, you will need to use your talents in statistics to argue away the vast army of men and women who today plod our streets in vain quest of jobs.

At Cumberland, Mr. Lewis also sought to make comparison of losses under the Rooseveltian New Deal and losses under the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover Old Deal. He recognized no alternative to the New Deal other than the Old Deal. He left his hearers to believe that it was Roosevelt and chronically unbalanced budgets and stupendous debts and vast armies of jobless men and women, or else a reversion to the policies of those who were in power when the crash of 1929 came upon us.

Mr. Lewis knows this is not the fact. If there were no choice other than Roosevelt's New Deal or Hoover's Old Deal, the clear record of the Secretary of State in the Roosevelt Administration, Cordell Hull, would not be in existence. Mr. Lewis knows that Mr. Hull was one of the principal authors of the Democratic platform of 1932. Mr. Lewis knows that the 1932 platform was not an acceptance of the Hoover Old Deal. It was the pronouncement of the Democratic liberalism. It was the antithesis of the Old Deal. It was a proposed body of remedies for the Old Deal. And, as Mr. Lewis well knows, neither was that 1932 platform the New Deal. Mr. Roosevelt scrapped the 1932 platform when he instituted the New Deal.

Mr. Lewis knows that Secretary Hull attempted to carry out the 1932 platform. Mr. Lewis knows that, parallel with emergency measures to which all agreed in March and April, of 1933, Mr. Hull undertook a broad program in which he emphasized trade and money adjustments in the international field as a means of reversing the cutthroat nationalism that was destroying business and destroying peace throughout the world. Mr. Lewis knows that Mr. Roosevelt first supported Mr. Hull and brought the leading statesmen of Europe to Washington. Mr. Lewis knows that, with Mr. Roosevelt's support, Mr. Hull went to the London Monetary and Economic Conference. And Mr. Lewis knows that Mr. Roosevelt then suddenly deserted Mr. Hull while the latter was on the high seas.

In short, Mr. Lewis knows perfectly well that there was an historic, liberal Democratic alternative to the Hoover Old Deal which Mr. Roosevelt promised to follow and which he abandoned. No man has the right to look at the army of unemployed today, millions strong, and say it was either the Roosevelt New Deal or the Hoover Old Deal. Moreover, Mr. Lewis knows—none better—that when the Loudon Economic Conference was torpedoed by Mr. Roosevelt, the last hope of international cooperation was killed, the last barrier to the armament race was destroyed, and a terror was let loose in Europe which has spread to the entire world, as Mr. Roosevelt's own immense armament program attests.

Another thing at Cumberland.

Mr. Lewis had much to say about Republican support of Senator Tydings. He knows that he was repeatedly elected to Congress in a Republican district. He sought every Republican vote he could gather and he did not ask the precose reasons for any vote. Mr. Lewis also talked at Cumberland of Tories. He knows that for years he had the support of many men who oppose the New Deal. He had their support during the New Deal. They placed respect for his character and good faith above differences on specific issues. He did not then call them Tories.

It ill becomes Mr. Lewis to attempt to place a blanket stigma on these men when now they support another Marylander who has had the courage to vote his convictions against the will of the most popular of Presidents, and who, therefore, is the object of a vendetta supported by untold resources in jobs, public funds and power to coerce.

He'd Have Something to Worry About Then!

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh added to his already complete office equipment a large and expensive vaporizer for treatment of throat troubles.

M. S. Wolf, of near Sunnyside, called at the Republican office. Mr. Wolfe was a descendant of General Wolfe, who was killed at the battle of Quebec during the War of the Revolution and had in his possession the sword worn by his distinguished ancestor at that time.

Work upon the Allegany-Garrett boundary was to start July 11. W. McCulloh Brown was representing Garrett county. C. A. Ashby was to assist. The direction of the line was to be obtained by triangulation.

William Fike, son of Christian Fike, Sand Spring, was killed when run over by a train on the railroad between Hoyes Run and Krug. He was employed as brakeman.

DIED

MRS. KITTIE B. ROSAMOND

Mrs. Kittie B. Smith Rosamond died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Burt King, 3517 Bryn Mawr, Dallas, Texas, on June 21, 1938. Mrs. Rosamond was formerly Miss Kittie B. Smith, an adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Hewitt, of Loch Lynn Heights, Md. She was united in marriage a number of years ago to the late Benoni ("Bud") Arnold, of Gortner, Md. Residing there a few years, the couple went to Denver, Colorado, for the benefit of Mr. Arnold's health, who died shortly after their arrival in that city. Mrs. Arnold and her two children, Raymond and Goldie, returned to Garrett county where they made their home for a short time and then went to Texas where several years later Mrs. Arnold was united in marriage to W. J. Hendrickson. To this union one daughter, Mary Margaret, was born. Several years later her only son, Raymond Arnold, died in Texas. Later she married W. J. Rosamond and was then known as Mrs. Kittie B. Rosamond. She is survived by her two daughters, Mrs. Goldie Arnold King, of Dallas; Mrs. Mary Margaret Hendrickson Adams, of New Mexico, and a foster brother, Lester C. Yutzy, of Crellin. Mrs. Rosamond's only brother, John Smith, died several years ago in Texas.

DAVID SHANK

David Shank, 68, of near Oakland, died last Friday night in Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient since June 18.

BITTINGER

A large number of persons, in all sorts of automobiles, came from far and near to visit the Pleasant Valley Recreation Park, located on the old Cunningham farm, near this village, on last Sunday. Many expressed their admiration of the grounds but all were agreed that the roads over which it was necessary for them to travel in getting there, were not so admirable.

A program, marking the close of Rev. A. C. Curran's Daily Vacation Bible school, was rendered in the Lutheran church last Sunday evening and all enjoyed the occasion.

Rev. Howard Whitaker, of Wiley's Ford, W. Va., will begin a series of meetings in the Bethesda German Baptist chapel, near Bittinger, on Sunday evening, July 3, at 7:30 o'clock. Meetings will be held each evening for two weeks. All are cordially invited to attend.

Chester Browning, of the Roads Commission, was in this community last Monday.

Miss Cora Hockman, of Grantsville, was a business caller here one afternoon last week.

Cecil and Homer Brenneman, of Washington, D. C., visited their home folks here last Sunday.

Harvey J. Speicher, Republican candidate for the Senate nomination, visited friends in this community one morning last week.

PLEA IS MADE FOR SAFE AND SANER JULY FOURTH

Nearly 300 Persons In Maryland Injured Last Year by Fireworks

In connection with last year's celebration of the Fourth of July, nearly 300 persons in Maryland were injured by accidents due to fireworks. In the total were 217 children under the age of fifteen. One child—eight years old—died from burns sustained when her dress caught fire in lighting a sparkler.

Because similar, or even more serious, accidents are likely to happen this year unless great care is taken to prevent them, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, very strongly urges that safer and saner ways of celebrating the national holiday be followed this season, than through the irresponsible use of fireworks or other explosives.

The State and Baltimore City Departments of Health and other agencies cooperating with the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness in assembling information concerning injuries reported over the Fourth last year. "The reports show," Dr. Riley said, "that 295 persons suffered injuries sufficiently serious to require medical attention. There were probably many more whose injuries were not reported. Of the 295 of whom we have definite record, 283 were white; 12 colored. 207 of the accidents occurred in Baltimore City; 88 in the counties.

"Firecrackers were responsible for injuries to 247 persons; torpedoes, to 10; roman candles, to 8; sky rockets, to 7; sparklers, to 3; miscellaneous, to 20.

"Of the 217 children injured, one was under a year old; 10 from one to 5; 80 from 6 to 10; and 126 from 11 to 15. The 78 in the older groups ranged from 16 to 60 years old. Of the total 37 suffered injuries to the face; 8 to the neck, 20, the eyes; 181 hands or arms; 25 feet or legs, and 23 to other parts of the body.

"Here are the ways some of the accidents occurred:

"Skyrocket exploded in hand. First and second degree burns.

"Struck over left eyebrow by tin can thrown by firecracker. Laceration two inches long.

"Three inch firecracker placed under tin can by thirteen year old child. Throat cut by flying tin. Twenty-seven stitches required.

"Firecracker exploded in hand of ten-year-old child. Laceration of cornea of left eye with hemorrhage into anterior chamber.

"Young woman. Torpedo exploded and part went into left eye. Eye was burned and hemorrhage into viterous cavity.

"This gives only a partial picture of what happened. It gives no idea of the suffering involved, or the anxiety of those threatened with loss of sight, loss of life or permanent damage to some part of the body. Neither does it give any idea of the danger of tetanus, lockjaw, to give it the more familiar name, tha tis always present in injuries from fireworks or other explosives.

"There are many less dangerous ways of expressing patriotism than by fireworks. If your celebration of the Fourth is incomplete without them, limit your indulgence in fireworks to adequately safeguarded community displays, under properly qualified direction."

THE LAKES OF KILLARNEY, IRELAND

By A Visitor From The Glades of Maryland

Water is water everywhere, but the Killarney Lakes of County Kerry, a chain of three, have a unique setting: mountains rising rapidly from their Southern shores shue off the valley from the Atlantic; hugged islands stand out of the dark waters; high, ricky promontories or points project from the shores, covered to the water's edge by thick vegetation—giant beeches, oaks, firse, and the Irish rhododendron, which grows even taller than ours of Maryland, and is now full of very dark pink blossoms.

Ferns and blooming wild flowers now line the paths and roads, including the white thorn bushes so numerous here, which, perhaps, we of Maryland do not really appreciate; also the black thorn of which the noted Irish canes and fighting clubs are made.

The ruins of Muckross Abbey, Ross Castle and other ancient stone structures look over the water from their meadows, but unlike our own Deep Creek, few houses or cottages are on the Killarney shores. The little city of Killarney, with its numerous hotels and boarding houses, is a mile from the nearest lake.

The Lakes of Killarney are included in the old Muckross estate of some ten thousand acres, valued at about $400,000. Ancient seat of the McCarthys, Muckross finally came into the possession of an Irish-American. Finding its possession unprofitable, he gave the whole property to the Irish Government, by whom it is now operated in the interest of the public. No building lots on the lake shores are sold and motor cars are not allowed on the estate roads. Travel about the lakes is hy the Irish jaunting car, by bicycle and a-foot. The four passengers on a jaunting car sit two on each side, backs to backs, facing outward. Our driver said the vehicle was thus built by the Irish "so they could not well fight on the way."

The Lakes of Killarney are world-famous. Our lakes of the Garrett Glades cannot hope to rival them in fame, but Deep Creek Lake has a beauty of its own. And geologists tell us that long, long ago our mountain plateau was dotted with lakes which were drained as the Youghiogheny and its branches cut out their valleys and made their present channels. Then the ancient lake bottoms produced the buffalo grass of "The Glades," or the thick pine forests, such as the Pine Swamp on the Maryland-West Virginia line.

But our ancient lakes are coming back: Deep Creek, now the Herrington Manor lake under construction. Skill, labor and a little care will make the Glade County Lakes the Killarney of Maryland.

CHARLES E. HOYE.
Killarney, Ireland, May 22, 1938.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

A woman applying for citizenship papers in Ohio was asked "How is the Constitution changed in a republican form of government?"

"By the Democrats," she said, and was given 100 on that question.

If she had said "New Dealers" she would have probably been given a better than perfect score.

Coming home from college it was one young Oaklander's idea that the family should begin having the evening meal served formally, instead of just good old family style.

The rest of the family entered into the plan just to try to get him back to normal living, and when the maid stopped at his place with a vegetable dish, he was the first to make a mistake. He took the dish out of her hand and helped himself—in the good old fashioned way. He took his defeat good naturedly, however.

A young East Indian from Bombay lets modesty fly out of the window in applying for a job here recently. He listed his qualifications as follows:

"I will humbly mention that I am a matriculate young man of genius. I possess a robust figure like Mussolini. Besides this I am also uncouth and grim-looking gentleman like Hitler."

I'll have to be extremely careful about appearing outside my brick walled estate in my "tennis shorts." The other day I just had to get a loaf of bread or go hungry and tried to slip into the bakery unnoticed. Finally recognizing me, one person remarked, "I thought you must be from the city."

Monday was our anniversary and I decided to tell the boys. "We've been married seven years today," I told George, age four. "I know it," said George. "I remember."

A Brief History of the Cuniagham Faanily, Pioneers of Garrett County, as Written by a Desceadant.

To the Editor of The Republican.

In connection with the article written by Mr. Charles Hoye relative to the Campbells and Cuninghams, who formerly owned several thousands of acres of land in Garrett County, I wish to advise and hope you will publish the fact that my grandfather, William Campbell Cuningham, lived out his days on Cheviot Dale Farm and his remains lie in the cemetery at Bittinger, Maryland. Although his fortunes were entirely depleted at his death, my grandmother had a lifetime interest in the old home. However, she sold her rights to the Jennings Lumber Company. Many times in my childhood I have visited Cheviot Dale Farm when they were "stirring off" maple sugar.

My mother and her two sisters, Mollie and Sallie Cuningham, grew up in Palo Alto House. This house was destroyed by fire, together with many choice pieces of antique furniture, before I can remember and was replaced by a more ordinary frame house. I was the last of the Cuningham descendants to dispose of my property in Garrett County.

Other descendants of the Campbells and Cuninghams, who are known to at least some of the people in Garrett County, are the family of George L. and Sallie Cuningham Ralston, who formerly resided at Bittinger, Maryland, and several of them were born at Cheviot Dale Farm.

Concerning the burying ground on the Cheviot Dale Farm, seven or eight of the Cuninghams' slaves are buried there quite near to where the old sugar house stood. I think this is what is referred to, erroneously, as an Indian burying ground.

I wish, also, to state that my great-grandfather, James Cuningham, who married Catherine Campbell, of near Frederick, had no brother in this country. To this union were born William Campbell Cuningham, my grandfather; Charles Edward Cuningham, George Cuningham, James Cuningham and Rebecca Janet Cuningham, who became the wife of Thomas Washington. It is thought the James Cuningham, who died in Jefferson county, Va., in 1849, was James Cuningham, Jr. My statment concerning this is concurred in by my cousin, Thomas Campbell Washington, of Chevy Chase, D. C.

MT. LAKE PARK

Camp meeting is in full swing and seems to be drawing large crowds from here and other points. According to C. M. Hood, president of the camp meeting association, "it's better than ever." And certainly from all direct reports this is true. The program has some very splendid speakers on it. Somehow one cannot imagine Mountain Lake Park without a camp meeting.

We have been again interrogated regarding the whereabouts (if any) of the drinking fountain presented some years ago to the community by the Women's Civic Club of the Park.

This fountain stood for a number of years on the grounds of the tabernacle. Apparently it has mysteriously disappeared. Last year when this question was raised in this column we were told it was undergoing repairs. It would seem now, that camp meeting is in progress, and soon the Music Festival will be held, that the ladies responsible for the presentation of the fountain would like to see it put into service. And it really is needed. What about it?

The West Virginia State Road Map issued monthly, should be of particular interest to Garrett county people. For the first time this map shows the road from Route 219 to Markleysburg via Friendsville. The map is unusually fine and Maryland is clearly marked on it.

It's rather interesting to know just how that Friendsville road happened to be on the West Virginia Map. Last summer Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Smith were summer visitors. Mr. Smith at that time was chief engineer of the West Virginia Road Commission. On one of his week-end visits here with Mrs. Smith his attention was called to this road being an integral part of the West Virginia system. Mr. Smith was interested enough to make an investigation.

We are glad that Mr. and Mrs. Smith will again be in Mountain Lake Park for the summer.

The Mountain Lake Hotel will hold its second dance of the season on Saturday night. Henry Grusendorf's orchestra will play. A number of out-of-town people will arrive on Saturday to attend.

One of the most noticeable improvements to be seen in Mountain Lake is that on the State road from the Bowling Alley to the Rest. The Roads Commission has removed the fences and the road is now open and on a level with the glade.

Miss Sara B. Huff was at her home in the Park for a short time upon her return from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. where she presented West Virginia music to members of the National Editorial Association in session there. En route to White Sulphur Miss Huff presented a patriotic program of music at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., promoted by the D. A. R. of that town. It was largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rudisill had as guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Coston and Carl Adams, of Clarksburg, West Va. Other guests in the Rudisill home were Miss Eileen Sisson and Miss Delmar Sisson, of Baltimore, who were house guests of Miss Adelaide Rudisill.

Other guests registered are Mrs. Annie L. odwin, of Washington, D. C., who will remain during the summer; Mr. and Mrs. William E. Booth and children and Mr. and Mrs. Hartley, all of Sewickley, Pa.

Jared W. Young, of New York, is a guest at the Colonial for the summer.

Also registered at the Colonial are Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hood, Moundsville; Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Berry, of Shady Side, O.; Mrs. Missouri Day and Mrs. Della Conners, Belaire, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Lovejoy, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Willard Hayden is spending this week in Kingwood with David Morgan.

Miss Frances Grimes has returned from Uniontown, Pa., where she attended the wedding of Miss Doris Phillips to Russell Spencer Bishop, Jr. Mrs. Bishop was a popular member of the younger set and is known to many of the Park colony.

The Mountain Lake Public Library will be moved from Haydenhurst on Friday to the Bowling Alley. It will be open on Wednesdays and Saturdays, 3 to 5 o'clock.

J. S. Davis and family, of Mount Airy, have rented the Hardy cottage for the season.

Mrs. J. Burt Martin and daughter, Miss Jane Martin, of Orlando, Florida, are guests of Mrs. Martin's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr.

Homemakers' Column

Hints for the Busy Homemaker

Crumb a good size slice of bread (day old or older) into the bottom crust for loganberry or other berry pie, in place of other thickening.

Use a wet cloth or dampened absorbent cotton to pick up broken glass. Even the tiniest bits will adhere to it. For safety, discard cloth and all.

It's a good idea to baste up the buttonholes of a sweater before washing. It prevents stretching them.

If you want something especially good for hors d'oeuvres sometime, try this: Stick large pecan halves together with anchovy paste.

When grinding raisins for a cake, try rinsing them first in boiling water and then in cold. This will keep them from sticking in your chopper.

To remove paint from glass—use hot vinegar.

Lime deposits in your teakettle slow up heating. They can be removed by heating vinegar in the teakettle to losen the lime, and then ruhbing with steel wool. Better yet—prevent such deposits by cleaning your teakettle as often as you clean any other utensil.

RIFT MADE MT. LAKE PARK POSSIBLE

Once Was Famous Chautauqua Center

(EDITOR'S NOTE) The material which goes to make up the body of this article was obtained in an interview with Dr. Logan Carr, of Baltimore and Mountain Lake, who is the only person living in the Park that can remember when the buildings were first erected and the first meetings held. All names and dates were gathered from memory.

Thousands of people flocked to Moundsville, West Virginia, in the early eighteen-eighties to attend the camp meetings. They came in buggies, in saddles, on foot, and on railroad excursions. Sundays the meeting grounds became a vast mass of moving people, happy people having a gay time. But among these people were those who demanded a "closed gate" Sunday in order that their Sabbath be regarded more as a day of quiet worship than a day of carefree frivolity. Their minority demand for restrictions, however, was overruled.

So in 1881 a delegation headed by Mr. J. M. Davis, Dr. T. R. Logan, Dr. Masden, Rev. Hughs, Rev. Ryan and Major Alderson authorized the buying of six hundred acres of land near Oakland and set a landscape gardner about the task of transforming the wilderness into a beautiful park. The delegation of "closed gate" sympathizers then formed the "Mountain Lake Park Association," declared all rights, and laid their platform of restrictions that made their religious ideals have a purpose.

Lots were sold only under the conditions that cottages would be erected within the twelve months after the purchase. People favoring the idea responded so quickly that in 1882 the Association felt justified in building the Mountain Lake Hotel and the Auditorium. Most of the subscribers were from West Virginia, and in turn, most of the West Virginians were from Wheeling. Baltimore people were soon following.

Among the first to erect cottages were: Mr. Thomas Goard, Mr. J. E. Young, Mrs. L. E. Carr, Mr. Freisinger, Mr. Stone, Mr. G. W. Atkinson, Dr. Borden, Dr. Goucher, Dr. VanMeter, Mr. Dennett, Mr. Stephen Merritt, Mr. Bardell, Miss Jenny Smith, Mrs. Armstrong, Dr. John McClain, Mr. Larney P. Carr, and Dr. C. W. Baldwin.

The Association imposed restrictions that made Mt. Lake Park one of the East's greatest religious retreats. After an agreement, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad would not even stop its trains at Mountain Lake on Sunday, this done, of course, to prevent the influx of excursionists. But what are here called "restrictions" were in those days and among the first cottagers merely "safe-guards" of their religious ideals and did not suggest any binding qualities whatsoever.

In 1885 the Sunday School Assembly held its first meeting and in the following year, after the building of the amphitheatre, the mountain park began its climb to one of the greatest Chautauqua centers.

Chautauqua, to the young men and women of this day is almost invariably defined as "something religious." Yet to the members of an earlier generation it held a full meaning of genuine happiness, for it was their summer work and their summer entertainment.

Chautauqua, instead of being "something religious," might be better defined in a simple way as "summer college." A typical day opened with religious services which were followed by courses in languages, sciences and the fine arts throughout the day. In the evening, speakers such as President Taft and William Jennings Bryan were alternated by plays and concerts.

The course would last for weeks and when it was completed vast numbers of "graduates" would form at the Hall of Philosophy and march through the arch to the Amphitheatre where they would receive their "seals" and were offered for promotion.

Mountain Lake Park by this time, however, had become widely known as a summer resort and people had gradually drifted into it that were not active in the Association. More and more, in keeping with the trend of the times, the importance of the Association's religious ideals faded into things deserving no large amount of consideration. The Chautauqua declined and failed. The Camp Meetings alone survive and are successfully conducted and well attended.

So today, Mountain Lake Park has become primarily a summer resort. The Association is no longer in control, the restrictions are dead, save for their resurrection by the memories of a vivid past.

The newly organized choir festival and the Russian meetings and conferences are bringing the dawn of a new era.

The Amateur Photographer

By Jerry Doren

Garrett county offers unusual opportunies for the amateur photographer, for at every curve of the road and every rise of the highway possibilities of rare opportunity present themselves. It isn't necessary to be an expert to make good pictures nor is it necessary to own an expensive camera, for modern science has improved both camera and film to such an extent that photography today is almost fool-proof.

A few simple rules for the beginner to follow and a dollar brownie will make pictures with the "professional touch" possible. A few don'ts and a little practice will yield pictures that will be treasured forever.

Here are a few "don'ts" for the beginner with a box camera:

1. Don't take pictures before 9 A. M. or after 4 P. M.
2. Don't tip or jar the camera while making an exposure.
3. Don't make an exposure before first making sure that the lense is clean.
4. Don't take pictures of subjects less than six feet from the camera.
5. Don't forget to turn the film to the next number IMMEDIATELY after the exposure has been made.
6. Don't take pictures of moving objects unless they are moving directly toward or away from the camera.

Practice these six fundamental rules until next week when further instruction will be given.

NUTS AND BREEZE

Under the spreading chestnut tree
A stubborn auto stands,
The smith an angry man is he
With trouble on his hands.

The carburetor seems to be
The cause of all his woe,
He tightens half a dozen bolts,
And still it doesn't go.

He sits beside the road to give
His brain a chance to cool;
He ponders on his training course
In correspondence school.

Then he starts his job once more,
And just by chance 'tis seen
The cause of all his trouble is He't out of gasoline.

The beach, which is situated two miles off Route 219 on the road to the breast of the dam, will have attractive features which will soon make it one of the most popular pleasure spots on the Lake.

The large club house will, when completed, have accommodations for eighteen over-night guests and showers on the first floor, while the large second floor will be devoted to indoor sports and dancing. Mr. Henry McComas said that the plans for completion included twenty-seven additional cabins—one cabin to the acre of land.

The wooded spot at which the beach is situated, has long been described as one of the Lake's most beautiful. It has numerous covered picnic tables and accommodations for campers.

A large swimmers' float will be built in the near future.

RHODODENDRON EXPECTED TO BE IN BLOOM JULY 1

Extensive Growth Noted In Many Places In The County

The rhododendron growth in this entire area is expected to be in bloom about July 1, and will be viewed in all its beauty for the week or ten days following by hundreds who motor over the country roads and through the forest lands.

The deep recesses of the forest, an acid soil, cold mountain streams and rock ledges are favored by this plant.

There is an extensive growth along Poplar Lick, Big Run and the Savage River, also at Swallow Falls, Lost Land Run and in the Potomac State Forest. Some of these displays of this wild flower rival any to be found in the American forests.

Motorists who care to visit Garrett county and view the blooming plant can take almost any route, as most of the points where the flower can be seen are accessible by good roads thru the State Forests. Picnic shelters and other facilities are at scattered points. In the Savage River forest there is a large rustic pavilion and forest employes will direct autoists to the various points.

Visitors to the forests are being warned not to pluck the growth or any other wild flowering plants, in violation of the State forestry laws.

All during June, mountain laurel has been in bloom, both pink and white. As the laurel fades the rhododendron takes its place.

TRUCK TRANSFERS PAINT IN EARLY MORNING CRASH

Driver Concerned Over Parent's Reaction

Shoppers were disturbed from their peaceful buying Monday morning by a loud erash coming from Second street's most popular alley, at The Republican building. Causing the erash was Treacy's Cash Truck, being driven to destruction into the parked automobile of Mrs. June Grimes, Mt. Lake Park Hotel, by suddenly-pale Jack Treacy.

In an interview after the accident, Mr. Treacy said: "I said to myself: quote, Jack, you shouldn't ought to have done that, end quote," and added: "Don't tell pop about it."

This is the same Mr. Treacy who rated the Associated Press wires for having driven the burning Cash Truck to the Oakland Fire House before turning in an alarm.

Mr. James P. Treacy, father of Jack, will say when he reads this article: Quote: Jack, you shouldn't ought to have done that. End quote.

The damage: black paint on Mrs. Grimes' maroon car.

ALLEGHENY GUIDE

SOME OF THE EARLY LAND SPECULATORS IN GARRETT

JONATHAN BOUCHER, TORY PARSON

Jonathan Boucher was born in County Cumberland, England, in 1738. His father, James Boucher, failed in business. In his autobiography, Jonathan wrote of poor teachers and of his hard life on a farm. He says he was naturally lazy and hated the farm work, so he determined to secure an education and escape from the farm.

In those days in England young men of ambition often attached themselves to rich patrons who helped them on in life, so Boucher brought himself to the attention of persons of rank and property. He attended school and finally secured employment as tutor to the sons of Captain Dixon, of Virginia.

Their friends advised him to become a clergyman. He returned to England and was soon ordained as minister of the Established Church. Returning to Virginia, he was given a parish. He also kept school and boarded some of the boys at his home, including Jackey Curtis, step-son of George Washington.

In 1770, Rev. Boucher was appointed curate of St. Anne's in Annapolis and two years later became rector of Queen Anne's Parish in Prince George county where he married Miss Addison, who had a modest fortune of 2500 pounds sterling.

In 1771 Boucher moved to "The Lodge", on the Potomac, which he improved. He wrote:

"Besides these vast undertakings on my own home plantation, I had now also embarked in various land adventures and others for the augmentation of my fortune."

Among his "land adventures" were the survey, in 1774, on warrants from Lord Baltimore, of "The Blooming Rose," 1100 acres, west of Friendsville; "Mt. Airy", 395 acres, south of Grantsville, and "Good Hope", 389 acres, near Swallow Falls.

But soon the Revolution was on and loyal subjects of King George were not in favor in Maryland. Rev. Boucher was a bold and headstrong Tory. Of these times he wrote:

"And for more than six months I preached, when I did preach, with a pair of loaded pistols lying on the cushion of the pulpit."

Finding it advisable to leave America, Boucher assigned his land warrants in Western Maryland to friends, gathered together what cash he could and on September 10, 1775, with his wife, sailed for England, never to return.

Under the direction of Gabiel Duvall, Commissioner of the State, in 1782, the remaining property of Jonathan Boucher, amounting in value to some 6393:10s., sterling, was confiscated and sold. But England was kind to her loyal son. He was given the curacy of Paddington and compensation for his losses in Maryland. Of him it was said:

"His loyalty to his king remained unshaken, even when the madness of the people raged furiously against him; and, for conscience sake, he resigned ease and influence in America to endure hardships and poverty in his native land; but the Lord gave him twice as much as he had before and blessed his latter end more than his beginning."

And he, who might have become Lord or Bishop of "The Blooming Rose," overlooking the silvery Youghiogheny, died at Epsom, England, in 1804.

SAMUEL CHASE, A SIGNER

Samuel Chase was born in Somerset county, Maryland, April 17, 1741. His father was Rev. Thomas Chase, an English immigrant. Samuel studied law in Annapolis and was admitted to the bar and made his home in the Capital City.

William Paca was also a member of the bar in Annapolis prior to the Revolutionary War and an intimate friend of Chase's.

Samuel Chase, when only twenty-five years of age, was a leader of the "mob" (The Sons of Liberty) which destroyed the Government stamps at Annapolis. He was active in the events of Maryland leading up to the Revolution, an ardent patriot and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was a member of the Continental Congress and as one of the Maryland Committee of Safety, was noted for his prosecution, or persecution, of Tories, such as Rev. Jonathan Boucher, and of the Quakers, who refused to fight.

After the Revolution, Chase moved to Baltimore and died there in 1799. His wife was Ann Baldwin, of Annapolis.

In 1774, Samuel Chase had four tracts of land surveyed, all southwest of Oakland, viz.: "Piney Bottom", "Royal Charlotte", "Chance" and "Ashby's Cove", total area being 3500 acres. "Piney Bottom" became the home of the pioneer William Ashby.

EDWARD LLOYD, REVOLUTIONIST

Edward Lloyd III was a descendant of the Edward Lloyd who emigrated from the River Wye in Wales and settled on the site of Annapolis, Md. Later Edward I secured extensive land grants in Talbot county, Maryland, where, at Wye House, our Edward Lloyd was born and resided.

Edward III married Elizabeth Tayloe in 1767, and their son, Edward Lloyd IV, served as Governor of Maryland, 1809-1811.

Lloyd, Paca and Chase were members of the Continental Congress from Maryland.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM PACA, SIGNER

William Paca, of a wealthy Maryland family, was born at Wye House in Harford county in 1740. He studied law at Annapolis and took a leading part in revolutionary activities. He was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. In 1782 and again in 1786 he was elected Governor of Maryland.

In 1799 William Paca and Samuel Chase, life long friends and fellow-signers of the most famous American declaration, both died.

Edward Lloyd and William Paca were partners in their land speculation here in 1774. They surveyed "Buck's Bones," 500 acres; "Small Meadows," 5025 acres, and "Hunting Ground," 199 acres, all near Oakland. "Rich Glade," 306 acres, in the Deep Creek Glades, was surveyed for Paca and Richie.

"Lloyd Hill," near Oakland, part of the "Small Meadows" tract, was named for Edward Lloyd. It is now more generally known as "Shaffer Hill."

IN CONCLUSION

Among the land speculators of 1774 were also Judge Richard Potts, of Frederick; James Brooks, Thomas and Brooke Beall, Thomas Johns, Robert Smith an dPaul Hoye—some twenty-five in all—bent, as Boucher wrote, on "the augmentation" of their fortunes among the hills and valleys "westward of Fort Cumberland."

Lord Baltimore collected the "caution money," five pounds sterling per 100 acres, but he did not issue the patents because of the unsettled condition of the Province preceding the Revolution. Then Maryland set itself up as an independent State, confiscated His Lordship's lands and reserved the lands "westward of Fort Cumberland" for its Revolutionary soldiers. It was long in doubt whether the warrants issued by Lord Baltimore in 1774 would be honored by the State, but soon after the War patents were issued for all the tracts in this part of the country which had been surveyed under these warrants.

And what were the effects of these speculations in the lands of what is now Garrett county?

We note first that none of the speculators of 1774 settled on the lands they selected and only the families of two of them—Johnsons and Hoyes—actually settled permanently on their lands in this county. Further the Swans and Johnsons derived considerable revenue from their vast holdings, part of which they kept for a century, but the others realized little or no return above taxes and expenses. Their early investments did not produce the anticipated fortunes because of the Revolutionary War, the opening up of all the State land in 1788, and the opening up of vast tracts of better farm land in the West, all at low prices. The market for land was glutted. The early speculators made no fortunes in Garrett county lands, but after the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was built across the county in 1851, men like Henry G. Davis, who purchased land, cut the timber and mined the coal, did amass fortunes.

And what was the effect of speculation on the actual settler? As we have noted, the large areas for sale kept the price of land low; nevertheless the speculator usually managed to squeeze something out of the settler.

It is true that the big land holders encouraged farmers to come and often sold land "on time" and sometimes otherwise aided the poor settler. Tenant farming was tried hy the Swans and some others, but it was never long successful in this county.

Would it not have been a better policy had the State sold its agricultural lands direct to actual settlers and retained the timber and coal lands? Our mining communities today are not prosperous and our forests have been terribly abused by axe and fire, due in part to speculation—grasping for unearned dollars. In recent years the State of Maryland ha been buying up for State forests cutover forest land at around $2.00 per acre, which it sold years ago heavily forested with virgin timber, for 15 to 25 cents per acre.

LOOKING FORWARD

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

We all know that "Dear Alben" Barkley, the Democratic leader of the Senate, is in a state of jitters over his prospects for renomination in Kentucky. But Senator Barkley should not talk nonsense—not even under provocation of "Happy" Chandler's jibes. Such nonsense as Senator Barkley uttered in opening his campaign may mislead many people who have not the facilities to check up on the accuracy of what he said.

As quoted by the Associated Press, Senator Barkley said President Hoover in four years "increased the debt from $16,000,000,000 to $23,000,000,000." President Roosevelt, he said, has "increased the debt from $23,000,000,000 to $38,000,000,000, but $10,000,000,000 will be repaid and is being repaid." Thus, he put the net increase of the national debt under Roosevelt at $5,000,000,000.

Either Senator Barkley is ignorant of the details of the Federal budget or he is lending himself to the constant New Deal campaign of seeking to keep the country confused about the affairs of the Treasury—a campaign which has been successfully, if deceitfully, carried on during the last five years. One is inclined to suspect that New Deal mis-statements in fiscal matters are more than a congenital failing.

So, first, let us get our figures correct. The national debt in 1929 when Hoover entered office was approximately $17,000,000,000. It was $21,400,000,000 when he went out of office in March, 1933. Thus the debt under Hoover increased $4,400,000,000, which is $2,600,000,000 less than the figures given by Senator Barkley indicate.

The debt in March, 1933,—when Roosevelt assumed office—was $21,400,000,000. It is now approximately $37,300,000,000. Thus the debt so far under Roosevelt increased in round figures $16,000,000,000. But that is not the whole picture. Under the New Deal the Treasury has guaranteed the interest and principal of approximately $4,700,000,000 of securities issued by New Deal agencies. These are called contingent liabilities of the Treasury. They are as much a part of the national debt as are Treasury securities. So actually the national debt under Roosevelt has been increased by more than $20,000,000,000.

The heart of Senator Barkley's contention, however, was that of the money expended by the New Deal, the Treasury will be repaid $10,000,000,000. But the Treasury does not claim that. Senator Barkley in his usual fumbling way has taken a figure which the Treasury claims is the total of recoverable assets for all New Deal credit agencies and has undertaken to off-set it against the debt increase, thus getting the ridiculous figure of $5,000,000,000 as the net increase.

Actually all the Treasury claims as the net value to it of recoverable assets is slightly more than $4,500,000,000. Thus looked at in the most favorable light, through the eyes of the Treasury, the net increase in the debt so far under Roosevelt is at least $11,500,000,000—and not $5,000,000,000, as Senator Barkley says. But what is $6,500,000,000, one way on the other to a New Dealer?

Of course it is very doubtful that the Treasury will ever salvage $4,000,000,000 or anything like it, out of the loans the New Deal has made. For instance, included in those so-called assets is some $417,000,000 owed by the railroads, many of them already in receivership with others headed there. If this Administration lets the railroads "go through the wringer," as it now proposes to do, does anyone in his right mind suppose that all of this $417,000,000 will ever be recovered?

Still another aspect of the matter is that the New Deal has dissipated its so-called recoverable assets as fast as they have been realized. As loans have been repaid, the Treasury uses this money—not for debt retirement—but for current expenses, including boondoggling projects. Actually many millions of dollars loaned by RFC during the Hoover days have been repaid and spent by the New Deal. Thus a part of the increase in the debt under Hoover actually has been spent beyond recovery by the New Deal. Yet by tricky bookkeeping it is charged to him .

The President at Atlanta, Ga., in December, 1935, spoke about the "nearly 1½ billion dollars of recoverable assets which the Government is going to get back over a period of years, and as we get it back we are going to retire the national debt with it."

Of course the New Deal has not used such funds—or, for that matter, any funds—for retiring any part of the national debt. Senator Barkley only echoes his master's voice but, in his zeal to be a "yes man" to the White House, he more than doubles the figure named by the President.

"Dear Alben" in his speech said he was out of sympathy with those people who constantly harp on the increasing debt. We are not surprised. He never has shown any sympathy for the men and women who have contributed toward paying for New Deal extravagances through taxes on the necessities of life. Senator Barkley apparently thinks anyone who talks about debts or taxes is a reactionary, an old fogey. New Dealers are above such things!

An Editorial From The Baltimore Sun

Mr. Roosevelt delivered himself of a rousing campaign speech on Friday night. In its subtle appeal to the emotional and the unthinking, in its cloaking of arrogant self-righteousness in the garments of simple modesty, in its distortion of the views and attitudes of opponents, it was a masterpiece. It probably will win him some votes. It certainly will stimulate his own peculiar, personal following.

Naming no names, he tore into Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors, with the kind of ferocity that delights the bulk of those who constitute the Rooseveltian army. Mr. Sloan had made the mistake of expressing to his stockholders certain fears about the wages and hours legislation, which is politically attractive but economically dubious that its sponsors revised it repeatedly in recognition of precisely such dangers as Mr. Sloan noted. For this offense, Mr. Sloan's large salary was mentioned by the President in terms of scornful anger. You would not suppose, hearing Mr. Roosevelt on this salary, that he is an intimate of a man of such enormous income as is attributed to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. You would not suppose that Mr. Roosevelt had been the boon companion of Vincent Astor and frequently a guest on the Astor yacht, which is one of the handsomest private boats ever maintained from "unearned increment."

You would not suppose that it has been repeatedly stated in print and never denied that Son Jas. Roosevelt, aged 31 years, has acquired a handsome fortune in the insurance business, today possesses an income that runs into six figures and continues to share in insurance profits while occupying a post in the White House.

From the President we also learned that Mr. Sloan has dismissed some of his employes.

You would not suppose, hearing Mr. Roosevelt, that a private employer has the right to retrench when his business declines, exactly as Mr. Roosevelt has repeatedly promised to dismiss public employes when there was no work for them to do. You would not suppose that Mr. Sloan individually and General Motors are taxed by federal, state and local governments for unemployment relief. You would not suppose that there is also a system of unemployment insurance designed to meet the fact that employers must sometimes dismiss employes whether depression occurs under Mr. Hoover or under Mr. Roosevelt.

And when, further, the President assails Mr. Sloan for stating his views in a message to stockholders, at the expense of stockholders for postage, you never would suppose that Mr. Roosevelt maintains in Washington at the taxpayers' expense a propaganda machine whose cost probably exceeds the total cost for publicity of all Presidents from Washington to Hoover, inclusive.

Mr. Roosevelt draws a pious distinction between his position as President of the United States and his position as head of the Democratic party and, in stately terms, explains in the latter capacity he intends to use his influence only in those State primaries in which there is a question as to loyalty of candidates to the "principles" of the 1936 platform or in which there is clear misuse of his name. He does not, he insists, intend to indicate a preference in a State primary merely because some candidate conscientiously differed from him on a single issue.

You would not suppose there ever had been the recent Democratic Senatorial primary in Iowa. You would not suppose the influence of the White House had been thrown against Senator Gillette. You would not suppose that Senator Gillette had been utterly faithful to the New Deal save in his refusal to support the packing of the Supreme Court, which, far from being one of the "principles" of the 1936 platform, had been kept in complete darkness when Mr. Roosevelt appealed to the people for reelection and was again and again challenged to say whether he would pack the court if returned to office.

You would not suppose that the acquisitive Son James, speaking from his father's elbow in the White House, had intervened in the Iowa primary against Senator Gillette. You would not suppose that Harry L. Hopkins, master of billions for relief and holier-than-thou in denunciation of those who play politics with human misery, also had intervened in the Iowa primary against Senator Gillette. You would not suppose that Mr. Hopkins had been publicly sustained in this playing of politics by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

Mr. Roosevelt draws his own line of demarkation in political thought. Those who are with him he calls liberals. Those who are against him he calls conservatives. The conservatives, he conveniently finds, are against old-age pensions and unemployment insurance. They are for monopolies. They are for the old gold standard. And so on.

You would not suppose there are men opposed to Mr. Roosevelt who were arguing for old-age pensions and unemployment insurance before he even uttered a word on that subject. You would not suppose that the criticism today of these measures of social relief runs not against the policy, but against Mr. Roosevelt's administration of the policy. You would not suppose that the anxiety today among critics is not over the existence of a system of old-age pensions, but over the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is using the money collected for pensions from employers and workers to help meet the current operating costs of the Government and that the reserve ordered to be built up consists of pieces of paper, called bonds, which the Government prints and gives to itself—a promise from the Government to pay to the Government.

You would not suppose, hearing Mr. Roosevelt attribute devotion to monopolies to his critics, that he began his first administration with the NRA, which was the greatest system of governmentally sponsored monopolies that this or any other country ever beheld. You would not suppose that five years of the all-powerful Roosevelt Administration passed before Mr. Roosevelt ever departed far enough from that support of what he called "great industrial guilds" to write a message to Congress in which he asked legislation to begin a study of monopolies. You would not suppose that Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, against whom Mr. Roosevelt is conducting a vendetta, was crying out against monopolies and voting against them when Mr. Roosevelt was fostering them by all the means at the command of his great office.

You would not suppose, hearing Mr. Roosevelt's contemptuous references to those who belive in the gold standard, that Senator Carter Glass had ever delivered his famous speech in the 1932 campaign. You would not suppose that Mr. Roosevelt had courted Senator Glass to deliver that speech in reply to one by Mr. Hoover in which Mr. Roosevelt's fidelity to the gold standard was questioned. You would not suppose that Senator Glass, an aged and then ailing man, had spent weeks in preparation of the speech. You would not suppose that Senator Glass went to the microphone with a physician at his back. You would not suppose that, after his reply to Mr. Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt had described the speech as a "masterly phillipic."

Mr. Roosevelt finds that he has won a victory in the fight over the Supreme Court.

You would not suppose, hearing him state the terms of that fight, that he ever had proposed to pack the Supreme Court in a maneuver which his old lieutenant, Gen. Hugh Johnson, called "too damned clever." He talks of other features of the fight. You would not suppose, hearing him speak of the change in the court's theories of constitutional interpretation, that hundreds of critics of the court-packing scheme had argued day in and day out that such change was inevitable without the violence to the independence and integrity of the court that was involved in the packing scheme.

You would not suppose that at the time packing was proposed four of the nine justices were battling for liberal interpretation and the debates within the court were becoming historic. You would not suppose that critics of the packing plan pointed out again and again that age and retirement would quickly bring new members to the court, and they would swing the balance to the liberal side without any device that was "too damned clever" to be submitted to the people when they went to the polls.

Mr. Roosevelt makes play with the demands of critics, under all the varying conditions of his Administration that the confidence of business be restored.

You would not suppose that the very violence of the fluctuations of business conditions under his Administration made the call for restoration of confidence inevitable at all times. We have had spurts due to the inflationary moves in 1933 and we have had recessions. We have had spurts due to NRA manipulations and we have had recessions. We have had spurts due to efforts to accumulate goods in anticipation of labor troubles and we have had recessions—the present collapse from the boom of early 1937 being partly in that category. We have had spurts due to the momentary economic and psychological effects of colossal deficit financing of the Government and we have had recessions.

Hearing Mr. Roosevelt, you would not suppose that his chameleon policies, resulting in spurts and dips for five years and in a huge pool of unemployment all the time, had anything to do with the constant call for actions that would restore business confidence.

—o—

Nor, hearing Mr. Roosevelt on Friday night, would you suppose that throughout these five years of profligate spending of billions upon billions, there remained in print those words spoken by Mr. Roosevelt at Albany on July 30, 1932, to-wit:

> We face a condition which at first seems to involve either an unbalanced budget and an unsound currency or else failure of Government to assume its just duties—the relief of distress and protection against loss of savings built up through the years by numberless small investors. This concerns you, my friends, who managed to lay aside a few dollars for a rainy day.
> This dilemma can be met by saving in one place what we must spend in others; or by acquiring the necessary revenue through taxation. Revenues must cover expenditures by one means or another. Any Government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuation of that habit means the poorhouse.

To hear Mr. Roosevelt in these days, you would not suppose he ever had spoken such words of warning against his own present policies.

—o—

Having said so much, it is a pleasure to note that Mr. Roosevelt has been able at long last to make up his mind in the fight between his friend, the boss of the C. I. O., and his friend, the boss of the Jersey machine.

In this fight, the boss of the Jersey machine is not only invading the constitutional rights of free speech and free assembly which are possessed by the followers of the boss of the C. I. O. He also is undermining the rights of all citizens. Mr. Roosevelt, after due and protracted deliberation upon this conflict between his friends, has come out for free speech and free assembly. In this he speaks, without mentioning names, against Boss Hague, of Jersey City, a powerful politician and an important cog in the Roosevelt-Farley machine.

For this we thank Mr. Roosevelt. And we shall not bother to remember that it may be more dangerous to offend John L. Lewis than to offend Frank Hague.

Cull The Laying Flock Now

In laying flocks which have laid well during the past winter and spring, laying usually slackens down as summer approaches. This is usually due to the poorer laying birds starting their vacation and beginning to molt. These birds usually take long vacations, often as much as six months, and are therefore unprofitable layers. If these birds are caught up and sold, the flock production rate is improved and a cash return is realized from their sale.

With feed selling at about $2.00 per hundred and eggs at 25 cents a dozen, it requires a daily production of about 35% to meet the costs of maintaining the flock. If your feed is costing you more than $2.00 per hundred or your eggs are selling for less than 25 cents per dozen, it will require more than 35% production to cover the costs.

Efficient culling requires the inspection of the flock every 10 days or two weeks, beginning in June, or as soon as production goes below 50%. The sooner the unprofitable birds are sold after culling the greater the saving on feed and the more profitable are the remaining birds.

In examining the flock to pick out the cull birds, look for evidences of molting and yellow pigment in the beaks and shanks. On catching these birds for close examination, look for new primary flight feathers in the wings, yellow shanks and beaks, dry, yellow vents, a narrow spread between the pelvic bones, and a shrunken, scaly comb. If a bird shows most of these factors she should be culled and sold.

Efficient culling saves feed, labor, increases efficiency of the flock, and realizes a cash return from birds sold.

CHOIRS OF FOUR STATES WILL SING AT FESTIVAL

Hundreds of Trained Voices Will Be Heard in Hymns of Praise And Christian Worship

PARTIAL LIST IS GIVEN

Hundreds of trained choir singers from four states will lift their voices in hymns of praise nnd Christian worship when they assemble at Mountain Lake Park on July 15, 16, and 17, for the Mountain Choir Festival, now in its fifth season.

A partial list of choral groups and organizations from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia released by Rev. Felix G. Robinson, director, gives an insight into the quality of the performance that will be presented during the three-day period.

Among the competing choirs will be the Cumberland Valley Choristers, of Hagerstown, Prof. Charles M. Cassel, director; Potomac Valley Chorus, of Keyser, W. Va; Oakland Community Choir; Washington Irving A Cappella choir, Prof. Clarence C. Arms, director, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Jefferson High School A Cappella Choir, Mrs. Dwight Thayer Shaw, director, Falls Church, Va.

They will participate in the adult choir contest on Sunday afternoon, July 17, and compete for awards of $100, $50, and $25. One of the two anthems which adult choirs must sing is the contest anthem for 1938, "Christ of the Fields and Flowers," written especially for the festival by Dr. Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh composer. Choirs in this contest will be vested and have a minimum of 20 voices. During the first four seasons 47 different choral organizations participated.

In the junior choir contest, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, July 16, will be found the Highland Avenue M. E. junior choir, Fairmont, W. Va., Mrs. Virginia Craft, director; Trinity Lutheran junior choir, Keyser, W. Va., Mary Evelyn Sliger, director; First Lutheran junior choir, New Kensington, Pa., Prof. Robert Kunkle, director; St. Mark's Lutheran intermediate choir, Mrs. Felix G. Robinson, director; First M. E. junior choir, Elkins, W. Va., Mrs. Wilbur Mason, director. Choirs in this group will have a minimum of 15 voices, aged 6 to 15, and will be vested. Two numbers will be sung, one of which is selected by the audition committee of the festival, "O Saviour Hear Me," by C. W. von-Gluck. Awards will be $50, $25, and $10.

There will also be a hymn contest Saturday afternoon open to male and mixed quartets. Participants will compete for an award of $25. In this contest will be The Southern Four, of Morgantown, W. Va.

Non-competing choirs who will assist in the combined choral presentations include Hagerstown A Cappella choir, Prof. Raymond Hollinger, director; Martinsburg Choral Society, under Prof. Hollinger; Frostburg Community Choir, Prof. Maurice Matteson, director; Grafton Community Choir, Dr. Matthew Lundquist, director; Fairmont Community Choir, under Dr. Lundquist, the Falls Church choir, Prof. Thomas Martin, director, of Dunn Loring, Va.; Cumberland Community Choir, Wallace Ashley, director.

Competing choirs and other groups will combine for the presentation of the oratorio, Elijah, on Saturday evening, with Reinald Werrenrath, metropolitan opera star, in the leading role, assisted by M. P. Moller, Jr., and other celebrated artists, and will also take part in the singing of the choral eucharist on Sunday evening which will conclude the festival.

The combined choir will be heard over the Columbia broadcasting system on Saturday afternoon and again on Sunday afternoon, July 16 and 17. Guest conductors will be Prof. Hollinger, and Dr. John Finley Williamson. Station WMMN, Fairmont, will handle the broadcast.

Special groups to appear on the program throughout the three days will be Maryland musical artists from Cumberland, Hagerstown, and Baltimore, in a presentation of the Maryland Federation of Music clubs, on Friday evening; Woman s Choral club, Homestead, Pa., Saturday afternoon; Homestead Folk Ensemble, of Elkins, W. Va., Prof. D. F. Folger, director, Friday afternoon; brass quartet, Rev. George Kunkle, director, Accident, Md., in connection with the outdoor processional on Sunday evening; the Loch Lynn Boys' Band, Prof. Harry Mickey, director, Mt. Lake Park, and the Carpatho-Russian choir, Brownsville, Pa., both on Sunday afternoon.

OAKLAND WILL GET NEW U. S. POSTOFFICE BUILDING

The Sum of $80,000 Set Aside for Structure Has Been Announced

Oakland will receive a postoffice building from the Federal government, at a cost of $80,000.

This news was received by telegram in Oakland on Friday evening and officially released by the Treasury and Postoffice Department at Washington on Saturday.

The Oakland building will be one of five public building projects for Maryland. The others include Annapolis, extension and remodeling, $135,000; Denton, new postoffice, $75,000; Baltimore, Dundalk branch, $88,000, and appraisers stores, additional stories, $850,000.

No information was available as to where the Oakland postoffice building would be located, and when construction would be started.

TWO MORE SEEK OFFICE OF COUNTY COMMISSIONER

B. C. Scott and J. C. Myers Announce; W. A. Smith For Orphans' Court Judge

The list of aspirants for the office of County Commissioner continues to grow. This week Bert C. Scott and Jasper C. Myers announce their candidacies for that position. These two additions to the list of candidates brings the total to thirteen for that office, three of whom, unless additions are made, are to be selected at the primaries.

The third candidate to announce this week is William A. Smith, of Hoyes, who desires to succeed himself as a judge of the Orphans' Court.

Judge Smith is from District No. 3, and is now filling the unexpired term of the late T. W. Casteel. He has been in business at Hoyes for a number of years and was former postmaster there. He is a member of the board of Directors of the First National Bank of Oakland. All three present members of the Orphans' Court have now announced for re-election and are the only aspirants for the position thus far.

Mr. Myers has been a resident of district 13 for many years and is a farmer by occupation. He has been serving on the County Welfare Board for several years and is well known throughout the entire county.

Mr. Scott is from Hutton, district 14, and has been a resident of the county for fifty years. He served as sheriff from 1913 to 1915 and upon numerous occasions has served as an election official. He pledges an economical administration, if nominated and elected as Commissioner.

Bosley House Being Razed

Van Browning, Deer Park, has purchased the old Bosley house, on Oak street, and is now engaged with a force of men in razing the building.

The building was condemned several weeks ago by the State Fire Marshall, and at that time there were 50 people living in it. The various families have all found other quarters.

CCC Enrollees Leave

Forty-five new CCC enrollees left Oakland this morning to join Company 2302 at Camp Frederick, Md. This was Garrett county's quota. There were 53 applicants. Three veterans also enrolled and were sent to Company 3306.

Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the County Welfare Board, said those who were enrolled this time included those unemployed and in need of employment.

Injured In Auto Collision

Four people were injured, none seriously, on Tuesday when a truck of the Sharps Motor company, and an automobile driven by Charles Repetsky, of Kempton, collided at Sunnyside. The Sharps truck was being driven by Wesley Garletts.

Other occupants of the Repetsky car were William Repetsky and Harry Lewis. They received cuts and bruises.

MAN DROWNS SUNDAY IN LAKE AS CANOE CAPSIZES

Charles Paden, Duquesne, Pa., Was at Deep Creek for Week-end—Wife Is Rescued

USE OF INHALATOR FUTILE

Charles Paden, 25, of Duquesne, Pa., was drowned Sunday afternoon in Deep Creek Lake, after his canoe, which he and his wife occupied, capsized about three hundred feet from shore, out from Torrington's cabin.

His body was recovered an hour later by a rescue crew from the Lake section, assisted by several members of the Oakland Fire Department. It was in about twentf-five feet of water.

Paden's body was recovered quicker than any of the other drowning victims in the lake because George M. Young, of Cumberland, saw the accident. The body was recovered by C. F. Oort, Brownsville, Pa., who joined in the search with other vacationists at the lake. Grappling hooks of the fire department were used.

Young said he saw the boat capsize. At first he believed the young couple were only playing in the water. When he noticed they were struggling he swam to their assistance along with James W. White, also of Cumberland.

When Young reached the couple they both struggled with him but he was able to free himself before he was pulled under. Seeing it was impossible to save both Young seized the woman, while White made an attempt to rescue Paden, Paden, however, sank before White could aid him.

Mrs. George G. Young, wife of the Allegany county tax collector, ran to the edge of the lake and tossed an inflated inner tube to her son and Mrs. Paden, who said, "I can swim, save my husband."

The couple, married two years ago, had gone to the lake to spend the three-day holiday. Paden had made two previous trips into the lake with others in the canoe and had decided to go alone the third time but his wife said she would accompany him. Paden could not swim.

After Paden's body was brought ashore, an inhalator squad of the Oakland fire department worked over him for an hour before giving up their efforts to revive him. Dr. N. I. Broadwater and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, both of Oakland, were called to the scene and pronounced Paden dead. His body was removed to Oakland and prepared for burial, later being taken to his late home by the Bolden Undertaking Company's ambulance.

Engagement of Miss Elizabeth Broadwater To Mr. Julius C. Renninger Is Announced

Dr. and Mrs. Norman Irving Broadwater, of Oakland, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Broadwater, to Mr Julius C. Renninger, Jr. The announcement was made at an afternoon tea given by Miss Broadwater's mother at the Mountain Lake Hotel, Wednesday, July 6. Mrs. J. C. Renninger, Miss Thekla Fundenburg, Mrs. William Grant and Mrs. Townshend Naylor poured while friends of Miss Broadwater assisted with the serving. Talisman roses were presented to each guest, bearing a card on which the announcement was made.

GOVERNOR NICE DECLARES DESIRE FOR SECOND TERM

Wants to Complete Constructive And Beneficial Program Which Was Balked By Political Foes

OUTLINES ACHIEVEMENTS

Governor Harry W. Nice, one of the very few Republicans ever elected Governor of normally Democratic Maryland, announced last Friday night he would be a candidate for reelection.

His decision to seek a second term, the Governor said in a broadcast "Declaration of Intentions", was made on the basis of a "challenge x x x made to me that I, as the leader of this administration.. am the logical person to champion its cause and to interpret to the voters x x x the progress of the last three and a half years."

The complete text of Governor Nice's radio talk outlinging the reasons which prompted his decision to seek a second term as Governor of the State follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen of Maryland:

In November, 1934, you did me the very great honor of selecting me as your Governor. Now, after three and a half years in office, I desire to render to you, who, in the last analysis, must be the tribunal of final judgment, a report of my stewardship. I shall now review the record and accomplishments of my administration.

Upon my occupancy of the executive mansion, I found that the physical deterrioration of the building required immediate attention. The building, as a whole, because of age and lack of substantial repairs, was potentially dangerous and a menace to life. I remodeled and, in a measure, rebuilt. I was severely criticized for doing this work, but today the government house

517 KILLED IN AMERICA IN HOLIDAY WEEK-END

Autos Take Greatest Toll, With Number of Deaths; Drowning Is Second

The seventy-two hours of the Independence Day week-end brought violent deaths to at least 517 persons in the United States, according to figures compiled by the Associated Press.

In contrast to the Fourth of July of other days—when hospitals were filled with fireworks victims—only three persons throughout the nation were killed by that cause.

The greatest destroyer of lives was automobile accidents, which killed 258. The second greatest number of fatalities was 141 drownings. Twenty persons killed themselves and twenty-seven more were shot by other persons, mainly by accident.

Trains killed eighteen, and the remaining fifty fatalities resulted from such causes as lightning and accidents in the home.

ASSOCIATION PROPERTY AT PARK IS ON THE MARKET

Notice In Christian Advocate Says Mt. Lake Park Association Will Not Function After 1938

OPERATED FOR 50 YEARS

The Mountain Lake Park Association, as an organization, will not function after 1938, and the Association's property in the Park is being advertised for sale in a church publication.

A notice appears in the July 7 issue of The Christian Advocate, Methodist Episcopal church paper of large circulation, and is signed by William E. Shaw, of New York, president of the Association. The Association is under the control of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, with F. E. Baker, of Chicago, superintendent.

The association was chartered more than fifty years ago by an Act of the Maryland Legislature as a religious center and summer resort. It was operated as such by the original stockholders, but these gentlemen, with the years mounting and sensing the future of the property as being a liability following the dwindling of attendance at the Mountain Chautauqua gatherings and its final abandonment following the death of the late Dr. W. L. Davidson, the then manager, sought to dispose of the property and their holdings of stock. Finally an agreement was reached with the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist church in which it was verbally understood that with the transferal of the stock, and a cash payment with which to discharge the debts of the original Association, the Board would take the property over and operate it, establish schools and keep the property and buildings up. The stock was transferred as arranged, certain cash payments were made, but no schools were established and the buildings have been allowed to deteriorate year after year, and now the end. Much of the cash money going into the transaction was contributed by Oakland people, the balance by those residing in Mountain Lake Park and some by Baltimore residents.

Several years ago numerous citizens of Mountain Lake Park urged the incorporation of the town, and this became a reality by an Act of the Maryland Legislature and a vote of the property owners. Prior to that time the government of the Park was controlled by what was known as the Community of Mountain Lake Park, consisting of residents of the town and members of the Mountain Lake Park Association.

Mountain Lake Park as a town covers 800 acres. Besides the property owned by the Association, there are many homes owned by individuals, besides a number of boarding houses and hotels. The year-round population of the Park is several hundred persons and during the summer months there are more than two thousand.

The Association owns two hotels, a refreshment stand, postoffice building, an amphitheatre seating 5000 people, an assembly hall and tabernacle combined which will accoomodate two thousand or more, with classrooms, an office building, a cottage, a farm home, barn and outbuildings; 390 vacant lots, 215 acres of timber and glade land, of which about 55 acres are in pasture; 70 acres in oak timber and 50 acres are farmed. There is also an artificial lake of 40 acres.

This porperty is being offered for sale for three weeks with the understanding that if there are any purchasers interested in continuing Mt. Lake Park as a resort for religious and educational gatherings, they will be given preference. In case there are no interested parties along these lines, the Association, according to the advertisement, will feel free to offer it for sale to the general public.

The woodwork of the building, where needed, will be renewed and painted; the spire and roof of the building will also be repaired and palnted and otherwise improved. Later the interior of the structure will receive attention and repairs made if required.

IN MEMORY OF DR. A. J. MASON

From his great heart of unselfish love
To all his human brothers,
He gave his service and found
His joy in helping others.

He carried high the torch of hope
Through long dark hours of need;
And unafraid he gave himself
What noble, glorious creed!

The Great Physician of his soul,
Who knew just when 'twas best
Has bade him lay his burden down
And come to Him for rest.

Oh, do not say that he is dead—
His spirit hovers near;
He would not have his friends to grieve
But feel his presence dear.

"Because I live ye too shall live,"
A promise to His own;
He lives in God's bright sunshine
Where no death is ever known.

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

A bit of karo adds to the taste of many foods. Prove it yourself by trying some of the following recipes:

Roast Ham

One ham, about 8 to 10 pounds, 1 cup karo, dry bread erumbs, 1 tablespoon pickle spice, cloves, karo for brushing.

Scrub the ham with cold water containing a little baking soda, rinse in cold water and place in a kettle with the karo and pickle spice. Cover with boiling water and simmer until tender—about four hours. Let stand in the water two hours. Pare off the skin, brush with karo, sprinkle thickly with the erumbs and dot with cloves at even intervals. Bake one and one-half hours in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) basting frequently.

French Toast

Twelve slices white bread, cut about one-fourth inch thick, 1 tablespoon karo, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, 1-8 teaspoon salt, butter or other frying fat.

Beat the eggs, add the milk, karo and salt. Dip the bread in this, one slice at a time, drain a moment and fry in sufficient fat to keep from sticking. Turn only once. Serve immediately as the main dish, with broiled bacon, or as a breakfast, luncheon or supper dish with karo.

Penuchi

Three cups brown sugar, 1-2 cup karo, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, 1 1-2 cups nue meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine sugar, karo and milk in saucepan and cook, stirring constantly until the temperature 238 degrees F. is reached (soft ball stage). Remove from fire, add butter and set aside, without stirring, to cool. When lukewarm add flavoring, beat until thick and creamy—add nuts, mix thoroughly and pour into a well-oiled pan. When firm cut into squares.

Karo Fudge

Two squares chocolate, 1-2 cup milk, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1-3 cup karo, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix all ingredients except vanilla. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Stir occasionally thereafter to see that it does not burn, until it reaches 238 degrees F. (soft ball in cold water). Remove from fire and cool. Add vanilla and beat until the fudge is thick and surface begins to dull. Pour into pan oiled with butter. When nearly cold, cut in squares.

MT. LAKE PARK

Congratulations to Professor Harry Mickey and the Boys' Band. They certainly made a fine showing in the parade at Oakland on July 4th, and we predict that the next time they will win first prize in place of second prize. Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn people are proud of this splendid group of young folks.

So far the fate of the Civic Club drinking fountain remains a deep dark secret. When we inquired about it this week all we could get as an answer, "We don't know."

Mountain Lake had a quiet and sane Fourth. Quite a number of people drove here from long distances and spent the week-end. There was the usual fireworks at different homes. Aside from that the day was almost as usual.

Mrs. Elizabeth Musgrave, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mortimer Smith.

There will be a fried chicken supper in the Methodist church on Thursday evening, July 14, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. The price will be 50 cents a plate.

Mr. and Mrs. George Becker and Mr. and Mrs. Harris, of Baltimore, were guests at Allenhurst over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. William Stuart Montgomery and daughter, of Sewickley, Pa., are occupying the Jennings property.

Mrs. Maud Junkins and son Frank will leave on Saturday for Washington, D. C., where they will remain for some time with Mrs. Junkins' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Petitt.

Miss Maud Jeffries and Miss Maud Curtis, of West Liberty, West Va., are guests at the Colonial for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curran and son Tom and Mrs. Curran, Sr., of Pittsburgh, were Fourth of July visitors with Mrs. Anne Reppart.

Mrs. Jamie Elliott and son Russell have returned from a month's visit in Jersey City.

George Dawson, who is a patient in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following an emergency appendix operation, is doing nicely and it is hoped that he will be able to return to his home here shortly.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham, Mrs. John Kirkpatrick, Fairmont, and L. M. Cunningham, of Charleston, were visitors on Monday with Mrs. Allie Haymond.

Miss Minnie Daugherty, Baltimore, and Miss L. W. Stockbridge, Washington, D. C., are guests at the Braethorn.

Miss Beatrice Clary, of Hagerstown, visited her mother, Mrs. Alma Bell, over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rathbun spent Tuesday in Clarksburg.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Searle and son, of Washington, D. C., are here for the summer.

John B. Hart, of Charleston, W. Va., was a Park visitor over the Fourth.

Mrs. Bryan Templeman, of New York City, is a guest at the Allegany.

Mrs. G. H. Heintzman, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Gray and Mrs. Lydia Malone, all of Baltimore, were guests of Mrs. F. M. Murphy on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds, of Washington, D. C., were here visiting Mrs. Edmunds' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Gnegy, the past week.

Miss Ruth Miner, Ray Miner and Miss Doris Spence were guests over the week-end at Parkview with Mr. and Mrs. Hal Jacobs.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hipsley had as guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. John Bayliss and children and Miss Mildred Bennett, all of Clarksburg.

Mrs. J. Burt Martin, daughter Jane and son, Robert Carr Martin, returned on Tuesday to their home in Orlando, Florida, after a visit here with Mrs. Martin's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr.

Mr. and Mrs. John Criss and sons, Richard and John, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Sweitzer, of the Park, motored to Front Royal, Va., to visit the latter's son, Carroll, who holds a position in that city. He accompanied them home to remain a day or two.

Va.; Mr. and Mrs. John Laing, Charleston, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smouse, of Fairmont; Mrs. Esther Harvey, of Steyer, Md.

is a credit to the people of Maryland and in keeping with the dignity of the State. This will be testified to by the thousands and thousands who have come to inspect it. Some perhaps came to scoff, but all remained to pray. I wish it were possible for every man and woman in Maryland to see the improvements which have been made, and to inspect the house as it now stands. As a matter of fact, I probably have done too good a job. At least that seems to be the reaction of a horde of Democratic gentlemen who are now seeking my job because of what they believe will be the ease and comfort of a four-year sojourn in the remodeled mansion.

Floundered Hopelessly

I was elected because of your dissatisfaction with a demoralized condition into which the state government had fallen over a fifteen-year period of domination by a political faction. Long continued power had caused the administration to become callous to its responsibilities and blind to its glaring failures. The penal institutions had been ill managed. Riots and prison escapes were of frequent occurrence. Scandals in public office were rampant. The natural power resources of the state at Conowingo had been bartered away. When a nation-wide economic depression came, the state administration floundered hopelessly. The pressing demands of public welfare became the football of political factionalism. The humanitarian issue of relief became but an instrument of rival political patronage. With these conditions facing you, you registered your protest, and I became your governor. Thus was I charged with the responsibility, not only of administering to the limit of my ability the executive duties of the government, but to correct, insofar as was in my power, the deplorable condition which brought your dissatisfaction to a climax.

The Auto Tax Pledge

Let me turn for a moment to a consideration of my advocacy of the $2 auto tag license fee. I have no apology to offer for having advocated this proposition. I espoused this program on the basis of the picture of the state's finances which had been published during the 1934 campaign by the administration then in office. Various automobile club officials and financiers supposedly familiar with the state setup, endorsed the soundness of my convictions regarding the feasibility of a $2 tag.

Then, to the chagrin of all of us, shortly after my election came the disclosure that figures concerning the state's finances had been, apparently deliberately, concealed, and that instead of a substantial surplus, we had a deficit of over $3,000,000. Despite my earnest desires for a lower automobile license fee, I had to meet the financial emergency which my predecessor had left on my doorstep. But even though I realized that this financial muddle prevented the complete fulfillment of my pledge, I tried to go substantially in that direction. I constructed a budgetary proposal which would have made the tag cost the motorist only twenty cents per horsepower instead of thirty-two cents, or in other words, a reduction from an average of $8.30 per tag to $5.20. An administration bill to this effect was introduced in the State Senate on February 6, 1935. The legislature, Democratic five to one, killed the bill.

Democrats Must Answer.

Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, the Republican party has tried to keep its pledge to you. A Democratic administration frustrated our first hopes by financial maladministration. A Democratic legislatnre blasted our subsequent efforts along this line. We have made the honest effort. The Democratic party of Maryland must answer for the failure of that effort.

During the last few months I have presented in a series of articles in the public press some of the major problems which confronted me. Manifestly, it would be impossible in the short time allotted me tonight to give a complete history of my every endeavor to administer properly and intelligently the duties of my office. Therefore, I shall ask you to follow me for a few moments in a brief sketch of some of the outstanding accomplishments of this administration.

Deficit Concealed

At the very outset of my administration there came to light the frightful financial situation already mentioned which had been foisted upon the people of Maryland. Figures had been concealed which denied us the knowledge of a deficit in the state's finances. This deficit seriously impaired the functioning of the state government. Our first job was to bring order out of that chaos. We halted the downward drift, and today Maryland's credit is at the highest point in years. Just think, only recently a new issue of nearly $1,000,000 of one and three-quarters per cent state bonds were sold above par. This had the effect of reducing the interest cost from one and three-quarters per cent to one and six-tenths per cent. This, mark you, is the lowest coupon rate and interest cost at which the state of Maryland has ever been able to borrow. Bankers are not sentimentalists. Their judgment on the soundness of our state credit can be taken as eloquent proof of the facts. A threatened deficit in the treasury of the state when I took office has been turned into a treasury surplus, and from authoritative estimates of the state comptroller's office we learn that there will be, at the end of the year, a comfortable treasury credit balance.

Forced To Borrow

We had to meet our predecessor's deficits with borrowed money. Concerning the advisability of the state ever being again maneuvered into such a position, I have already given public expression. It must be obvious to all that the present enviable position of the state's finances must be maintained in order to serve the people affectively.

I have constantly reiterated my opposition to the diverting of highway, gasoline and automobile tax funds to general treasury uses. This custom, a sad inheritance from the past, had to be continued because of the refusal of a politically hostile legislature to heed my earnest plea and make adequate provisions to meet the general treasury needs. This policy of fund diversion should not be continued. I have been forced to do it in an emergency to rehabilitate our state solvency and credit. Yet, in carrying on this custom of a former administration, I have administered it so that we have, today, at least a balanced budget instead of the deficit with which our predecessors left us, despite their use of gasoline and automobile tax moneys for general treasury purposes. Fortunately, the people of Maryland today have quite a different and more hopeful picture to contemplate.

Model For Other States

In social welfare, our administration has been a model for other states. The unemployment insurance compensation program that I advocated has been established. I have consistently advocated unemployment relief, and this has been realized during my administration, although not to the degree of adequacy I desire. Still, in the main, few have suffered.

It is unthinkable that a national program of public spending should be necessary year after year, covering a period of more than five years, in order to keep the wheels of economic progress revolving, a continuation of which must inevitably spell national bankruptcy and the ultimate destruction of the forces of our nation's progress. It is, nevertheless, a satisfaction that, by alertness, the present state administration has been able to obtain for the people of our state a share of the national appropriations somewhat commensurate with the burden of our citizens' national contribution.

Roads in Bad Shape

About twenty years ago, Maryland had the best roads in America. At the close of the last administration, Maryland roads were among the worst in America, even though $250,000,000 of the taxpayers' money had been spent on them. In March, 1935, I received from Mr. Abel Wolman, of the State Planning Commission, a report to the effect that our roads system was then inadequate; that there was need for a long term plan of orderly construction of highways to provide an adequate, safe and efficient system of arterial roads; that there was abundant evidence of wastefulness in former construction and building, with no sane system of planning; that there was an earnest and paramount need for the reconstruction and modernization of at least nine hundred miles of the state system.

No fair-minded man or woman can or does expect me, in the short period of three and a half years, completely to undo the evil and correct the deplorable condition of the roads system due to inefficiency, neglect and extravagant wastefulness of the previous years.

Turning Point Marked

I think that the motoring public will admit, however, that much improvement has occurred during the past three years. No one believes, nor do I state, that anything like adequate correction has been fully made. It could not have been done during this short period; but we have done the best we could in the face of obstacles never heretofore encountered by a governor of Maryland. We organized a highway planning survey, and we have proceeded with the most vitally needed road projects. These are nearing a satisfactory completion. We are making a complete check on the physical condition of every road in the state, which will furnish a guide for future activities. I affirm, with confidence, that this work now being done by this highway planning survey will prove to be the most challenging, fact-finding movement in the history of our highways. The completion of the major undertakings of this administration and the comprehensive forthcoming report of the highway planning survey will be a contribution to Maryland's roads that will mark a turning point in her highway development.

GOVERNOR HARRY W. NICE

Penal Problem Met

The prison labor problem is rapidly on the way to solution. The operation of the federal act, preventing the shipment of prison-made goods in interstate commerce, has brought about a condition of enforced idleness in our penal institutions which not only was of deep concern to those in authority, but a continued and serious threat to the orderly processes of proper penal enforcement. There was a constant threat of riot and of bloodshed within these institutions. Occurrences of this character in the past were a public scandal. By means of enabling legislation and a vigorously pursued program of organization, industrial activities in the penal institutions have been inaugurated and systematized, so that today hundreds of these idle inmates are occupied in productive and absorbing occupations.

In this connection, the administration of parols and pardon has been given the most serious attention. It is clear that to be effective, the fight against crime needs more than stone walls and steel bars. A constructive penal program requires trained men to administer it. Common sense and a broad gauge of appreciation of the problem in its entirety also must shape the policy.

Fewer Paroles

During the last three years of the preceding administration, 983 were paroled. During the first three years of my administration there were 666 paroled. During the same period of the former administration, thirteen life prisoners were released from the penitentiary, while during the first three years of my administration, but three life prisoners were released. My predecessor, during the last three years of his administration, pardoned sixty-seven, while during the first three years of my administration I have pardoned but forty-three. I wish the people of Maryland to realize that, while deeply impressed with the necessity of constructive penal administration and with all the correctional features that contribute to the lessening of crime, I have endeavored to handle the penal and parole systems of this state with practical common sense and conservative sound judgment.

The State Police

During this administration the Department of State Police has been separated from the Motor Vehicle Commissioner's office, and organized as a separate law enforcement agency. The department has its own employes' pension system and carries its own disability insurance, thus effecting large savings in its operation. The network of state police radio communication built up within the last three years is a potent factor in the apprehension of fugitives from justice. Due to the efficient management and to the increase in its physical equipment, this department, despite the fact that it is woefully undermanned, has become a splendid and valued agency in the enforcement of highway regulations and of law and order generally in rural communities.

State Hospitals

Under this administration, the state hospitals for the insane and tubercular have been brought to a high degree of efficiency and service, after a period of extremely restricted operations and the consequent demoralization of their service. The battle against tuberculosis among our white citizens is well on the way to victory, but the great problem of combating this disease among our negro population is far from being completely in hand. Increased facilities provided by appropriations for construction and vigorous steps in the organization of the battle against this menace, close as it is to the household of many, are bringing this problem nearer solution.

Under this administration, the civil service of the state is being administered with efficiency and fearlessness. The work of the State Employment Commissioner's office is serving as a model among the civil service organizations of sister commonwealths.

No one can, with truthfulness, point to the injection of partisan politics by this administration into the school system of our state, the Department of Health, the Board of State Aid and Charities, the University of Maryland, or, for that matter, into the governmental agency having to do with the social or educational welfare of our people.

Salary Cuts Restored

Under this administration, the salary cuts of 1933 have been restored to the school teachers of the state and to other state employes. This restoration ended an era of tremendous employment turnover that was having a serious effect upon the standards and morale of the state personnel. The first steps in the institution of a state employes' pension system have been taken, and many of the old and incompetent have been equitably taken care of, to the advantage of the public service.

The Cheltenham school for colored delinquents, which has been a sore spot for years in Maryland's correctional system, criticized by grand jury after grand jury and by commission after commission, has at last been incorporated into the state system, and vigorous steps are being taken to correct the notorious faults of its previous administration.

Seafood Improvements

Our activities in the conservation of the natural resources of the Chesapeake bay directly affecting the welfare of a large number of citizens, have resulted in marked improvement. In the year previous to the advent of my administration, the production of oysters had fallen to 1,830,000 bushels, the lowest in the history of the state and a fraction of our former annual yield. By a program of rehabilitation, we have been able to turn the tide of depletion and have steadily increased the oyster yield from the low of 1934 to a yield last season of over 3,225,000 bushels. We have negotiated a vitally important agreement with the state of Virginia in connection with the propagation of crabs. On such action the entire future of Maryland's crab industry depends. Thus, at last, definite material improvement and decided hope for the future, have come to Maryland's seafood industry.

We have instituted a Small Loan Commission, to regulate and control those loan organizations which come so intimately into contact with many citizens. This commission, by the vigorous conduct of its duties, is rendering signal service to the people of the state.

Salary Differential Unjust

I have faced the problem of the deplorable, unconstitutional differential between the pay of negro and white school teachers throughout the state. Last December, in a public statement, I took a definite stand for the elimination of this inequitable legislation. I have demanded, and now reiterate my demand, that the incoming legislature amend this law.

Under this administration, the banking laws of the state have been improved by far-reaching amendments, and under the authority of these laws, the banking system of the state of Maryland is now being administered with efficiency.

The Public Service Commission of the state has quietly and without fanfare proceeded in the adjustment of public utility rates for the benefit of our citizens. It has, by conference, accomplished a reduction in the cost of public service to the people of the state totaling $2,771,907 annually, and, mark this, these negotiations have been effected without one dollar of cost for court action.

The State Tax Commission has met its problem of enforcing the assessment laws with unusual vigor and the indications are that, as a net result, this policy will have a beneficial effect upon the state tax rate.

Expenses Reduced

Under the former administration, in the year 1932, the expense of the State Purchasing Department was $23 in clerical expense for every $1,000 worth of articles it bought. Under this administration, in the year 1937, that expense was reduced to less than half, or $14 per $1,000.

The State Engineering Department, instituted under this administration, has functioned to great advantage. Restricted in its sphere of action as it was by the legislature, many times the cost of this department has been saved in consultation fees.

Many other departments have made a record of achievement of which this administration is proud, and it is from such constructive work that I take the utmost satisfaction. Excellent legislation advocated by and passed at the request of this administration, bearing on soil conservation, low cost housing, interstate co-operation, labor relations, fair commercial trading and the revision of election machinery in Baltimore City, have added to the record of progress during my term of office.

I have always been convinced that, by reason of intelligence, business acumen, being taxpayers, and possessing equality of suffrage, and with their increasing interest in government, our women should have their place in public affairs. It was with this thought in mind that I appointed some ninety women to positions of importance on boards and commissions of our state, over half of which carry substantial emoluments. I take great pride in every one of my women appointees.

Paramount Achievement

I conclude this record of achievement with a matter which, perhaps, is of paramount importance. One of the most distressing by-products of present economic distress has been a long line of labor controversies which, in many states of our land, have flared to the point of dread menace to public safety. Yet, during my administration, Maryland has had an almost unparalleled record of amicable settlement of industrial conflict. There have arisen several serious situations in this state which might have resulted in the same distressing chaos, or even loss of life, which have occurred elsewhere. Yet, because in these crises we were able to achieve the confidence of labor and employers alike, serious trouble has been averted and amicable settlements have been secured in all cases. On at least one occasion my personal intervention and presence at the scene of conflict helped mediate a situation as serious as any which caused chaos or martial law in other states. Is it not perhaps the greatest tribute that could be paid our administration that the confidence in us by employers and labor alike should have enabled Maryland to face, without that disaster which befell other localities, the serious problems of industrial disturbances so prevalent in these times.

Valuable Experience

These nearly four years have brought experience in administering the affairs of our state. No one is more conscious than am I, of the further needs of the state government. There are some points which need the strengthening of further legislation. Long range plans for the development of the state's splendid resources are a vital necessity. As we have worked, we have learned, and in addition to the improvements which we have already put into effect, we are at work on constructive programs for the future of Maryland.

Here, then, is a condensed statement of our record. I am proud of that record, and on it I stand. This does not mean that I am satisfied with the results accomplished in all cases. That would be a position of self-sufficiency, of which I am incapable. But it does mean that my administration has endeavored, without stint of effort or lapse of serious attention, to give to Maryland the best of which we have been capable.

In Midst Of Program

On several occasions during the campaign and early in my administration I stated that I did not intend to be a candidate to succeed myself. I realized the gigantic nature of my task. I felt I could do no more than the negative work of rectifying the evils and clearing the ground for future and constructive activities. Success beyond all expectations, even in our fondest hopes, has crowned our efforts. We now find ourselves engrossed in the very midst of a positive program, the present achievement of which you have heard me analyze. But the benefits of this work for the greater part only just begun, will be lost unless the constructive policies we have inaugurated are carried on by the administration which inaugurated them. The danger of a loss of these benefits to the state arises from another source which we had not forseen. An almost unbelievable fanatical policy of political sabotage has endeavored to blind the eyes of the people of Maryland to the progress on which we are embarked. I have therefore, been besought by those who most clearly perceive the salutary activities we are undertaking. They have insisted that the benefits of these advantages can be preserved only by a continued administration of our work, and by bringing into the clear light of a political campaign the miserable distortions which are being spread by a conscienceless opposition. The challenge has been made to me that I, as the leader of the administration, am the logical person to champion its cause and to interpret to the voters of Maryland the progress of the last three and a half years.

To Preserve Values

Faced with this unforseen dilemma, I now must make my decision. I act as I feel, my fellow citizens, that you would have me act. I act to preserve the values of the service I have endeavored to render you. I act in order to bring out into the clear discussion of a political campaign the vicious distortions of our enemies who have striven to blind you to the progress we have made. I act along the lines of the only course I can conscientiously follow under conditions as they now exist.

I shall be a candidate to succeed myself at governor of Maryland.

I make this declaration of intention after a deep and searching analysis within my own mind and heart. I make it after consultation with the leadership of my own padty.

Moreover, my friends, I make this declaration of intention because I am confident that you, the people of Maryland, for the reason of the record on which we shall wage our campaign, will return us to office as the only logical action consistent with the welfare of our state.

On Honest Judgment

For it is solely on the basis of an honest and impartial judgment of that record that I ask your support. Not a judgment swayed by ancient hates and present political partisanship. Not a judgment of unreasoning prejudice. But impartial judgment with only one standard of valuation —the welfare of you, the people of Maryland, and our great state; the judgment of a contrast of present progress with what existed before we came into office.

The benefits of the experience of those years—the continued service of consecrated devotion to our state—the continued progress and unstinted labor in behalf of the preservation of the dignified role of Maryland in the great fabric of American constitutional democracy, these I pledge to you. Regardless of your political affiliations, I make to you this solemn declaration. And with this pledge, I ask of you—all the citizens of Maryland— on the basis of fact and reason and public welfare, your contniued friendship and support.

ANTI-SALOON MEETING IS HELD AT MT. LAKE PARK

Dr. E. L. Bunce, Baltimore, Says Repealists' Promises Failed To Be Carried Out

RESOLUTION IS PASSED

How the promises and predictions of those favoring the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment had not been carried out, was pointed out last Sunday afternoon at the annual meeting of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, held in the auditorium at Mountain Lake Park. The speaker was Dr. E. L. Bunce, pastor of St. John's Methodist Protestant church, Baltimore.

Dr. Bunce stated the repealists promised that kidnaping would cease, crime would decrease, the national budget would be balanced, the unemployment would be banished and that drinking and drunkenness would decrease.

"Not one of these things has come to pass since repeal, and instead we have the opposite effect." Dr. Bunce asserted.

Dr. Bunce also showed how President Roosevelt had failed the people in the matter of saloons. He quoted the President as saying on two occasions: "By no possibility, at any time, shall that institution, the saloon, or its equivalent, be allowed to return to American life."

It was stated that twice as many people were now on the enforcement staff and twice as much money being spent for liquor law enforcement than during the prohibition period.

A report of the Keely Institute showed more patients than at any time for thirty years, and that there had been an increase of 70 per cent in alcoholic patients since the year of repeal in 1933.

Dr. Bunce also quoted life insurance company statistics which showed an increase of 183 per cent in excessive drinkers and 178 per cent increase in casual drinkers. In pre-prohibition days there were 177,000 saloons and at the present time there are 500,000.

A resolution favoring a law that would prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages from 12 o'clock midnight, Saturday, to 6 a. m., Monday, was passed by those attending the meeting and a committee of three was appointed by George W. Crabbe, head of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, to interest legislators in such a law, which is favored by the Liquor License Boards of Baltimore City and county and the State.

In the resolution above referred to a request was inserted that the State Senator and members of the House of Delegates from this county use their utmost efforts to secure this legislation as a State-wide law.

Mr. Crabbe, in the morning meeting, made a general attack on the entire beer business. "Brewers are not concerned with people to drink more, but more people to drink," he asserted.

He recommended that officers be more strict in enforcing the laws already in effect.

At the afternoon meeting there were approximately 250 persons present.

Rotarians To Hear Mr. Lunk

Mr. William R. Lunk, commercial counselor for the Monongahela West Penn Public Service company, will speak at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club on Friday evening on the subject, "National Salesmen's Crusade."

At the Friday meeting newly elected officers of the club will take over their official duties. Foster D. Bittle is the new president.

Storm Brings Cooler Weather

A heat wave lasting a week or more kept temperatures in this section around the 80 mark, the hottest day being last Friday when the mercury registered 87 degrees. Monday was almost as hot, with a reading of 86.

A severe storm on Monday night, however, has brought cooler weather, yesterday's high reading being 80, and today's expected to drop several degrees.

Barn Burns Monday Night

A barn on the Willinm G. Riley farm, now occupied by his son, Audley Riley, was struck by lightning during the storm about midnight on Monday and was entirely destroyed by fire which followed. The farm is located near White Church.

A quantity of hay was also consumed. The livestock was not in the barn. The loss was estimated at $2,000 with insurance of $750. Nearby buildings were not damaged.

Lloyd Sisler Makes Announcement For County Treasurer

LLOYD SISLER

Lloyd Sisler, a son of Mrs. H. R. Sisler, of near Cranesville, announces this week for the nomination for county treasurer. He is a native of district No. 2, and is the lone candidate to announce this week for a county office. He is also the first to announce for treasurer.

Mr. Sisler was a candidate for clerk to the county commissioners four years ago and received a substantial vote, although not receiving the nomination. He has taken a correspondence course in law, and works on his farm during the day.

NEW RECORD ESTABLISHED FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

More Permits Are Issued In June Than In Any Previous Month

Two new records in the marriage license section of the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland have been established during the past month of June. The total number of licenses issued during the month up to Tuesday morning of this week was 249, which is 33 more than the all-time record established in April of this year. Saturday, June 27, was also the busiest day on record, 26 applicants having the desires satisfied.

A total of 125 licenses were issued during the two weeks ending Monday. Thirteen were marked "don't publish," while the applications for licenses were refused seven couples.

The rapid rise in the number of marriage licenses issued at the local court house during the past year or more has been due to the three-day law in West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Maryland will vote on this law at the election to be held in November.

The number issued in the county for the first six months of 1938 totaled 1017.

During the past week ending Tuesday morning a total of 40 licenses were issued, bringing the total for july thus far to 69. Twelve of those were granted on Saturday.

A license was issued to a couple of Osage, W. Va., who had obtained a license previously on September 21, 1935. The license states that the ceremony must be performed in this county, and not understanding this regulation the couple was married illegally in Grafton, W. Va. As soon as the license was returned to the clerk of the Circuit Court, Mr. A. G. Ross notified the couple that they must be married in Garrett county. So the couple got around to the formality of a legal marriage just last week.

A license was also issued to a couple who were former man and wife, but who had been divorced.

Ladies' Guild Meets

The Ladies' Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal church met last Thursday at the home of Miss Thekla Fundenberg. She and Miss Charlotte Johnston, of Washington, D. C., were the hostesses. A large number of members were present along with several visitors, including Mrs. Godwin and Mrs. Frickholm, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Gregory, of Lynchburg, Va. At this time the date of August 18 was set for the annual lawn fete sponsored by the Guild. The ladies are planning to sew this winter for the Church Home and Infirmary in Baltimore.

To Inspect Potato Fields

Dr. R. A. Jehle, potato specialist of the University of Maryland Extension Service, will be in the county next Monday to inspect the fields of producers seeking certification of their seed. Thirty have already requested this inspection and John H. Carter, county agent, stated any others desiring this service should notify him at his office in the Court House.

There will be two field inspections during the growing season.

CATTLE IN COUNTY ARE TO BE GIVEN T. B. TEST

Regular Inspection Necessary to Keep the Area an Accredited One

A portion of Garrett county's cattle will be tested for tuberculosis during the next month or two to see whether or not the county will reman an accredited area, practically free from this disease in cattle.

The work will be done under the direction of Dr. W. D. VanGhyl of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and in cooperation with the Livestock Sanitary Service. Dr. VanGhyl and Dr. W. J. Cross were conferring with John H. Carter, county agent, on Tuesday, about the work.

Garrett county became an accredited county in 1932, meaning that all herds were tested and less than one-half of one percent of those cattle tested were reactors. The county was reaccredited in 1935 after a percentage of the total herds were inspected. The inspections must be made every three years among a portion of the cows, once a county has been accredited, according to Dr. VanGhyl.

Mr. Carter stated that any farmer desiring his herd tested during the ensuing month or more should notify him at his office in the Court House.

The Holy Cross Seminary choir will chant the Vespers.

On Monday, August 1, Holy Mass will be celebrated for all deceased members of the congregation. On Tuesday there will be a parish picnic at Swallow Falls park. From Wednesday to Saturday the parish will hold the annual carnival on the school grounds. Special exhibitions are being planned for Safety Day, being sponsored by Deep Creek Lake Association for Saturday, July 23, at McComas Beach.

There will be other features on the program including a first aid contest among safety teams from a number of mining companies.

HORACE P. WHITWORTH IS A CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE

Seeks Republican Nomination For Associate On the Fourth Judicial Circuit Bench

Horace P. Whitworth, Westernport, a prominent member of the Allegany County Bar, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Associate Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit in the State primaries, September 12.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Whitworth made the following statement:

"Many of my fellow-lawyers and numerous business and professional men seem to think that I would make an acceptable Judge and they have for a long time been urging me to become a candidate. The idea of finishing my legal career on the bench is most appealing. Every lawyer who loves his profession must, I think, look forward to this as the final goal, only to be obtained when his professional activities have met with the approval of his fellow-lawyers and the public in general. Therefore, I have decided to become a candidate for Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, which is the most important one outside of Baltimore City. Some of the most learned and wise Judges ever to sit on the bench in Maryland have presided here. My great desire, if elected, would be to follow in their footsteps and to give the people of Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties just the best that is in me from every standpoint. It remains to be seen whether the voters feel that that is sufficient."

Mr. Whitworth was born in Westernport, Allegany county, Maryland, on December 18, 1882. He is the eldest of seven sons of Richard H. and Margaret A. Whitworth, who were both natives of Prince George's county, Maryland. He attended the public schools of Westernport until he was graduated from high school in 1898. Within one year after his graduation his father, a druggist, died, and the care of his mother and six younger brothers became his.

For several years, he worked at various occupations supporting himself and the family and built up a substantial fire insurance agency, which he disposed of in 1902 when he entered the law school of the University of Maryland, where he completed the normal three years' course in two years and was graduated in 1904 as one of the three honor men of the class.

Mr. Whitworth immediately entered into the practice of law in both Westernport and Cumberland, and his professional advancement has been notable. Among his regular clients are some of the most substantial citizens of Allegany county and also many of the important and progressive businesses. He is regarded as a leader of the bar with a large office practice and has been the successful attorney, on one side or the other, in many of the most celebrated and important cases tried in his county and in the Court of Appeals during the last twenty years. Many of the other members of the bar, recognizing his legal learning and skill in conducting litigation, have associated him with them from time to time in handling their cases.

While his professional duties have thus laregly engaged his attention, Mr. Whitworth has always found time and opportunity to show marked devotion to the public interests and has continuously participated in every campaign during the last thirty years for the success of the Republican ticket, National, State and County. From his youth, confidence has always been inspired in him and at the age of 21 he was elected mayor of his home town, serving for three years.

At the time of the candidacy and campaign of the Honorable George R. Gaither for Governor of Maryland, Mr. Whitworth was chairman of the Republican County Committee for Allegany county and conducted a vigorous campaign for the Republican state ticket.

In 1921, upon the death of Judge Robert R. Henderson, Mr. Whitworth received the support of Allegany county in the convention called to nominate his successor, but a combination of the delegates from Garrett and Washington counties nominated Judge Albert A. Doub, who was elected. At the present time Mr. Whitworth is giving his time and interest in behalf of the public as a member of the School Board of Allegany county.

In 1911 Mr. Whitworth was married to Miss Nancy P. Dixon, daughter of Samuel G. and Nancy Easter Dixon, a well known family of Western Maryland, and they have four sons and a daughter. The two eldest sons graduated from the University of Maryland in Baltimore in 1936. One of them, Horace P., Jr., is associated with his father in the practice of law and the other, F. Dixon, is resident physician at Church Home and Infirmary in Baltimore.

Mr. Whitworth and his family have been lifelong members of St. Jame's Protestant Episcopal church of Westernport, and he has been a member of the Masonic Fraternity for many years. His membership in the Knights of Pythias has existed for more than thirty years and he is likewise a member of Cumberland Aerie, No. 215, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

From that moment until Sunday evening following there will be six diversified programs of music, including choir contests, culminating Sunday evening in the outdoor processional and celebration of the Choral Eucharist by the director and founder, Rev. Felix G. Robinson. This is the fifth season for the festival and each year attracts thousands of people. Hundreds of voices will be heard in the choral work throughout the three-day program, including the celebrated voice of Reinald Werrenrath, Metropolitan opera star, who will sing the role of Elijah in the oratorio of that name, on Saturday evening, July 16.

Choirs from four states will sing hymns of praise to God and revive ancient church music and almost forgotten medieval church ritual on Sunday evening and form the background for other musical presentations. Dr. John Finley Williamson, head of the Westminster Choir School, will direct Sunday's choral work.

Following a solemn procession at sunset in which many brilliantly vested choristers will take part, Rev. Robinson will act as celebrant during a choral eucharist, which will employ music and text dating from the sixth century. Assisting him will be his brother, Rev. Ralph C. Robinson.

Prof. Maurice Matteson, of Frostburg Teachers' College staff, will direct a program of folk music on Friday afternoon from 2 until 3 p. m., by native folk musicians. The Homestead Ensemble, of Tygart Valley Homestead, Elkins, will take part.

Friday evening, Maryland musical artists from Cumberland, Hagerstown, and Baltimore, members of the Federated Music Clubs, will give an entertainment of vocal, violn, 'cello, pano selections. The Fort Hill High school orchestra, Cumberland, will also participate.

Saturday afternoon there will be a junior choir and hymn contest with prizes for winners in each.

Saturday evening the oratorio, Elijah, will be presented under the direction of Prof. Raymond K. Hollinger, Hagerstown, associate director of this year's festival. Choirs rehearsing for the oratorio from 4 to 4:30 p. m., will be put on the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The usual adult choir contest will be held Sunday afternoon, beginning at one o'clock, with awards of $175. The festival choir will broadcast from 4:30 to 5. Other features are also scheduled with Congressman Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, expected for a brief address.

The outdoor processional will be from 6:30 to 7:30, followed by the choral eucharist.

Dr. Becket Gibbs, the leading authority on plain song in the United States, who has been lecturing at the Liturgical Choir school at Mountain Lake Park all this week, predicts the speedy union of Methodist and Episcopal churches. Himself an Episcopalian, he said in his lecture on the Anglican Rite on Wednesday morning that it gave him "great joy" to see the reunion of all branches of the Methodist church. "Since the great John Wesley besought his followers not to leave the mother church," he said, "I believe that in a few years these two great bodies will come together, which will be a long step toward the eventual union of all Christendom." The choir school is under the direction of Rev. Felix Robinson, and includes in its faculty the noted composer, Harvey Gaul, of Pittsburgh, and Raymond Hollinger, the director of Hagerstown' famous a cappella choir.

The Oakland municipal golf course will be officially opened to the public on Sunday. The course has been used by quite a number during the past several weeks. Membership cards have been changed to make them good from July 1, 1938, to July 1, 1939. The green fee has been set at 35 cents for nine holes, or 70 cents per day.

Biggs, Loch Lynn Heights; George Ream, Indiana, Pa.; Mrs. Emma Gortner, Mazon, Ill.; Jas. R. Ream, Oakland; also by two sisters, Mrs. Anna R. Robinson, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Ida M. Glotfelty, of McHenry.

Mrs. Ream was a member of the United Brethren church in Loch Lynn Heights, from which edifice funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. E. A. Crites, pastor in charge, assisted by Rev. J. E. Johnson, of Oakland. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

Wilson E. Miller, aged 60 years and 7 months, farmer, died very suddenly Thursday evening of a heart attack. Mr. Miller had gone out to fix a gate on his farm, about one and a half miles from town, and when he failed to return after a considerable length of time, members of the family became worried and upon searching for him, found him dead. He had been in ill health for some time.

Interment was in Grantsville cemetery. Pallbearers were Norman Patton, Roy C. Patton, Sherman Beachy, William Baker, Simon Orendorf, and Henry Schaefer.

Mrs. Theresa Fink Walsh, daughter of the late Anthony Ferdinand Fink and Elizabeth Von Hazen Fink, died Tuesday morning, July 12, at 1:45, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Guy W. Thayer, Liberty street, Oakland.

She was born March 25, 1853, near Oakland, and lived in this community during her entire lifetime. She was 85 years of age. She was married April 7, 1872, to Edward Walsh, who preceded her in death 38 years ago.

GRANTSVILLE

Fire Demon Strikes Twice

The local fire department answered two calls within forty-two hours, both of them from Springs, Pa. At seven o'clock Sunday morning they were summoned to the service station of Mark Otto where the garage, at the rear had caught fire. Mr. Otto's automobile, machinery, equipment and tools were destroyed, while the building itself was saved although damaged. It was reported that the damage and loss was estimated at $1500.

Amid the cloudburst and electrical storm Monday night, the barn of Herman Bender, also of Springs, burned to the ground when struck by lightning shortly after midnight. Aroused from his sleep by the crash, Mr. Bender discovered the barn in flames and hastened to save his livestock. Getting two horses safely into an adjoining orchard and returning to the scene, he found that the fire had gained such headway that nothing further could be saved. More than five hundred laying hens, two hogs and a calf were incinerated. Two hogs ran out after being badly burned. Machinery and this year's crop of hay were also destroyed. A chicken house, a brooder house and corn crib, which were in direct line of the fire, were saved through the efforts of firemen who fought the flames for more than two hours. The Meyersdale fire department was also summoned. The barn was covered by insurance but the contents were not insured.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

General conditions at home have improved this week over last. That sloppy man who lives there began to get a little careless the minute his wife went to a West Virginia 4-H camp to tell the older girls there how to endure a husband and yet be happy!

He let the living room get messy: The magazines were thrown here and there. The chairs were pushed around. The fireplace was filled with paper and ashes from some that had been burned and were blown about the room by the draft. Flowers that had been fresh at one time were drooped with shame—or something. The table showed fingerprints proving that the fellow had realized something ought to be done, but that he lacked the proper incentive.

Out in the kitchen the sink was almost full of dirty dishes. The table where that man had been eating wasn't so tidy, either. The frying pan had been on the stove so long that it felt more at home there than in the cupboard.

The bedroom wasn't any better. The bed hadn't been made for a week. Pajamas were hung on a chair; tennis togs were draped over a chest of drawers as if in mourning for the absentee. A couple of socks stood—almost—in one corner. Not a dresser drawer was entirely closed.

A look at the bathroom wasn't so inviting, either—but do you think that man cared any? Outside of a little mud on the floor, a ring around the bathtub and a couple of dirty towels on the floor, there wasn't much change—maybe the basin could have been cleaner.

He expected to let everything go until the last day and then rush about and fix everything as it should be, but somehow he never got to it.

But things are in much better shape this week, thank you. They'll be that way for two weeks. Then he'll be left all alone again, while the wife goes back to West Virginia to teach a class in farm women's camp. He may promise to keep things more orderly, but things will be about the same when she returns again.

Objections Overruled

A couple were being married several days ago in a nearby section of the county. The minister came to the portion of the ceremony where it said: "If any person knows of any just cause why these two should not be joined in holy wedlock, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," and was somewhat startled when one of about twenty-five onlookers said:

"I object, Parson."

Notwithstanding the surprise of the attack, which the minister said was the first experience of this kind he had ever had, he said, "State your objections."

"A man as ugly as he oughtn't to get married."

"Your objection is overruled," said the minister, and the ceremony proceeded when the merriment had died down, even though the objector added, "There are some good looking men in the audience."

The man, by the way, was about 36, and the girl was 18.

Coincidence

A couple from Ohio, traveling along the Skyline Drive, remarked to each other that it was odd that they had seen no Ohio licensed cars since leaving their state. About that time they spied a car in front of them. The license was Ohio and looked familiar. Speeding up they overtook the car to find their next door neighbors.

Just now I am recovering from my July 4 sunburn. Experience as a teacher seems to have little effect when it comes to sunburn. Next year I'll be a year older and ought to have more sense. But I won't.

A sport that is very much on the increase is bicycle riding. It is very popular in the city parks and has even come to Deep Creek Lake. One can now rent bicycles down there and go out riding for health and tired muscles. The latter disappear when you get used to it.

Now that the postoffice building seems assured and officials are beginning to look for a place to put it, here's a suggestion: Why doesn't the town sell the City Hall property and then plan seriously for a new and adequate community building?

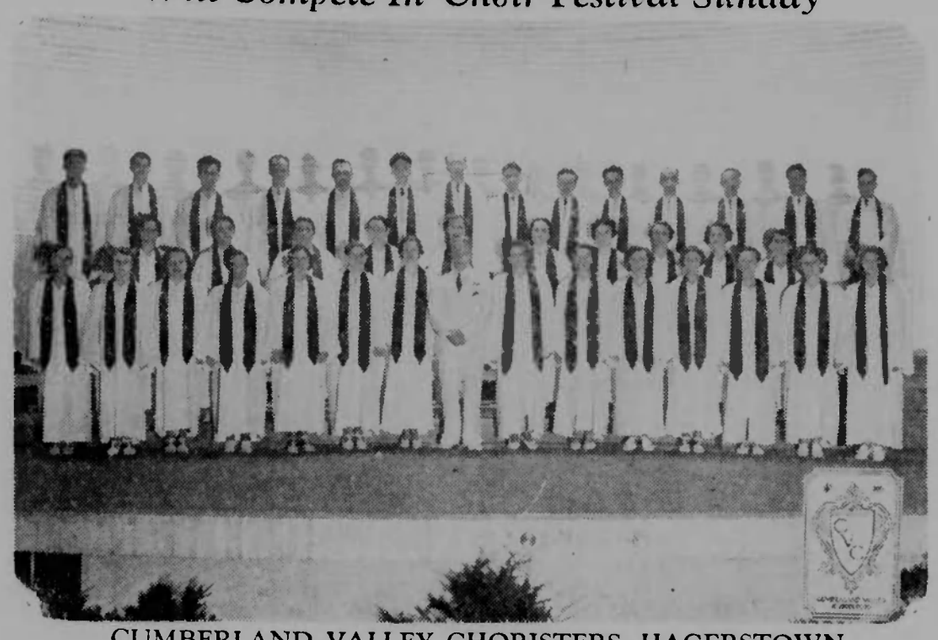
There's going to be a lot of revenue lost if those in charge don't soon start charging for use of the municipal golf course. From what one man stated, they lost an opportunity last Sunday when quite a number were on the course.

Will Compete In Choir Festival Sunday



CUMBERLAND VALLEY CHORISTERS, HAGERSTOWN

The Cumberland Valley Choristers, of Hagerstown, under Prof. Charles M. Cassel, director, who appeared last season at the Park to win second place in the Mountain Choir Festival, will again be at Mountain Lake Park on Sunday to compete in the adult choir contest. Forty members will take part. Its membership is enrolled from Hagerstown, Waynesboro, Greencastle and Clearspring. The choir has been featured with the Hagerstown Municipal band and during the past year has given several concerts in Hagerstown and Waynesboro.

Mr. Cassel will participate on the Maryland Night program as a soloist. Mr. Cassel has a bass-baritone voice and has done much concert and solo work throughout the United States. The group has as its accompanist Miss Rebecca Foltz, a Peabody graduate.

MT. LAKE PARK

The most important topic of conversation in the Park just now is "Who has bought the Park?" or "Has it been sold?" brought about more definitely by the front page article in last Thursday's Republican.

In answer to these queries we say that to date, no one. Things remain as they were. The report that the Oxford Group would take it over was a possibility, but is no more.

A petition was circulated several days ago with a plan for the financing the purchase of the Park. This is now held up pending a meeting of the officials of the town.

However, just to ease the minds of many people let us say that you aren't going to be "sold down the river."

Plans are being made by all interested whereby the Park will be taken care of in a manner worthy of such a splendid place. Just now it's a case of watchful waiting.

Any how we still want to know where that blooming Civic Club fountain went to and how.

The Mountain Choir Festival, beginning here on Friday, bids fair to bring the largest crowd seen here in some years. Many of the boarding houses are receiving inquiries for reservations for that time. Rev. Felix Robinson was on the job early Monday morning with men getting the amphitheatre in readiness. He has been tireless in his efforts to make this a success and we feel sure he has succeeded.

An engagement of interest to some of the Park people is that of Miss Norma Welling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling, and Mr. Elza W. Nave, of Cumberland. The groom-elect resides in Cumberland where he is one of the Central Y. M. C. A. staff. No date for the wedding has been set. Miss Welling, who has been in Cumberland for the past year is here visiting her parents.

HAGERSTOWN CHOIR WINS FIRST HONORS IN CONTEST

Cumberland Valley Choristers Show Marked Ability; Other Awards Made At Festival

RANDOLPH MAKES ADDRESS

The Cumberland Valley Choristers, of Hagerstown, won first prize of $100 Sunday afternoon in the adult choir contest of the Mountain Choir Festival at Mountain Lake Park. The choristers had competed last year, when they were given second place.

Second prize was awarded the Washington Irving High school choir, Clarksburg, West Va., and the third went to the Oakland Community choir.

About fifteen hundred persons attended the afternoon session. They also heard the Carpatho-Russian choir, of Brownsville, Pa.; the Hagerstown A Capella choir and the Cumberland Community choir, none of which entered into competition.

Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, spoke on the growth of the choir festival movement in America, picturing a return of the days when Chautauqua programs at Mountain Lake Park brought thousands to this area. Dr. Becket Gibbs, of the Juilliard School, New York, adjudicator of the choir contests, expressed hope for the continuation of the festival in having all denominations "coming together to praise God." Many denominations were represented in the combined choral group.

A national broadcast of 300 voices, directed by Dr. John Finley Williamson, guest conductor, of Westminster Choir School, who came to the Park from California, enroute to Massanetta Springs, Va., was made in a half hour program Sunday afternoon. Dr. Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh, composer of the festival contest anthem, "Christ of the Fields and Flowers," was at the organ during the broadcast.

An outdoor processional and the Choral Eucharist was conducted Sunday night in the concluding service by Rev. Felix Robinson, festival director, with Rev. Ralph C. Robinson, of Spring Grove, Pa., as co-celebrant.

Saturday's Program

The Sunday school choir, First Lutheran church, New Kensington, Pa., won first place in the junior choir contest Saturday afternoon. Second place went to Highland Avenue M. E. Junior choir, Fairmont, W. Va., and third to First M. E. Junior choir of Elkins, W. Va.

The Vesper Four, Hagerstown, won the contest for male or mixed quartets.

Several hundred persons gathered in the amphitheatre Saturday night to hear Reinald Warrenrath, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, sing the leading role in the oratorio Elijah. The Oratorio choir, in rehearsal for the evening performance, was heard over the air from 5:30 to 6:00 o'clock.

Friday's program included folk music of the area during the afternoon by members of the Tygart Valley Homestead, Elkins, West Va., and a strictly Maryland program during the evening under the Maryland Federation of Music clubs. Participants in this presentation were from Baltimore, Hagerstown and Cumberland.

In addition to competing and guest choirs, the combined chorus comprised units from Mountain Lake Park, Keyser, Piedmont, Westernport, Luke, Frostburg, Grantsville, Martinsburg, Kitzmiller and Eglon.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, at the conclusion of the broadcast. The train will not arrive in Baltimore until 12 o'clock. The band will play two numbers in Union station, Washington, D. C., when the train stops there for half an hour. Following the dinner arrangements are being made for the members of the band to see a ball game or take a boat trip on the Chesapeake Bay. PLAN FOR SEWAGE PLANT IS OUTLINED AT MEETING

Is One Suggested To Relieve Pollution of Little Yough River

A plan for a modern sewage disposal plant for Oakland, Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn, was outlined on Monday night in the office of the Garrett County Commissioners by Lloyd MacMurray, sanitary engineer for the State Health Department. The plan was proposed as one of the ways to eliminate the pollution of the Little Youghiogheny River, especially during the summer months when the flow of water is the least.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the three towns, the County Commissioners and others interested. There was no decision made, and according to Dr. H. R. DuPuy, local health officer, nothing definite can be done until a sanitary district is set up through an act of the Legislature.

This act would then permit bonds to be floated to raise money for such a disposal plant, and although the Commissioners would underwrite such bonds, it would be the responsibility of the towns involved to pay off the indebtedness. It is estimated that the plant and trunk line from Loch Lynn to a point west of Oakland would cost approximately $75,000.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Lawrence M. Fraley, mayor of Oakland, chairman; Dr. DuPuy, Hervey Bittner, acting mayor of Mountain Lake Park, and H. M. Weeks, mayor of Loch Lynn, along with Mr. Proctor, of the Mt. Airy Canning Co. and John W. Herman, president of the County Commissioners, to continue to study the problem.

The construction of a dam to store water to be used for flushing the river at stated intervals throughout the summer, has also been suggested as another way to relieve the pollution of the stream.

Many At Golf Course Sunday

Quite a number were at the municipal golf course on Sunday for the official opening. There was no official or formal opening program, but for the first time charges for playing were made.

J. Frank Browning, city clerk, reported that $82.70 had been turned in Monday, accounting for Sunday's green fees and several memberships. This makes a total of over $225 in revenue that the golf course has produced for the town thus far.

County Officials Are Probing Mishap on W. M. R. R.

County authorities are investigating the circumstances surrounding the manner in which Leroy Cooper, 17, of Westernport, was injured early Tuesday morning along the Western Maryland Railway tracks between Luke and Bloomington.

Cooper, found unconscious along the tracks, in Allegany county, was treated at Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, and taken home.

Carl Bosley, 19, of Reese's station, told officers he and Cooper were walking along the tracks when Cooper fell and injured his head. Bosley is held in the Allegany county jail pending a further investigation. Officers there were told that the youths had been drinking. Local officers are investigating some circumstances leading up to the accident which relate to this county.

NICHOLAS DUSIC DROWNS IN DEEP CREEK TUESDAY

Hanover (Pa.) Man Was Seized With Cramps; His Brother Emeric Barely Reaches Shore

FIREMEN USE INHALATOR

Nicholas Dusic, 26 years old, manager of a shoe store at Hanover, Pa., became the second victim of drowning in Deep Creek Lake this year when he was seized with a cramp while bathing late Tuesday afternoon and was drowned despite the efforts of Emeric Dusic, his brother, of Oakland, to save him.

The fatality occurred near McComas Beach, about one mile from the breast of the dam, when the brothers were swimming across one of the arms of the lake. They were approximately fifty feet from shore when Nicholas was taken with a cramp, and Emeric, in attempting to take him to the shore, became exhausted and barely reached the shore safely himself. His condition was such and he was so thoroughly weakened that he was compelled to remain in his bed for several hours.

Oakland firemen were summoned to the scene and Robert Lohr, a member of the crew, recovered the body with a grappling hook in about twelve feet of water. The firemen worked on Dusic's body with an inhalator for almost an hour before he was pronounced dead by Dr. Baumgartner. His body had been in the water for more than an hour before being recovered.

Dusic, who managed the Cannon shoe store at Hanover, came to Oakland on Tuesday for a week's vacation and was on a picnic with his brother and a few friends. Emeric Dusic said that Nicholas had been in swimming at Hanover on Sunday and had been seized with a cramp at that time. Both were considered excellent swimmers.

He was born December 6, 1911, at Uniontown and was graduated from Uniontown high school in 1931.

Dusic was unmarried and is survived by four brothers, Ralph, Michael and Louis Dusic, all of Cumberland, and Emeric Dusic, of Oakland. He was a former resident of Uniontown, to which city his remains were taken yesterday after being prepared for burial at the Bolden Undertaking establishment. Funeral services are to be conducted at Uniontown, Pa., on Friday morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery in Uniontown.

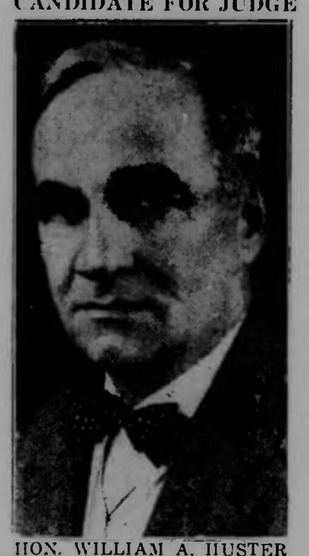
CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE



HON. WILLIAM A. HUSTER

JUDGE WILLIAM A. HUSTER SEEKS TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

Associate Judge Has Been On The Local Bench Since His Appointment by Gov. Nice in 1937

SUCCEEDED JUDGE ROBB

Associate Judge William A. Huster announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, comprising Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties.

Judge Huster was appointed to the Circuit court bench on June 6, 1937, by Governor Harry W. Nice, to succeed the late Judge David A. Robb. Before his appointment to the bench, Judge Huster served the people of Allegany county as state's attorney for thirteen and one-half years.

Admitted To Bar In 1911

Judge Huster was admitted to the practice of law by the Court of Appeals of Maryland on January 23, 1911, after he had read law in the office of Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and the late Judge Robb for several years.

He has been an active member of the Allegany county bar since that time, except for United States army duty on the Mexican border in 1916, and the World War in 1917 and 1918. He is a past president of the bar association and is a past commander of Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, American Legion. He also is a member and past officer of a number of fraternal organizations.

Previous to his admittance to the bar, Judge Huster served as a school teacher, a timekeeper for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and a blacksmith.

Was A Delegate

His political offices, in addition to state's attorney, include two years in the House of Delegates of Maryland from 1912 to 1914 and city attorney for Cumberland for 1922 and 1923.

Judge Huster is a member of the Methodist Protestant church and the Duke Memorial Bible class of which he is a past president. He is unmarried and lives with his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Hartsock, at 116 Decatur street.

He will celebrate his birthday on September 12—the date of the primaries.

Weather Has Been Favorable to Farming Operations

Weather conditions the past ten days or two weeks has been favorable for plant growth and farming operations, according to synopsis of conditions, made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Pastures and grasses were considered from fair to good, except in some districts of Southern Maryland, where they were poor.

Harvesting of wheat and rye was occupying the farmers in Garrett county with oats ripening and the heads filling out. Haying continues. Digging early potatoes was in progress except in the mountain areas, where the tubers were maturing. The crop was estimated as fair to good, but County Agent John H. Carter warned of a blight, which was beginning, on account of the damp nights.

Corn was said to be growing rapidly and even tasseling in the southern and central counties. Harvesting of the early peas has mostly ended in this county and harvesting of the late peas in under way.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED FOR SAFETY DAY MEETING

Will Be Held Saturday, July 23, At McComas Beach; First Aid Competition To Feature

NEED SAFETY EQUIPMENT

One of the largest gatherings ever to assemble on Deep Creek Lake, 10 miles north of Oakland, is expected this Saturday, July 23, at McComas Beach, to participate in the Safety Day activities, sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Association.

Important features on the program are first, competition between first aid teams from Maryland and West Virginia; second, life-saving demonstrations; third, fancy diving, and fourth, an old fiddlers' contest.

The Deep Creek Lake Association, headed by Delbert Davis, president; Ralph E. Weber, vice-president, and Major Enoch B. Garey, secretary-treasurer, is conducting an aggressive campaign to immunize against all forms of hazards on and around the lake, and have redoubled their efforts since the drowning of one person there on July 3.

The prevention of fires, automobile accidents and drownings are the special objectives, according to Raymond Houck, who is chairman of the safety committee. He also stated the association planned to see that all roads around the lake are made safer, have appropriate markers and increased police protection.

The association also plans to have a boat house, centrally located and suitable boats with modern equipment and a pulmotor available to meet whatever emergency may arise. Proceeds from the Safety Day meet will apply on the purchase of this equipment.

These precautions are being taken not only for the protection of the large number of residents but for the large crowds of visitors who come to the Lake, especially on week-ends and holidays.

Among those planning to be present at the meeting are Herbert O'Conor, and Herbert M. Brune, Jr., gubernatorial candidates for nomination; A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg, Republican Congressional candidate; Edward G. Ryan, William E. Walsh and Elizabeth R. Menefee, Allegany county political aspirants.

Deep Creek Lake, formed in 1926, by the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, is almost fifteen miles long and has a rugged shoreline of about 70 miles, winding among the jutting mountains. Hundreds of cottages have been built there since that time, a yacht club has been established and each year more and more people are attracted to this delightful spot.

The Lake Association was formed last year by a number of property owners and other interested people, realizing that something should be done to promote some safety regulations in the area.

Civic Club Of Park To Conduct Rummage Sale

The Woman's Civic Club of Mt. Lake Park will conduct its yearly rummage sale in Oakland, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, July 28, 29, and 30, daily from 10 to 5, in the store room at Main and Alder, furnished to them by the courtesy of Mrs. Robert Coffey.

The proceeds of the sale are for the support of the Community Library at the Park and other town activities of the Club.

While the Club has already collected a large and attractive stock, additional contributions will be welcome, it was stated. Donors are requested to notify Miss Katharine McLain, or Mrs. W. B. Love, at the Park; Mrs. Charles Bolgiano, at Loch Lynn; or make delivery at the store on next Wednesday afternoon between 2 and 4.

Deep Creek Church Preparing For Bible Conference

Alterations and enlargement of the Deep Creek Baptist church is now in progress, preparatory to the Summer Bible Conference and evangelistic meetings which will begin Friday, August 12, and conclude on Sunday, August 21.

Several outstanding Bible teachers and leaders are being contacted for these services, according to Rev. W. B. Orndorff, pastor. Sessions are to be held both afternoons and evenings.

Lesson for July 24

GIDEON: FOLLOWING GOD'S PLAN

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:4-7, 15-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage. Joshua 1:9.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Gideon Won.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Gideon's Band.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Wise General.

Who is he? What are his connections? How large an organization does he represent? These are the measures of the greatness of a man which are common in the world. Even in religious circles there is a seeking for the men with "big names" when something is to be done. Our lesson for today reiterates the principle which we all know but which we practice so little, namely, that whatever is accomplished that is really worth while is done by God and that He uses only humble instruments—the "foolish things," the "weak things," the "base things," and "things which are despised" (I Cor. 1:26-29). No flesh is to have any opportunity to glory in His presence. If men who are accounted great by this world are useful to God it is only because they are themselves humble in spirit and service.

Gideon came from an obscure family in a small tribe in Israel—and was astonished when God called him (Judges 6:15). He asked God for several signs to assure him that he was the chosen instrument of the Lord (read Judges 6), but once he was certain he went forward, nothing doubting.

I. An Insignificant Army (vv. 4-7).

At first thought it seems almost foolish to comment on this story of repeated reductions in the size of Gideon's army in these hectic days when the nations of the earth are living for but one objective—to create a fighting machine bigger and more fully manned than that of any other nation.

But on second thought it is just the time for such comment, because what the nations are doing is a perfect example of the hopeless philosophy of men, while what Gideon did is a presentation of God's way. These notes are being prepared in a city distant from the writer's home, where he is attending a conference of national leaders in a field of great and international importance. A long session just concluded was addressed by a number of brilliant and capable men and women—and the conclusion they reached was that America was a badly befuddled nation, lost without a sense of direction in a wilderness of incoherent and inherently contradictory theories and about to lose its dearly bought freedom, unless someone points the way out. The only solutions offered were bigger and better human programs, and when a suggestion was made that our need might be spiritual the discussion was promptly directed in another direction.

We need the lesson today that it is by the seemingly insignificant Gideon's band that victory is to be obtained. Take courage, ye 300, rid yourselves of the 22,000 fearful ones, let God sift out the 9,700 who are not alert to the danger of the enemy, and then, under some Gideon who is obedient to the command of God, go forward to victory. You are the hope, and the only hope of our nation. Do not fail God in this crucial hour.

II. Obedience to God's Command (vv. 15-23).

After the Lord had encouraged the heart of Gideon by the account of the dream of the Midianite (vv. 8-14), he and his band are sent forward with strange weapons and even stranger instructions.

It is not ours to question "Why?" when God tells us to move forward. When will we learn that He knows more than we do, and that obedience is all we need to render unto Him? "Behold, to obey is better than to sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams" (I Sam. 15:22).

III. The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon (vv. 18, 20).

While some folk err in counting the Lord out and making everything depend on man, there are a few who make the opposite error and become fatalistic in spirit and relatively useless to both God and man—because they hold an improper view of the manner in which the Lord works through human agencies.

A man who objected to soul-winning efforts, and especially personal work, said that he believed "God could save a man if he were alone on the top of the Alps." Of course He could, but God does not ordinarily work that way. It is the "sword of the Lord"—yes, but do not forget that it is "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon." God has graciously condescended to do His work on earth through human agencies. Let us be ready and subservient instruments for His use, but let us at the same time be alert and active in His service. The two are not at all inconsistent, in fact the one whom God chooses to use is usually the one who is already busy about His work.

Festival Sidelights

There was at least one singer who came here to sing in the choir festival that did not do so. She was expecting "a happy event" about the middle of August, but on Sunday morning at 4:30 she was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by a young couple with whom she was stopping. A daughter was born Monday, who will probably do a lot of warbling from now on.

The Choir Festival gives as much publicity to this area as almost any other function, and yet those in charge face another deficit this year. One of the reasons is that the festival is not patronized very much by local people.

The affair is a strain for all those taking part. This year three persons collapsed—one Saturday night and two Sunday evening.

I was of the opinion that the B. & O. wasn't doing the business it used to, but when I sat in the amphitheatre at the Park over the week-end I heard trains blowing almost continuously. They couldn't have been blowing just for the fun of it.

The seats in the amphitheatre are as hard as any I have ever sat upon.

If anybody listening to the broadcast Sunday afternoon heard any unseemly commotion, I can tell them what it was. They probably heard me telling our two boys to keep quiet. After two hours of sitting, though, it is hard to expect any boy to keep from wiggling a little. Before any remedy is suggested, let me say that I know better than to take them again—until they are at least one year older.

On Saturday a lady stepped up to buy a program from one of the sellers. Upon being told it was a quarter, she discovered she had the wrong pocketbook in which was only a dime. "I'm sorry," she said. "I have just a dime." "That's too bad," said the vendor. "This place certainly does strip you." And notwithstanding the fact that the lady had been here only a short time and hadn't yet spent a cent, she replied, "It certainly does."

She could hardly keep from laughing in the man's face.

I received a very great shock upon going home to lunch the other day. I had hardly sat down to the table until George and John informed me that they were going to the world's fair, and would sleep in a pullman car, telephone from an observation car and eat in a dining car.

Asking who had told them all that they said, Rita Bittle. I'll have to hold that against Prof. Bittle. Asking again who was going to furnish all the money for the trip they said, "Mama."

With that all settled I guess there isn't much use for me to worry. Just let "Mama" do that.

A twelve-year old boy, hanging around the office with nothing better to do, pecked out a letter on the typewriter. Here it is just as I found it still sticking in the typewriter:

Dear friendless friend,

You are discorgaly (discordially) invited to attend a moonlight, afternoon pienic on the morning of Dec. 45, 1888.

If you get lost on the way go back and get on where you got off and start over again.

Bring some water in case you ge hungry.

There will be a race of all legless men and a silver cup made of tin will be awarded to the loser. There will also be a boxing match of armless men and a box of stale candy will be awarded to the winner.

Music will be produced by the "Hat and Rubber Band."

Orphans will be admitted free if they bring their parents.

Other children will be admitted free if they pay.

Very discorgaly yours,
Me.

Reliefers are a happy lot. The other day one came out of the relief office at Morgantown. His automobile had a flat tire, but he didn't seem to mind. He turned on his car radio and to the tune of some jazz orchestra or swing band he got out his pump and kept right in time with the music as he put air into it. And the person who saw the incident said the radio was one of the best.

AN EDITORIAL

GARRETT, FOR INSTANCE—

It seems to be an impossibility for any Baltimore writer, when he finally gets around to mentioning Garrett county, to place a true picture before the people.

To such writers Western Maryland begins at Hagerstown and ends at Cumberland, and Garrett county is just the tail end of nowhere, an area that should be given away, if West Virginia or Pennsylvania would take it.

The latest article appeared in the Baltimore Evening Sun several days ago, written by Gerald W. Johnson, under the title, "Garrett, For Instance".

To a true Garrett countian, it makes his blood fairly boil, even in cool weather, to read such paragraphs as "There may be excellent arguments for moving the people out of Garrett county and leaving the land to the foxes and the cattle ticks; but before any such course is decided upon those arguments ought to be explained to the people of the whole state."

"No candidate for Governor has advanced any sort of program for dealing with Garrett," (just like we were a problem child or black sheep.)

"There are various ways of going about reestablishing a blighted area." "There are 61,717 acres which people are farming, or trying to farm, although there is no earthly hope that anybody can ever make a decent living farming that land."

"Maryland has already made some progress toward preserving this county. There are three big state forests there now. But to date we have accomplished very little toward putting the county to some use and giving the people who live there a break." "One idea of what ought to be done involves returning a large part of it to forestry."

The only sane statement made was that the logical future of the region was that of a recreation area where it was "delightfully cool in summer, a delight to the eye at all seasons, a land apparently designed by nature to be one of the finest recreation grounds imaginable." But recreation is not all Garrett county has to offer.

We do not know what the writer's purpose was in presenting Garrett county as one of the state's liabilities, but it would be a safe statement to make that he had never been within the boundaries of the county, and probably had never been outside of Baltimore city, a place where the slum situation should be of far more concern to him.

Statistically over fifty percent of the county is forest land, and it is true that some of the farm land is of poor quality. But on the other hand some of the best growing land in the state is in Garrett county and some of the most beautiful farms.

Of the 23 counties in the state Garrett county is fourth in number of acres in farms, ninth in number of farms, first in percentage of farms operated by owners. It stands eleventh among the counties in number of horses and colts, seventh in number of cattle and calves, (an investment of over a million dollars) ninth in number of cows and heifers, second in number of sheep, fourteenth in number of swine and thirteenth in number of chickens, twelfth in number of eggs produced, eleventh in quantity of milk produced, seventh in hay acreage, second in production of white potatoes, first in production of oats.

It is the only county in the State where maple syrup is produced, and is now growing some of the finest peas in the country.

The marsh land which practically fills some of the Shore counties is absent here, and there is little of the extremely sandy soil such as is found in other counties of the state. In these we are fortunate.

Although it stands fifteenth in population among the counties, it has a number of the best people in the state, which cannot be measured by statistics. The trees grown here make better lumber than any other place in the state. Garrett county is the real beauty spot of the state. It has a healthful climate, and we can boast of few mosquitoes.

While it may not have as much money as other counties, its county indebtedness is less than one percent of the taxable basis. Its banks have over 3½ millions of assets.

Relief rolls are heavy here as they are in other counties. They would not need to be so heavy, if it were not for the attempt of the national administration to buy up all the votes.

Farm income was almost $2,000,000 for the past year.

And this is the "blighted area" the Baltimore writer speaks about saving. He'd better save himself from the class of the ignorant first of all.

May Receive Another Carload of Fish For Deep Creek Lake

Possibility of receiving a carload of fish, to be emptied in Deep Creek Lake, has been announced by the Deep Creek Lake Association, providing a way is found to pay the freight expenses of about $500.

According to U. S. Senator Tydings, the Bureau of Fisheries will cooperate with the state fish and game department on the same basis as last year. The fish are from Wisconsin, and are taken from the headwaters of the Mississippi river. A carload of fish was obtained last year for the Lake. Dr. Henry W. McComas, member of the Conservation Commission, is investigating the matter further.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Fire, originating in the Reynolds saloon, facing on Railroad street, destroyed seven buildings, including the structure occupied by the Mountain Democrat as its printing plant, the Offutt store building, the Ravenscroft office and store building, a frame structure in the rear of the Garrett County Bank, a building of Mr. Offutt on Railroad street, a two-story structure adjoining the Ravenscroft building erected by W. H. Malette and occupied by John Felty, Jr., as a general store, M. Cohen, tailoring establishment, H. C. Smouse, jeweler, and Miss Sue Spindler, seamstress. In the Ravenscroft building J. E. Harned and family occupied an apartment on the second floor while on the first floor was located his drug store. Mr. Harned and members of his family barely escaped from the burning structure. All buildings burned were on the southwest side of Second street. Across Second street from the fire the Davis hardware store, the Davis home, the Boyer hotel and The Republican building were more or less damaged. Bob Shirer, who was employed by Mr. Harned, awoke to find the foot of his bed on fire. He escaped, however, with slight burns. Harold Harned, at that time an infant, was carried out of the fire swept home, wrapped in a blanket and taken to a neighbor's house.

The loss by this fire was estimated at many thousands of dollars.

Three days later safe blowers were at work. The safe in the County Treasurer's office was blown open. Treasurer Glotfelty, however, was out in the county making collections of taxes and there wasn't any cash in the safe.

A petition for mandamus was filed in court against R. S. Jamison, mayor of Oakland, to compel him to return an ordinance to the Town Council. The ordinance gave the council power to impose a license tax of $150 per annum upon each saloon. The act needed the approval of the mayor or a two-third vote of council over his veto. Up to the time of the mandamus be had retained the ordinance without approval or disapproval and refused to return the ordinance to council.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Charles H. Kolb was elected principal of Oakland High school.

The War Savings campaign had begun and about $100,000 had been sold or pledged. Hutton led other towns with $9,075. Kempton, with $7,500, was second. Kempton was a town not yet two years old.

The Charles C. Speicher farm near Accident brought the sum of $8,550 at a trustees' sale.

Seed buckwheat was selling at $2.25 per bushel.

Typhoid serum was made available upon application to Dr. H. W. McComas, health officer.

The 313th Regiment, in which there were many Garrett countians, was in France and going toward the front.

Mid-day prayer services were inaugurated by Oakland churches, the services being held in the Presbyterian church, it being more centrally located.

Grantsville had a big day with the unfurling of a service flag of District No. 3, displaying 57 stars—one for each soldier in the service. There were three thousand persons present. The story from the pen of a resident of the town said that Grantsville had become rejuvenated since the rebuilding of the National Highway and had become an up and going community.
